WELCOME TO THE CLUB

Six different players earned the right to be a captain for the first time in their careers during the 2022 season, including outside hitter Dani Drews, who was a captain during the final four weeks. Since the start of the 2021 season, there have been 16 players to serve as a captain, including three players to earn the honor in both seasons.

SPREADING THE WEALTH

Led by outside hitters Bethania De La Cruz and Dani Drews, there were 28 different players who earned at least one match MVP award during the 2022 season. In addition, there were eight players to receive MVP honors at least four times.

NINE IS JUST FINE

Outside hitter Bethania De La Cruz became the first athlete in league history to serve as a captain during all five weeks of a single season. De La Cruz also surpassed softball pitcher Cat Osterman on the Athletes Unlimited all-time list of weeks as a captain. De La Cruz joined Osterman and opposite hitter Karsta Lowe as the only athletes among all of AU's sports to hold captain honors in five or more weeks during their career.

RESILIENCY ON THE COURT: VAL NICHOL RETURNS AFTER SHORTENED FIRST SEASON

By Katie Myers

Mar. 11, 2022

Merriam Webster defines resilient as “able to become strong, healthy, or successful again after something bad happens.” Whether recovering from an injury or maintaining a healthy body from the day in and day out grind that it is to play a sport, athletes are often thought to be resilient possessing qualities that reflect both grit and determination.

Val Nichol is the definition of resilient as shown through her experiences during Athletes Unlimited’s inaugural volleyball season in 2021.

Nichol’s season was cut short in Germany due to the global pandemic the year prior. Then, in the opening set of the Athletes Unlimited season, she injured her ankle, sidelining her for most of the season. From one challenge to the next, Nichol was determined to fight her way through it.

“It was frustrating because I had been training for the season, but the athletic training staff was incredible,” Nichol said.

Her desire to make it back before the season ended ultimately pushed her to step out on the court the final weekend.

“I wasn’t always the easiest patient to deal with because of my frustration and desire to make it back before the short season ended, but with a lot of tape I was able to play for that last weekend.”

When she finally did have that opportunity to step back out on the court, she faced a new challenge. Often overlooked, athletes who are recovering from injuries follow different schedules from the rest of the team. In other scenarios, seasons are months longer, so if a player is injured and recovering for several weeks, it’s not nearly as costly. The abbreviated season and team structure of Athletes Unlimited can pose different challenges.

“Even the minor injury that some would consider an ankle injury to be could be season ending. It was tough, honestly. I was disconnected from the girls. I wasn’t training, I wasn’t drafted, so I kind of lost the connection to being a teammate,” Nichol said.

Despite the challenge, she was just happy to be out there playing the game she loves. “I don’t take it for granted. I was happy to be able to play at all, so that one weekend was fun, it was just much different than how my season started.”

As she prepares for the upcoming season, Nichol is also facing a huge decision: will this be the last?

Prior to joining Athletes Unlimited in 2021, she contemplated retirement. After deciding she didn’t want to end her playing career on a season cut short, she decided to give Athletes Unlimited a shot. Then came injury.

Now, a year later, she’s back again with hopes that things go much differently than her previous two seasons saying, “That’s part of the reason why I’m back, hopefully to end on a better note.” As for whether she will retire, that decision has not yet officially been made.

“It is potentially my last season. I’ve been saying that since 2020, so I can’t say that for sure.”

Regardless of if this season is her last, Nichol will give it her all on the court. In the offseason, she has focused on trusting her body knowing she’s done all she can do during the recovery process.

Ready for season two, she said, “Now, it’s time to play.”

SYBELDON RETURNS FOR VOLLEYBALL SEASON 2 WITH PRIDE AND EXCITEMENT

By Katie Myers

Mar. 12, 2022

Athletes Unlimited has taken the professional sports world by storm over the last two years with a unique format and fast-paced play across various sports. In 2021, Athletes Unlimited launched into its inaugural volleyball season which consisted of 48 female athletes with experience ranging from the Olympics to international and collegiate play. Regardless of the athlete's background, everyone was on the same playing field when it came to adjusting to the format.

One of last season's top ranked athletes, Lianna Sybeldon returns to Athletes Unlimited's highly competitive roster in the upcoming season after a successful season one in Dallas, Tex. She was ranked 11th overall at the conclusion of the season and said her mindset had everything to do with her success. Like most, she said, "I didn't know what to expect going into it." In addition to not knowing what to expect on the court due to the different format, she was also coming off a three-year retirement.

While she was focused on the performance aspect, her main excitement came at the opportunity itself. "I was there for the experience and just excited to be there. I think that helped me perform better because I had less stress than if I had gone in thinking I need to be number one," Sybeldon said.

Part of the unique experience that comes with Athletes Unlimited is the way the game is played from week to week. Each week teams are different making it harder to establish the same chemistry on the court that you would on a team that you play with each game in a standard season.

"Slides are usually a really effective hit, and as a league, we had a really low hitting percentage on slides overall," Sybeldon said. "I think that is because we weren't playing with the same setter each week. Middle setter connection, the chemistry is super important to develop and you don't have the chance to establish it in the way you would in a standard league... If I was talking to a new player, I would just want them to understand this might be frustrating at times, but it's awesome overall.

"I feel a sense of pride. I have had girls reach out to me and I feel honored to be in a position where I get to share my experience and advise people to do it. All I can say [to those people] is, I loved it, you should do it too."

As far as next season goes, Sybeldon says she's careful to keep her mindset the same to keep the pressure to perform at an even higher level than last season at bay.

"There have been times when I've put those expectations on myself, and I've intentionally pushed them back."

Rather than putting pressure on herself to overperform, Sybeldon reminds herself how grateful she is to have this opportunity to play with Athletes Unlimited.

"I have the best of both worlds getting to play for AU. I have a normal job and then for a couple months a year I get to go back to living the glory days. That's such a unique thing that not many people get to experience," Sybeldon said. "Sport itself is such a cool concept. It unites people."

While Athletes Unlimited is still growing, Sybeldon said she's grateful to have a platform here in the United States to create her own version of that for others, something she'll have another opportunity to do in March when season two kicks off.

ALISHA CHILDRESS COMES OUT OF RETIREMENT TO JOIN ATHLETES UNLIMITED

By Katie Myers

Mar. 15, 2022

Alisha Childress won a bronze medal at the 2016 Rio Olympics and became a mom of three. After retiring nearly five years ago, she joins Athletes Unlimited for its second season of volleyball.

"I stopped playing after the Rio Olympics and wanted to start a family," Childress said.

However, the plan was to always come back. She said the original plan was to have her first child then come back to volleyball. "Three kids later, that didn't exactly get executed as initially intended. Life happened and priorities changed and I continued to have kids."

Despite loving her role as a wife and mother and pursuing a career in coaching, the desire to get back out on the court and play volleyball never fully went away. "Life was moving forward, I was going in a different direction, but I still [asked myself], 'What if I did get back into it?'" Childress said.

Childress is now finally getting her chance. She had originally been approached by Athletes Unlimited for its inaugural season, but was pregnant and unable to play. However, that laid the ground work to her desire to play this season. "It started to feel like this may be an opportunity to get back in post three babies," she said.

Knowing the life she's built with her husband and being close to her family was important, Athletes Unlimited seemed like the perfect opportunity.

"They seem really family friendly and want to create an option for people like me or athletes that don't necessarily want to go abroad," Childress said. "I really like the intentions behind the league."

Much has changed since Childress last stepped on the court as a player. While she's excited and grateful to have another opportunity to get back out there, her approach to preparing for the season has been much different from the ways she's prepared in the past.

"We started slow, getting base level fitness post having a baby," she said. "There were lots of question marks about how my body would take it, but so far so good."

Now, she's lifting and training four days a week and said that while she doesn't know if she will ever feel the same as she did prior to her three pregnancies, she's coming as close as possible.

In addition to being excited to have the opportunity to just step out onto the court as a player, Childress is a Mindset Coach at Finding Mastering and has a passion for mental health. She is looking forward to having an opportunity to be an advocate for mental health with her teammates.

"It's a challenging system to be drafted," she said. "I'm interested from a mental headspace area to see what it's going to look like and how the girls are going to feel and what that draft is doing to the social dynamic at play."

Her desire is to help anyone who may be struggling. "I want to have an impact on my teammates both on the court and off the court, so if there's anything I can do from that arena of mental health, I'd love to help."

While Childress knows the weeks ahead will be challenging from both a physical and mental standpoint, her perspective has shifted from the last time she stepped on the court as a player.

"It might be a rough week for me, but I'm going to go home to giggly, smiley, energetic girls that make that melt away," she said.

She is grateful for another shot at playing the sport she loves, and even more grateful to experience it here in the United States with her family by her side.

LINDSAY STALZER'S BIG DREAMS TAKE HER 14 COUNTRIES AND BACK HOME TO U.S.

By Bruce Miles

Mar. 17, 2022

From the heart of the heartland to all corners of the earth, Lindsay Stalzer finally landed at home and is ready for her second season of Athletes Unlimited volleyball.

Stalzer, the pride of Peoria, Ill., and a 2016 inductee to her hometown Bradley University Athletics Hall of Fame, has played volleyball in 10 countries, including Finland, the Philippines, Indonesia and Switzerland.

Along the way, she immersed herself in different cultures, from dining on delicacies to learning at least some of the language in every country she visited.

Athletes Unlimited provides American volleyball stars a chance to play in the United States, so when Stalzer first heard about the opportunity to join AU, her curiosity was piqued.

"As soon as I heard a rumor there was going to be a professional league in the States, I was talking to my agent about it, and I was asking around about it because I always wanted to make that dream a reality," she said. "I have had an amazing career overseas, but I always thought it would be amazing to be able to play in the USA in front of family and friends. I really haven't gotten to do that in my professional career. So this is a lot easier for my immediate family, my extended family. Some friends from college are going to come and watch. I'm super excited."

During her first season with Athletes Unlimited, Stalzer came back from a bout with COVID-19 and appeared in 43 sets over 15 matches, finishing 12th on the leaderboard with 2,745 points.

"Last year, the competition was really high," she said. "I just enjoy high-level volleyball, the intensity of it. I love playing it. I love the competition. Yeah, just the sheer level of volleyball was such a draw for me. I had played in Europe for many years and had been playing in Asia, which is — at least where I was in Asia — fun, but the level of volleyball was not quite challenging me as much as I had hoped.

"Athletes Unlimited is definitely quality volleyball."

As is the case with the women who play Athletes Unlimited softball, lacrosse and basketball, Stalzer said she appreciates that the athletes have a say in all aspects of their experience with volleyball.

"I think that's really cool that that's such a focus here," she said. "On other teams, they say, 'Jump,' and you have to say, 'How high?' They kind of own you. I've been on teams where they didn't even give you a schedule and tell us what time practice is until the night before. There's not a lot of freedom.

"The fact that we have a lot more say is very cool. It's just very empowering. It's a very cool thing."

Of course, there's a lot to like and a lot to experience when it comes to living and playing sports abroad. Stalzer jumped in with both feet, wherever she was playing. That included trying to communicate with the locals in their tongues. She joked that she learned at least something of every language of the countries she visited, even if she wasn't quite fluent and even if there was some "butchering" of the syntax.

"That's me being funny," she said. "I pride myself on trying to really immerse myself in the culture and embrace the culture, really try the traditional foods, which can get very out there. Indonesia serves chicken feet. I try to embrace the culture. I try to learn some words, at least.

"Languages like Tagalog (in the Philippines) are very difficult. Slovenia, I played there and heard that's the second-toughest language to learn. You learn a lot of words, but ultimately, I would get lazy or just say, 'I'm never going to use this language.' For instance, in Switzerland, like in France, they speak French. I studied French in high school. I had a great vocabulary base, and that helped tremendously. So I would try to use my French in those places, and they loved it. They really appreciated that I tried. I know I probably didn't get the accent down too great even though people would say I had a pretty good accent.

"They're so appreciative of us just trying. We're foreigners in their country. We should try to adapt to them."

As favorite stops along her journey, Stalzer gave a slight nod to that famous "neutral" country.

"They all have a special place in my heart," she said. "When you go to a new country, you don't know what to expect, and there are different variables. For me, across the board, Switzerland was very high on a high level of volleyball and quality of living and organization and how the fans are and just how pretty the country is.

"So I always say Switzerland was my top, but Philippines is a lot of fun, and it's so fun to travel in."

Now that Season 2 of Athletes Unlimited volleyball has begun, Stalzer has some goals in mind. Chief among them is landing higher on the leaderboard at the end of the season.

"I think just to improve upon that," she said of last season's finish. "Last year it was a little bit tough coming off COVID that first week when we had scrimmages. My very first day coming back was the very first day of matches last year. So I think that was a very big obstacle to overcome. Hopefully that's not an issue this year. Actually, it's a goal of mine to be a captain at some point. So let's go for that."

As far as how long the 37-year-old Stalzer plans to keep her volleyball career going, she is keeping the door wide open. While at Bradley, she earned a degree in mechanical engineering.

"I've said this could be my last season at several different times," she said. "The body is holding up and I still love it. So ... who knows?

"I would like to use that degree at some point. It was tough to get it, so it would be a shame not to. We'll see what comes after volleyball. At some point, I would like to have that contribute to my career."

The journey has been a long, but rewarding one for Stalzer, with many miles logged and many volleyball matches played. How does she sum up the ride?

"It just reminds me of the speech I gave at my Hall of Fame induction at Bradley," she said. "I said at a couple different points never in a million years, first of all, did I think I would play volleyball in college and then never in a million years did I think I would play professional volleyball, not to mention overseas 14 years and make this career and this crazy life out of it. It goes to show: dream big and go for it."

LAUREN STIVRINS IS GETTING COMFORTABLE BEING UNCOMFORTABLE IN ROOKIE SEASON

By Savanna Collins

Mar. 24, 2022

Much like you would on the first day of school, Lauren Stivrins had some nerves arriving at Athletes Unlimited. She was unsure about making friends and all the new people she would meet.

But what's nothing like the first day of school is that her "classmates" are legends in their sport, some of the greatest competitors in the world.

"I was nervous for the volleyball aspect because I knew that there were a bunch of older players, some that I'd watched play in college, as I was a high schooler," Stivrins said.

Those veteran players include the likes of Sheilla Castro, who has two Olympic gold medals with the Brazilian national team and Bethania De La Cruz, an eight-time gold medalist on the international stage.

What Stivrins didn't expect is the way the veteran athletes in the league welcomed and embraced the younger players.

"They all have a lot of great input and when we were playing, Betty would have something to say. Something that I personally hadn't heard," Stivrins explained. "What she sees versus what I see are two completely different things. It's so nice to have that perspective and to have it be from someone who is genuine and trying to help me and teach me to be my best."

When Stivrins was on Team De La Cruz's team in Week 1, the captain was able to adjust to hitters like Falyn Fonoimoana mid-game and she passed that knowledge along to her middle blocker.

What De La Cruz saw is that Fonoimoana hits on the way down from her approach but Stivrins assumed she was early on the block. Instead of going early when Fonoimoana is set for the kill, she had to adjust to wait and go later than she would expect – otherwise she'll tool her opponent.

"Betty helped me get that timing down. She would talk me through as we were going up to block," Stivrins said. "She's like, 'Wait, wait, wait, wait.' And I just wanna go, go. She's very calm and patient."

It's leadership like this that calmed Stivrins throughout the first week of competition. She hadn't competed in six-on-six volleyball since she played in the national championship game in December and immediately felt the jump in speed at the professional level.

It's safe to say Stivrins made the adjustment – and quickly. In the first week of games, Stivrins picked up 16 kills and led the league in blocks with 11. Her 220 stat points paired with 380 win points competing on Team De La Cruz shot her to fourth on the leaderboard and in the captain's seat at the draft on Sunday.

This new challenge?

"Instant stress," Stivrins laughed. "Not that I wouldn't wanna be a captain – I'm so grateful but I just would've liked to get my feet under me just a little bit more before all of this happened."

That's not to say she hasn't had the moment every athlete feels their first year as a pro. The moment when they think to themselves, "Geez, I'm a rookie."

For Stivrins, it was opening night and her team was heating up, playing well and everything was clicking. The other team committed an overpass; it headed right over the net and towards her.

"I jumped to hit it a little bit too early and I completely missed the ball. It was just so embarrassing," Stivrins cringes as she recalls it.

"But at the same time it was so nice because the first thing [Sheilla] said was, 'We've all been there'. Then Betty's like, 'You get the next ball it's okay.' That was my rookie moment but luckily I had them."

Coming into the season, Stivrins set goals for herself that she wrote down to focus on when she competes: stay injury free, have a tough serve and be the best blocker at Athletes Unlimited.

What she's realized is that in order to meet these goals as a pro she has to have the discipline to do it on her own. There's no coach, trainer or team to hold her accountable, to push her harder in practice or spend time in the weight room. She's on her own for that now.

Along with those goals she's scribbled down she's committed to being comfortable being uncomfortable. Meeting new people, being a captain and playing volleyball at a higher level.

Amongst all this though there are three things she wants to take away from her rookie experience at Athletes Unlimited and that's connections, friendships and memories.

"I know that volleyball is gonna be in my life for many years to come but these women might not be to the same degree. I think that this is such a unique group of women. I don't think we're ever gonna get all these people back in the same room together. So just enjoying my time with them here."

TAYLOR FRICANO HAS FOUND A RENEWED LOVE FOR VOLLEYBALL

By Katie Myers

Mar. 29, 2022

A career revived.

That's how Taylor Fricano looks at her season with Athletes Unlimited Volleyball. She didn't just come out of retirement. She hadn't even taken an extended amount of time off. In fact, she was playing internationally just weeks before the Athletes Unlimited season began.

So why did her career need reviving?

For as long as she can remember, Fricano's dream had been to play in Italy. In April of 2021, that dream became reality. She had an amazing experience and decided to transition to another team when the season ended and extend her time in the European country.

But the weeks ahead would be some of the worst in her life. From where she lived to how she was treated both on and off the court, the reality began to sink in that Fricano's dream of playing in Italy was far from what she imagined.

As someone who suffers from depression, Fricano's life in Italy amplified the feelings of sadness and loneliness.

"It was one of the most depressing times of my life," Fricano said.

Anyone who knows Fricano would say she radiates light and kindness. "The person I was in Italy was not that. I didn't even recognize myself," she said.

Forced to pay for therapy out of pocket, her regular sessions with her therapist were her lifeline to surviving the season she was in.

Weeks went on and finally, Fricano's time in Italy came to an early end. Determined not to let anything break her, she reached out to Athletes Unlimited and joined the league in one of the last spots just weeks before the 2022 season was set to begin.

Fricano says in the few short weeks she has had with Athletes Unlimited, she has hope. She's soaking in each and every day and is incredibly grateful for how well Athletes Unlimited treats everyone. From the staff to the players, as she choked back tears, Fricano expressed nothing but gratitude and joy for how kind each person has been to her.

This is a season of hope. This is a season of redemption. Both literally and figuratively.

While she was in Italy, Fricano lost her love of the game of volleyball. She no longer experienced joy when she stepped out onto the court and instead felt dread.

Now, she says her love has been restored.

"I wondered if I lost my love of volleyball, but Athletes Unlimited has renewed that," Fricano said. "Being here with these positive, uplifting women has given me hope and, in a way, I've fallen in love with volleyball all over again.

"It's the small things. AU thinks about the details," she said. Fricano says that despite the challenges that have come with AU, like being drafted each week, there are people there to support her and help her talk through the feelings that come with that. When she struggled with mental health in Italy, she was forced to find resources on her own. Athletes Unlimited provides those resources.

That's just one small example of how vastly different Fricano's experience has been from her time in Italy. The list is, however, endless. "I could sit here and talk to you for hours about how great Athletes Unlimited is," expressed Fricano.

From experiencing the lowest of lows just a few short months ago, to now, experiencing the highest of highs, Fricano is filled with more hope for the future than ever.

FALYN FONOIMOANA RETURNS TO INDOOR VOLLEYBALL DREAM WITH ATHLETES UNLIMITED

By Savanna Collins

Apr. 1, 2022

Falyn Fonoimoana is dreaming. She's 24 years old, flying around the volleyball court, pounding balls with her powerful swing.

Except now when she wakes up, her dreams look a lot like her reality.

She's 30-years-old, still diving to get up a pass, taking crafty shots at the ball and leaping for the block. Before joining Athletes Unlimited, Fonoimoana didn't know she could live that dream again.

It's been six years since she stepped onto an indoor volleyball court as a player. During those six years, she's coached, competed in the Association of Volleyball Professionals (AVP) beach volleyball circuit and raised her son.

She knew that returning from the sand to the hard Teraflex court with five teammates around her instead of one would take time. But each week that she competes, she can feel herself tapping into that 24-year-old who was playing her best volleyball yet.

At the time, she was on the USA national team and had just won a gold medal at the 2015 Pan American Games. Her team in Poland was starting to hit its stride, brushing the trophy at the European Cup Championship. Fonoimoana describes retiring from indoor volleyball as a decision that made itself.

As she reached the pinnacle of her indoor career she was also battling for custody of her son Tavoi. While indoor took her across the world for weeks at a time, beach volleyball offered home. Fonoimoana is from Hermosa Beach, Calif. which gave her the ability to be with Tavoi and transition to a full-time pro beach career.

She did just that. She qualified in six of seven AVPs in 2018, earned two NORCECA gold medals and continues to compete in the AVP. But that didn't mean her passion for indoor left her.

"I always felt like indoor was like unfinished business for me."

Her long-time friend Deja McClendon played in Athletes Unlimited's inaugural season and planted the idea in her head. "The first thing she said to me was like, 'You know, you can always come back,'" Fonoimoana said. She told McClendon she wouldn't rule it out.

Then Jordan Larson and the Player Executive Committee extended a formal invitation. Fonoimoana was no longer wondering, "Maybe I can do this." Instead, it became, "We're doing this."

Each week at Athletes Unlimited, Fonoimoana has dedicated herself to one skill – taking her return to professional indoor volleyball "one skill at a time." Upon arrival, she zoned in on defense. Nailing down footwork and reading the hitters. She knows if she can play defense behind the block, her block is going to get better too.

Week 2 was about her offensive game. She worked on getting in rhythm with her setters. This wasn't about swinging as hard as possible; she strived to be a top scorer by making smart decisions and being available as much as possible.

"My challenges have really just been being patient," Fonoimoana said. For a player who not only instinctively reacts from years of volleyball but also has mastered the intricacies of the game, Fonoimoana wants her body to follow what her mind is processing. "You expect things that your body is maybe not ready for, or maybe your mind is telling your body to do something and your body's not reacting."

On Friday, March 25 in her performance with Team Stivrins, the skills clicked. She was voted MVP 1 of the match by her teammates and opponents. Fonoimoana posted a team-high 15 kills with seven digs. This season she's had five games with 10 or more kills.

Each week at the draft, she climbs. In the opening week of the season, she was drafted 22nd overall out of 44 athletes. In Week 3 she was chosen in the third round, just 12th overall.

"I kind of felt like I tapped into my old self and I felt like, 'Wow, this is where I was six years ago.'"

When Fonoimoana blew out her 30th birthday candles, she dedicated the year to herself – doing things that she didn't think she was going to have the opportunity for again.

For the athlete who was forced to give up her career playing pro indoor volleyball, Athletes Unlimited presented exactly that, with opening day just three days after her birthday.

"I really wanted to bet on myself and take this risk, even though it was a fast transition," Fonoimoana said. "I just wanted to prove to myself that I still had it and I still can play high-level volleyball."

This week when Fonoimoana looks up to the stands, the eyes of her nine, going on 10-year-old son will be looking back at her. Before she signed, Fonoimoana asked Tavoi what he thought of her playing on the court again.

"Well, it's your career," he told her. "You know, I think you're very smart, Mommy... be very careful. Don't get hurt."

Hearing those words of affirmation from her son – knowing the person she supports also supports her dream, "It really just, it gives you a whole different gear that a lot of people don't have."

PAN AMERICAN GAMES MEDALIST HANA LISHMAN IS LOVING EVERY MINUTE OF SEASON 2

By Katie Myers

Apr. 4, 2022

For most volleyball athletes with hopes of reaching the professional level, it's assumed the only option to turn dreams into reality is to play internationally. Hana Lishman was no different.

While in college, Lishman understood that the next step for her would likely include leaving everything she knew behind her and traveling abroad if she wanted to take the next step in her career.

Initially, Lishman thought that meant playing in a league overseas. "That was the reality of the situation. There's nothing wrong with playing overseas, but it was scary to think you had to be gone for so long," she said.

After graduation, however, things took a different turn. She earned a spot on Team USA and went on to win bronze at the 2021 Pan American Cup. While her next step post-college included international play, it wasn't nearly in the way she thought.

"It was an awesome experience. It was such an honor to represent the United States," Lishman said. "It's been a dream of mine to wear that uniform and it was so exciting for that dream to come true."

While Lishman loved her experience with Team USA, she is thrilled to have the opportunity to continue her career in the United States. Athletes Unlimited provides women an option that didn't exist previously. It was either choose to leave everything you knew behind and go overseas, or leave your career behind and stay put in the United States.

Now, athletes like Lishman are grateful to be able to play in the U.S. and don't feel like they have to leave their entire lives hours and miles away.

"When I got married, things shifted. It's cool to have this outlet to continue to live life and play close to home."

With a couple weeks under her belt, Lishman says she's already learned a lot. "It's an honor learning from some of the best volleyball athletes in the country," she continued, "I'm blown away that I get to play with these people each week."

Lishman loved everything about her Pan American Cup experience and wasn't sure what to expect as the AU season approached. "I didn't know what to expect. I was so nervous," she said. After the first draft, she felt more settled. "It's nerve racking [at first], but it's just about understanding you're going to be on a team and you're going to play. Regardless of where you get picked, you can't let the draft get to you."

Two weeks into the season, Lishman remains in the top 10 on the leaderboard. However, while competing at a high level is important to her, her main goal is to learn as much as possible.

"Having the opportunity to play with and against these women is incredible and I want to gain as much knowledge as I can."

Knowledge she hopes to take with her over the course of her career, whatever or wherever, that may lead her. Lishman says she isn't sure what's next, but she does hope she has another opportunity to play abroad.

"I want to experience new cultures, learn new languages and try new food," she said. "I love being close to home. You don't get to have family close by supporting you internationally. It gets lonely, so being at home is amazing."

Although Dallas isn't her true home, in a way, she feels right at home. "I love everyone here. We're teammates one week and competitors the next, but at the end of the day, we're all family."

KALEI MAU DEDICATES SEASON TO NIECE HAUMEA

By Savanna Collins

Apr. 8, 2022

Kalei Mau doesn't do anything without a purpose. Her island, her family and her fans are with her wherever volleyball takes her.

That's why choosing a cause to play for this season with Athletes Unlimited was a no-brainer – another way to give love and support to her ohana.

Through the Athlete Causes program, powered by Give Lively, funding is provided to charities chosen by each individual player. The funding is equal to 50% of their season bonus so every moment counts not only for themselves and the leaderboard but also for a cause that is important to them.

This season Mau is playing for the Kapi'olani Children's Miracle Network but more specifically, her niece Haumea Friel.

"She is a warrior. She's so young, but she has such an old fighting spirit that inspires me. And actually is the reason why I'm here today," Mau said.

Haumea has Proximal Femoral Focal Deficiency (PFFD). It's a rare, non-hereditary birth defect that affects the pelvis, particularly the hip bone and the proximal femur.

When Mau's cousin Calen and his wife Kainoa were expecting Haumea, a sonogram revealed that one of her legs was shorter than the other. PFFD causes the femur bone to be either malformed or missing.

"Since the day she was born, we've come in as a tribe and held her high. She thrives off of it...she has gotten through so much," Mau said.

Haumea has undergone more than 10 surgeries to aid what she calls her "super leg." Her most intensive surgery was in April of 2019 at Kapiolani Medical Center for Women & Children, where she underwent a complex 16-hour surgical procedure called rotationplasty.

Kapiolani's pediatric orthopedic surgeon Dr. William Burkhalter explains the procedure as "basically turn[ing] the limb around so that the knee that she has functions as a hip for her and the foot that she has functions as a knee for her that can be fitted for a prosthesis."

Haumea hasn't let PFFD slow her down. She wears a prosthetic leg that she's named Sparkle (she's currently wearing Sparkle 3.0 as she's grown). She plays volleyball which is no surprise with how athletics run in her family.

Her mom Kainoa played club volleyball in Hawaii growing up and went on to further her career and education at Hofstra University in New York. Her dad was a defensive lineman at the University of Hawaii.

"Everybody's dream is to have their children be D1 athletes or pro athletes," Mau said. "They had Haumea, which is even better because not even a lot of pro athletes I know could do what she does."

Mau's family has supported the Children's Miracle Network Network for years, even before Haumea was born, through fundraising and their family business. This commitment to love and support is core to the island of Hawaii and its people. That's why Mau has never done anything – especially play volleyball – without a purpose.

When the game challenges her or her team is down a set, Mau has a reason to dig deeper.

"I think about how many people are watching and how many people want to be in my position," Mau said. "And I just get a burst of like motivation, that push, because I have I'm playing for so much more."

AS SHEILLA CASTRO RETIRES, SHE REFLECTS ON THE PROCESS NOT HER GREATNESS

By Savanna Collins

Apr. 9, 2022

How do you summarize an athlete's career? Or more specifically, for the greatest opposite hitter of her generation? You could start with ways to describe her.

Two-time gold medalist. Champion. Most Valuable Player.

But as Sheilla Castro closes the chapter of her life as a professional volleyball player there are two attributes she thinks about the most: hard worker and mother.

On April 9, Sheilla concludes her career, which spans over two decades. The reason she chose to end it with Athletes Unlimited goes back to one of those titles she's focused on. She wanted her final game to be in front of her daughters.

Sheilla's professional career started with Mackenzie Esporte Clube in 1997 in her hometown of Belo Horizonte, Brazil. Three years later, she made her debut with the Youth Brazilian National, winning the South American Championship in Medellín. This marked the start of a long career not only representing Brazil on the international stage – but winning.

To win is one thing. To be the best is another.

That's not what Sheilla focuses on when she reflects on her career. It's the process, and that's what she wants her daughters to recognize as they grow older.

When Sheilla was a young girl, she remembers her family's praises. She did well in her studies and they would say, "She's the best in school." Once she started playing volleyball, she heard, "She's the best athletically." But what people don't see and often don't commend is the process.

"I was one of the ones in school that studied all the time. In volleyball, that one that preps more," Sheilla explained. "It's not like I'm the best because I was born the best. I'm the best because I'm working hard to be the best."

The greatness Sheilla has achieved is not repeatable. She was asked by her Athletes Unlimited teammates what she reflects on as the reason for her success and what she hopes to pass on to her daughters Liz and Ninna. It's not that they need to be the best – she wants them to know what it takes to excel.

Discipline. Focus. And maybe most importantly, time.

In Sheilla's list of priorities, volleyball has been at the top for a very long time. Above friends, relationships and family, volleyball trumped all.

"All my career volleyball was the first place in my life. For this, I think I'm successful," Sheilla said.

She's excited to shift around that priority list after her final match. There are people around her pushing for her to keep playing, to keep being one of the greatest. To Sheilla, that's not the point. She's ready to do something different.

"I don't think there's one player that would work harder than me inside the court. So I [will] do this also now, in my new life."

Not only does she want to pour into Liz and Ninna, but Sheilla also wants to share what she's learned in her career with others. She's studying to be a high-performance mental strength coach and help others work to become mentally tough. There's a unique mental strength that makes a two-time Olympic gold medalist and athlete who can play elite volleyball well into her 30s.

"If they value the process they will never be afraid of the result," Sheilla said. "Everybody has their moment; their problems."

For athletes who are struggling, she wants to coach the mental side of the game and maybe one day expand to people around the world. Moving on to this new season of her life means giving up the place she has worked out her own problems: the court.

"It's like my safe place."

She's at peace with her decision to retire. She's ready for new challenges, priorities and experiences. Despite what's waiting ahead, it is not easy to leave behind what she only experiences through volleyball.

"When I have a problem, if I come to the court and practice, I will not remember my problems. This is the point. And this is the hardest part for me, for sure."

LLOYD RETURNS TO THE COURT TO FULFILL HER DREAM WITH PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

By Katie Myers

Apr. 12, 2022

Nine months postpartum and back on the court like she never left, Carli Lloyd, like many Athletes Unlimited athletes, is grateful for the opportunity to play professional volleyball again.

Lloyd was pregnant during AU's inaugural volleyball season, and while she had hopes of playing again, she wasn't sure what it would look like.

The support from the league and other players who are new mothers has been encouraging for her. "I wasn't sure I would come back, but when I heard the wonderful things about Athletes Unlimited, I decided this would be a great test to see if I could do it," Lloyd said.

Lloyd spent months at home training and preparing for the season. "I worked really hard at home to get my body back in shape. I wanted to see how it felt to compete again and see if I had something left in the tank to continue doing this."

While Lloyd was pregnant and shortly after giving birth to her daughter, she had hopes of returning to the court. She credits AU with opening up the door to live out her dreams that were put on pause.

"It's shown me I love the sport and want to continue playing," Lloyd said. "Athletes Unlimited has given me the confidence to play again and see that it's still possible."

Nearing the end of the season, she couldn't be more pleased with her return. "I can happily say it's been a great experience," Lloyd said. She's even considering what her career will look like in the coming months following AU.

Lloyd mentioned her dream right now is to play in Italy and bring her daughter, Storm. With the support of Storm's father and her own mother, she feels hopeful that in the coming months this may be possible.

"It's been our dream to be in Italy with Storm and have her learn the language. Her dad can work remotely and would be with us as much as possible," Lloyd said.

Though she dreams about the future, Lloyd is still focused on finishing out the season strong in Dallas.

"My goal every week is to be connected to my team. I want to do everything I can to help my team win and each day I'm thinking about what my role is and how I can help this group succeed."

When it comes to the way the league is structured, Lloyd said she wasn't initially sold on the format for fear that the focus may be more on the individual and less on the team.

"Volleyball is a team chemistry sport, all the pieces matter and you need fluidity to be successful," Lloyd said. "Now that I'm here and see the format, I get the points system and think it's a great way to have it set up."

Each week is a fresh start. Another opportunity to prove herself and help her team.

"You get a new team every week, so if your team doesn't vibe you have a new opportunity," Lloyd said, noting the helpful advice she received from a second-year athlete. "It's a new day no matter what."

As her season comes to a close, Lloyd can't help but be grateful for the opportunity AU has provided.

"It's amazing how much the league stands by its female athletes and gives us the space to have a voice and empower each other. It's amazing to be part of a thoughtful organization, an organization that's after the whole person, not just the athlete, and being able to bring Storm because I wouldn't be here if she couldn't be with me."

NOOTSARA TOMKOM AND HER IRRESISTIBLE JOY

By Savanna Collins

Apr. 13, 2022

“Don’t worry, be happy.”

One of Bob Marley’s most famous lyrics? Yes. But it’s also the mantra teammates hear from setter Nootsara Tomkom.

When Athletes Unlimited players talk about competing with Nootsara, they are in awe of her craft as one of the best setters in the world – that’s a given. What they can’t stop talking about is the happiness and positivity that infects them when they play with her.

They’re not the only ones who are enraptured by the play and personality of the setter. Nootsara competed for Thailand’s national team for two decades and she’s a crowned member of the Fab Six, the Thai starters that competed together for years and became the country’s volleyball heroes.

The excellence and notoriety she gained throughout her volleyball career have amassed 1 million followers on Instagram, with a fan base that follows her wherever she goes.

For Natalia Valentin-Anderson, playing with Nootsara changed the way she approached the game. Before they reunited at Athletes Unlimited, they played together in 2015-16 for the club Azerrail Baku in Azerbaijan. What struck Natalia first was the way Nootsara welcomed her and was willing to help her – especially because Natalia is also a setter.

Nootsara told her, “whatever you need, come to me.”

This was a shocking shift from Natalia’s culture. “I was never taught that in Puerto Rico. You’re on your own, do what you have to do. And then there’s somebody else...if you help them, why are you helping them?”

What could have been competition between the two setters vying for playing time became a friendship.

“She was so open with me and told me, ‘Always trust your ability. You’re a great player.’” Natalia said.

They won the Azerbaijan Super League championship that year and Nootsara was awarded Best Setter.

Beyond being a good teammate, Nootsara helped Natalia tap back into who she was when she first started playing volleyball as a young girl: happy, loud, talking on the court.

As she continued to compete at higher levels, coaches discouraged that attitude; they thought it indicated she didn’t take her game seriously.

“I get to professional my first overseas experience and I’m like, ‘whoa, why did they make me change?’ I just wanna enjoy it you know? She reminds me every time that it’s just a game; let’s just enjoy and have fun.”

Athletes Unlimited has been middle blocker Molly McCage’s first chance to play with Nootsara. They have repeatedly been drafted to the same team, competing in the first three weeks of the season together.

“I have never played with someone who’s so joyful on the court,” McCage said.

Nootsara and Molly have been riding to Fair Park arena together for practices and even on those drives, Nootsara stops any negative talk in its tracks. She tells Molly to take it easy on herself.

“I think that’s why she’s been playing so long and why she’s so successful because she is literally happy the minute she touches the court, which is almost every day of her life.”

There is so much young athletes can learn from Nootsara Tomkom. How to be deceptive, setting with speed, stellar technique.

But what everyone – volleyball player or not – can take from the star is to choose happiness.

CRITTENDEN'S RESILIENCY AND DETERMINATION OPENED THE DOOR FOR FIRST AU SEASONBy Katie Myers*Apr. 15, 2022

Just a few short months ago Naya Crittenden was overseas, frustrated and uncertain about what her future would hold.

She spent the better part of 2021 playing overseas, but after back-to-back injuries sidelined her, suddenly her future in volleyball became unclear.

Crittenden was playing in Turkey, a location she dreamed of playing in, when she injured her calf.

She pushed herself to return, finally achieving her goal of playing in the league, but she attempted to return too early and experienced another set-back. Now, the thing she had dreamed of for so long was seemingly slipping away.

She remained in Turkey for a few months, hopeful that her recovery would go quickly and she could rejoin her team.

That didn't happen.

"It was difficult for me mentally to go through that," Crittenden said. Being alone in another country is hard enough, but being isolated in a sense because of her injury only amplified those feelings of loneliness.

It was in late December of 2021 that Crittenden decided to come back to the United States to finish her recovery.

"I think I healed faster coming home because I was able to mentally relax," she said. She was stressed and felt pressured to heal while in Turkey, which she feels negatively impacted her body's response to recovery and ultimately hindered her healing.

"The mental aspect is huge in recovery," Crittenden said. Having the opportunity to recover at home allowed her to do so the way she needed to.

Crittenden spent January and February at home healing her body, but hadn't actually played fully until she arrived in Dallas at the end of February. She wasn't sure how her body was going to respond. With her injury came mental roadblocks and trauma, so in addition to physically feeling uncertainty, the mental aspect was still a question mark.

Her injury happened when she was jumping for a ball and as a result, she initially experienced fear each time she attempted to jump.

"I was scared to hit fully and run on the court because I had no warning for my injury, it could happen at any moment and there was fear in that."

It's something she's since overcome. "I feel really good," she continued, "I've been able to jump and move and do everything."

Coming into this season, Crittenden had goals like everyone else, but at the top of that list wasn't a number. Instead, it was simply to feel confident again out on the court.

"I just wanted to play and the goal I did achieve was to be able to play fully again. I wanted to be able to do everything without having to worry about my leg."

As the season comes to a close, Crittenden is proud of what she's accomplished and grateful for the experience Athletes Unlimited has provided. Having the opportunity to play with former teammates and women she's known for years has been an experience unlike any other and one she expressed immense gratitude for.

"Like any season, you have your ups and downs, but the most important thing is we get to be here together."
