ATHLETES UNLIMITED

ATHLETES UNLIMITED BASKETBALL 101

WHO WE ARE

Athletes Unlimited is a new model of professional sports where athletes are decision makers and individual players are champions of team sports. We literally change the game with faster play and fluid teams, delivering next-level competition and engagement in which every moment counts. Beginning in 2020 with Women's Softball and following with Women's Volleyball (2021), Women's Lacrosse (2021), Women's Basketball (2022) and AUX Softball (2022), Athletes Unlimited will build the next generation of both athletes and fans.

Our athletes are in charge of their team and league decisions, and of their individual success. We reboot timetables, rosters and game play to create fast and exciting competition that speaks to contemporary sports fans, bringing them close to the action and the athletes in games where every moment counts. We incorporate the player-centric model that fans love about fantasy sports. We use digital media platforms and cutting-edge technology to connect fans deeply to athletes at the top of their game on and off the field, and to the game itself.

HOW THE TEAMS ARE SELECTED

A draft will be held prior to each week's games with the top four players in the individual leaderboard serving as the team captains. The captains will then fill their rosters by selecting 10 other players. Each draft will be held on the Sunday before the week's games and can be seen via the Athletes Unlimited YouTube channel.

Uniform colors will be assigned based on the team captain's rank on the leaderboard. The top-scoring captain's team will wear gold, while the second-highest point scorer's team dons orange jerseys. The third-place team will wear blue jerseys and the fourth-place team will wear purple jerseys.

Each team will consist of 11 players and there are no limits on the number of players at a specific position (guard, forward, center, guard/forward etc.).

RULES OF INTEREST

Timing: Four 10-minute (10:00) stopped time quarters will be played during a regulation game with a 24-second shot clock in play. Halftime will be 15 minutes in length.

Overtime: If the game score is tied after regulation, a five-minute (5:00) overtime period will be played to determine the winner. Should the score remain tied following the overtime period, a subsequent "Elam Ending" period will be held with the winner of the game being the first team to score seven (7) or more points.

Timeouts: Each team is permitted three (3) 30-second timeouts and one (1) 60-second timeout during regulation play and all timeouts carry over from the first half to the second half. In addition, each team will be given one (1) additional 30-second timeout at the start of the overtime period in addition to any timeouts remaining prior to the period. In the event of an "Elam Ending" period, each team will receive one (1) 30-second timeout, but cannot use any other carryover timeouts.

Media Timeouts: One (1) media timeout will be called at the first dead ball at or below the five-minute (5:00) mark of each quarter unless a team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge occurs before that time frame. In addition, the first team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge of the second half becomes a media timeout.

Captain's Challenges: A captain or other determined team representative may initiate replay review of certain events subject to the provisions of the rule as set out below. Replay reviews triggered under this rule shall be referred to as a 'Captain's Challenge,' or 'Challenge' for short.

Each team is entitled to one (1) challenge in the first 38 minutes of the game and one (1) Challenge in the last two minutes of the fourth quarter, overtime period or "Elam Ending" period.

A team may utilize a Challenge to trigger replay review of the following events: (1) a called personal foul charged to its own team, and (2) a called out of bounds violation.

Replay review of the following events, among others, are not considered "challengeable" events: (1) a called personal foul charged to the opposing team, (2) continuation – i.e., whether a defensive foul occurred prior to the offensive player beginning her shooting motion, (3) a technical or flagrant foul, and (4) violations – i.e., traveling, carrying, double dribble, offensive or defensive three seconds, etc.

INDIVIDUAL LEADERBOARD

While traditional basketball statistics are kept during each Athletes Unlimited game, players earn individual points by accumulating those statistics. Points accumulated by statistics, quarter and/or game wins and MVP selections are used to create an individual leaderboard, which determines captains for each week and the individual champion at the end of the season.

Points are awarded at the following increments during the game:

Made 3-Point Field Goal	30 Points
Made 2-Point Field Goal	20 Points
Made Free Throw	10 Points
Offensive Rebound	10 Points
Assist	10 Points
Steal	10 Points
Blocked Shot	10 Points
Offensive Foul Drawn	8 Points
Defensive Rebound	5 Points
Shooting Foul Drawn	4 Points
Personal Foul Drawn	4 Points
Shooting Foul Committed	-8 Points
Personal Foul Committed	-8 Points
Other Foul Committed	-8 Points
Turnover	-10 Points
Missed Free Throw	-10 Points
Missed 2-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Missed 3-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Offensive Foul Committed	-16 Points

If an overtime and/or "Elam Ending" period is required, the stats accumulated during the extra period(s) do not earn any individual points for the athletes on the leaderboard. In addition, there are no additional team quarter win points for the extra period(s).

In addition, athletes will be awarded 50 individual points if their team wins a single quarter. If the teams score the same number of points in a quarter, the points carry over to the next quarter.

Athletes on the winning team in each game will be awarded 150 individual points toward the individual leaderboard.

A total of three MVPs will be selected following each game by the competing athletes with the top player earning 90 points. The second MVP will receive 60 points, while the third MVP claims 30 points.

MEDALS

THE BOOK OF UNLIMITED

The Book of Unlimited was designed, handmade and bound for Athletes Unlimited. The book weighs nearly 25 pounds, measures approximately 12" by 18" and contains nearly 500 pages. The champion, along with all who competed, are inscribed into the book. In addition, The Book of Unlimited also contains a history of achievements in Athletes Unlimited, including stories, highlights and events.

The book is opened during the Opening Ceremony for each season and is closed after the champion is named and her name is inscribed into the book. The tradition began during Athletes Unlimited Softball's inaugural season in 2020.

Fair Park is the largest historical landmark in Texas and boasts one of the nation's largest collections of 1930s art and architecture. The 277-acre campus is home to the State Fair of Texas, museums, Cotton Bowl Stadium, an outdoor amphitheater, Music Hall at Fair Park (Broadway shows, ballet, opera) and over 1,000 events each year.

FACILITATOR BIOS

Pokey Chatman has posted a 17-13 record in two seasons as an Athletes Unlimited Basketball facilitator, including an 11-4 record during the 2023 campaign.

SEIMONE AUGUSTUS

FIRST SEASON
LSU

Four-time WNBA Champion. Three-time Olympic Gold Medalist. Two-time Naismith Player of the Year.

Seimone Augustus brought her extensive success on the court to the Athletes Unlimited during the 2023 season, joining fellow LSU great Pokey Chatman.

Augustus started 365-of-391 games in the WNBA over a 15-year career (2006-20) after being taken by Minnesota with the No. 1 overall pick in the 2006 WNBA Draft. The Baton Rouge, La., product spent her first 14 seasons with the Lynx before she closed her career with the Los Angeles Sparks in 2020.

A six-time All-WNBA selection, Augustus led the Lynx to four WNBA championships (2011, 2013, 2015, 2017) and two additional WNBA Finals berths (2012, 2016). She was named as the WNBA Finals Most Valuable Player in 2011 after guiding Minnesota past Atlanta for the franchise's first league crown.

Named as one of the top 25 players in the league's history in 2021, Augustus shot 48.0 percent from the field during her career and finished with 6,005 points and 1,228 rebounds. The eight-time WNBA All-Star and 2006 WNBA Rookie of the Year stands seventh in league history with 2,455 made field goals while her 5,111 career field goal attempts rank eighth on the all-time list.

Augustus averaged 20.0 or more points per game in a season three times during her WNBA career, including a 22.6 average during the 2007 campaign when she ranked second in the league in scoring. She also netted 21.9 points per contest in her rookie season and contributed 21.0 points per game in 2009.

In addition to her WNBA career, Augustus spent seven seasons playing overseas. She led Galatasaray (Turkey) to the FIBA EuroCup title in 2008-09 and earned FIBA EuroCup Most Valuable Player honors for her efforts. She also spent two years with Dynamo Moscow (Russia) and three seasons with Dynamo Kursk (Russia).

The second-leading scorer in LSU women's basketball history, Augustus tallied 2,702 points over 140 games from 2002-06. The Lady Tigers' career record holder for games started (140) also ranks 15th in program history with 728 career rebounds while her 276 assists are 17th on the all-time ledger.

The Lady Tigers' leading scorer during all four years of her career, Augustus was named the Naismith Player of the Year as a junior and senior along with winning the Wade Trophy, Wooden Award and Honda Sports Award. She also received Southeastern Conference Player of the Year notice in both seasons after guiding LSU to back-to-back NCAA Final Four berths.

Augustus, who owns the LSU career record with an .857 career free throw percentage, holds the distinction of being one of just two players in school history to make at least 90 percent of their free throws in a season after converting 90.1 percent during the 2003-04 campaign.

After having her No. 33 jersey retired by LSU in 2010, Augustus became the first female athlete in school history to get a statue in their honor on Jan. 15, 2023. She also had her No. 33 jersey retired by the Minnesota Lynx on May 29, 2022.

Augustus' success on the hardwood extended to the international level as she guided Team USA to four Gold medals, including three Olympic Gold medals (2008, 2012, 2016). She was also a member of the 2006 FIBA World Championship team that won a Bronze medal.

Honored as the 2003 USA Basketball Female Athlete of the Year, Augustus posted a 105-6 career record in international play. She authored a .530 career field goal percentage and averaged 8.3 points per contest.

ZAK BUNCIK

FIRST SEASON
UT ARLINGTON

Zak Buncik completed his first season as a facilitator for Athletes Unlimited Basketball during the 2023 campaign.

Buncik, a 2007 graduate of UT Arlington, joins Athletes Unlimited after completing his first season as a player development coach for the WNBA's Dallas Wings. The Wings finished sixth in the league's 12-team standings with an 18-18 record and earned a spot in the playoffs during Buncik's inaugural campaign with Dallas.

Prior to joining the Wings' staff, he ran a skills development business where he worked with all levels of basketball players, including several WNBA and NBA players.

Buncik spent nine seasons as a member of Coach Scott Cross' men's basketball staff at his alma mater, guiding the Mavericks to a pair of conference titles (Southland and Sun Belt) along with the championship game of the 2013 Western Athletic Conference and 2018 Sun Belt Conference Tournaments.

Buncik, who served as a student assistant coach during his three years at UT Arlington, graduated with a bachelor's degree in kinesiology and exercise science with an emphasis in pedagogy.

POKEY CHATMAN

SECOND SEASON
LSU

Success is the word most people would use when describing the career of Pokey Chatman, who finished her second season as a facilitator for Athletes Unlimited Basketball.

Chatman's coaching career, which has spanned over three decades, has continued a Hall of Fame basketball journey she enjoyed as a player at Louisiana State University.

Chatman joined the coaching staff for the WNBA's Seattle Storm for the 2022 campaign and guided Seattle to a fourth place finish in the league's standings with a 22-14 record. The Storm advanced to the league semifinals before falling to the eventual champion Las Vegas Aces in four games.

In nine seasons as a WNBA head coach, Chatman compiled a 134-172 regular season record, including a 24-10 mark with Chicago in 2013. She spent six years in the Windy City as the Sky's bench boss before a three-year stint in Indiana from 2017-19.

Under Chatman's leadership, the Sky reached the WNBA Finals in 2014 in addition to Eastern Conference semifinal berths in 2013 and 2015. Chicago also reached the league's final four during Chatman's final season in 2016.

In addition to her time in the WNBA, Chatman was on the coaching staff with Women's Basketball Club Spartak in Russia for four seasons. The team won the Euroleague Women's Championship in all four seasons and posted a perfect 16-0 record with Chatman as the head coach in 2010.

Prior to her time in professional basketball, Chatman patrolled the sidelines at her alma mater for nearly two decades. The Ama, La., native was an assistant coach for legendary leader Sue Gunter from 1992-2004 before taking the helm after Gunter's retirement.

In four seasons as the Lady Tigers' bench boss, Chatman compiled a 105-19 record with three NCAA Final Four appearances and a pair of Southeastern Conference regular season titles. The consensus selection as the 2005 National Coach of the Year, Chatman earned a pair of Coach of the Year commendations from the Black Coaches Association in 2004 and 2005 and was the SEC Coach of the Year in 2005.

Chatman, a 1998 inductee into the LSU Athletics Hall of Fame, also spent time as a coach on the international level after serving as an assistant coach for Team USA at the 2005 World University Games.

The eighth-leading scorer in LSU women's basketball history, Chatman compiled 1,826 points over 120 games from 1987-88 while grabbing 446 rebounds. She shot 42.1 percent from the field, including a .365 mark from three-point range, while sinking 82.2 percent of her career free throw attempts.

One of three players in LSU women's basketball history with 1,000 career points and 500 career assists, Chatman stands third on the Lady Tigers' all-time ledger with 570 assists and owns a school-record 346 career steals. The three-time All-SEC pick also holds the school single-game marks by sinking 18 free throws on 21 attempts against No. 3 Georgia on Feb. 10, 1991.

Chatman was a consensus All-America selection by State Farm/WBCA, Basketball Weekly and the United States Basketball Writers Association as a senior after averaging 18.6 points and 5.1 assists per game. She was named as the MVP of the 1991 SEC Tournament after leading the Lady Tigers to their first league crown.

She also competed for Team USA at the 1989 World University Games in addition to being a member of the 1989 ABA-USA Junior National Team and 1990 USA Select Team.

CARLOS KNOX

FIRST SEASON
IUPUI

Carlos Knox, a veteran of over 20 years as a coach at the college and professional ranks, completed his first season as a facilitator for Athletes Unlimited Basketball in 2023.

Knox, a 2004 inductee into the IUPUI Athletics Hall of Fame, most recently served as the interim head coach for the Indiana Fever during the 2022 WNBA season. He was also a member of the Fever coaching staff for seven seasons and helped Indiana reach the playoffs every year.

With Knox on the bench, Indiana secured the 2012 WNBA Championship and reached the WNBA Finals in 2015 while appearing in the conference final four times.

In addition to his time as a lieutenant on the Fever staff for Lin Dunn and Stephanie White, Knox spent three years as an assistant women's basketball coach at the University of North Texas. He guided the Mean Green to a 47-49 record, including an 18-win campaign in 2018-19.

Knox also worked on the women's basketball coaching staffs at San Diego State (2010-11) and Cincinnati (2020-21). He also spent seven years as a head coach on the men's side in Saudi Arabia (Al Hilal Club) and the Continental Basketball Association (Indiana Alleycats and Pittsburgh Explosion).

The Dayton, Ohio, native finished his career as the most prolific scorer in IUPUI history while holding numerous school records, including the single-game (51), single-season (927) and career (2,556) scoring marks. He also closed his career in 1998 as the program's all-time leader with a 30.1 career scoring average.

Knox's name is also etched in the record books by holding the top spot on the school's career free throws made (684) and attempted (821) lists in addition to notching 499 career three-point field goal attempts.

Knox was not just known as a scorer during his time with the Jaguars as he established the program record with 204 career steals.

Knox was NCAA Division II's leading scorer in 1996-97 and was a consensus First-Team All-America selection by the National Association of Basketball Coaches, College Sports Information Directors of America and the Division II Bulletin.

After being named NCAA Division II Player of the Year in his senior season, Knox became the second student-athlete in school history to have his jersey number retired when his No. 34 was raised to the rafters on the night of his final collegiate game.

Knox spent eight years professionally overseas in Croatia, Germany, Venezuela and Italy.

DANIELLE VIGLIONE

PLAYER DEVELOPMENT • SECOND SEASON
TEXAS

Making history has been a major part of Danielle Viglione's basketball career and she helped the Athletes Unlimited players do the same in her second season as a facilitator.

After serving as a game facilitator during the inaugural season, Viglione moved into a player development role for the 2023 campaign. In addition, Viglione was hired by the Los Angeles Sparks as an assistant coach during the upcoming WNBA season.

Viglione ranks fifth on the Longhorns' career list after collecting a 15.8 scoring average over 105 games from 1993-97. The Sacramento, Calif., native, who earned a trio of All-Conference accolades, knocked down a school-record 293 three-pointers and stands seventh in Texas women's basketball history with an .812 career free throw percentage.

As a freshman, Viglione averaged 21.0 points per game and set the school's freshman single-season record by finishing with 629 points. The 1994 Southwest Conference Freshman of the Year also established the Longhorns' single-season mark with 115 made three-pointers, a mark that still stands.

Viglione, who is the only player in Texas history with two career 40-point games, set the Texas single-game standard when she erupted for a program-record 48 points, including a school-record 11 three-pointers, against Houston on Jan. 29, 1994. She also netted 40 points earlier that season against Marquette.

With 1,658 career points, Viglione ranks 14th on the Longhorns' all-time list and is one of five players to average 20.0 or more points in a season.

Viglione played one season in the WNBA, appearing in six games with the Sacramento Monarchs during their inaugural season in 1997. She went on to play 10 years overseas, spending time in Israel, Turkey and Italy.

Prior to her time at Texas, Viglione earned a pair of California State Player of the Year commendations at Del Campo High School while racking up 3,089 points in three varsity seasons. The holder of 10 California state records and five national marks, she sank 379 three-point field goals and eclipsed Cheryl Miller's single-season record by scoring 1,300 points.

'I SUFFERED, I LEARNED, I CHANGED': BANNISTER REFLECTS ON JOURNEY AHEAD OF SEASON 2

By W.G. Ramirez
December 7, 2022

"I suffered, I learned, I changed."

The words run deep in Antoinette Bannister's soul.

Ink deep.

They're tattooed upon her body, reminding her of what she's gone through in life, and why it's her faith that continues to guide her.

Bannister, who is set to return for her second season with Athletes Unlimited, appeared in 13 games off the bench during the inaugural season averaging 1.7 points and 0.7 rebounds per contest.

She finished 39th on the leaderboard with 2,125 points, including a season-high 278 points against Team Sims in the Week Four finale.

Overall, the numbers aren't glaring, and she's fine with that.

It's the bonds and feeling of acceptance in the one world she's always felt she belonged that got her emotional just speaking about a second trip through AU Hoops.

With her emotions already stirring one day in May, the tears went from sadness to joy when senior director of sports operations for Athletes Unlimited Kristen Miles called to see if she'd be interested in returning.

Miles informed Bannister, who was on her way to a wake, members of the Player Executive Committee were emphatic about having her back.

"Tasha (Cloud) was really one of those people, I feel like she really did see something in me that some people might have not seen," said Bannister recently, via Zoom from Kosovo.

"Tasha and Ty (Young) were talking about the way I carry myself and the way I treated everybody there. That's one thing that they loved about me was my spirit and my energy. And that was the highlight of my summer because I wasn't sure I would get invited back."

Bannister will be one of the veterans when the play begins in Dallas next March.

SUFFER

Bannister spent her college career at three different schools, much of her doing after a run-in with the law while playing at Florida. She started her career at North Carolina before transferring to Florida and finishing at East Carolina.

She produced some of her best numbers at ECU, where she saw action in 29 games with 19 starts and averaged 6.6 points and 1.8 rebounds for the Pirates.

But it would be an off-court incident while attending Florida that most remember Bannister for, and at times still hold against her according to the 5-foot-10 guard.

Bannister was charged with theft and fraudulent use of teammate Viktorija Dimaite's credit card.

It's not something Bannister makes excuses for or tries to talk circles around. It's an event she certainly would rather forget, but at times is thankful she can't as it serves as a reminder of mistakes she's learned from.

"I just (made) a terrible mistake and I had to realize it's not the end of the world," she said. "I'm still human, I make mistakes. It seemed so bad at first because I was one of the top girls basketball players in the state of Florida and so a lot of people really knew me. They knew about me; they know about my dad (well-known coach Tony), and it looked really bad. One thing it really did for me was just show me I'm not exempt. Even the best of the best, do dumb (stuff) and the way we bounce back from it and the way we learn from it, that's really what matters."

With dreams and aspirations, like all little girls who grew up playing basketball, her dream was to play professionally.

But as her college career finished without the sizzle it probably would have if she was able to keep playing for the Gators, the credit card incident followed her.

She didn't get a tryout with the WNBA, she suffered through rough experiences out of the country and muddled her way through a couple of stints in Portugal.

Overall, it wasn't the life she hoped to lead, with suffering at the forefront.

The positive outlook for Bannister, in her eyes, was she knew she was an embattled young woman who had faced plenty of adversity.

Be it injuries, losing her grandfather, battling through overweight issues, and coming out as a lesbian. The latter was the biggest battle and overcoming that continues to help her to this day whenever she feels she's suffering.

"I battled with my sexuality since I was about nine or 10," Bannister said. "I honestly didn't get comfortable with coming out until I met my wife (Antonia). She gave me that comfortability to be able to just be myself and not be ashamed of it. ... That was really one of my biggest sufferings was being able to just be myself and come out comfortably."

That was in 2019, well after so many other life-altering events sent Bannister through mental whirlwinds.

Then the initial call for AU tryouts came and she hesitated, saying she was close to no-showing for the trials.

"I know I'm good, but I didn't think I was good enough for Athletes Unlimited," she said.

Then, she didn't make it.

More suffering.

She was going to take another crack at Mexico until Miles called to tell her there was an opening and asked if she was interested.

It was then everything she learned in life surfaced, and she began to see light in her soul.

LEARN

Bannister considers herself a very humble person. Speaking to her, it's easy to see.

She doesn't ask for them, but she's appreciative of opportunities and has learned how to capitalize on them when they're thrown her way. Like showing up for trials for a women's pro league when she's invited.

Lessons learned in life are what helped her form bonds with women she'd only watched play in the WNBA and marveled over for so many years.

Legends like Young and Cloud, or young up-and-coming stars like Lexie Brown.

"These girls are girls I really looked up to and watched play, and I was like, 'Wow, I'm really here,'" Bannister said. "Being there at AU, it allowed me to make connections with people that I never thought I would be able to make connections with. People I thought I would never meet."

The opportunity, she felt was the turning point in her career considering she feels AU is the next best thing to play in the WNBA.

"The experience, the people, the love, the way AU took care of us, the way everything was handled – it was the best," Bannister said. "Even while the WNBA was going on, AU was still promoting the girls that were in the WNBA. Even outside of basketball, AU cares a lot about the players. They care about us personally, mentally."

Things like mental health workshops before they ever played a game, and ice-breaking meet-and-greets that got emotional for some, it showed Bannister that everyone is going through something, and there was a common bond between 44 of the greatest women basketball players who emerged on Las Vegas for the inaugural season.

"It was more than the money," she added. "There was so much they gave us that didn't deal with basketball. They gave us a lot of time to make sure we were okay mentally and emotionally."

It was the type of change Bannister needed, particularly with her career.

CHANGE

Amazing what five weeks can do but evolving as an athlete and a woman after her incident at Florida, Bannister used her growth in previous years to change even further during her first season with Athletes Unlimited.

She's always known losing anger issues and finding grace during interactions with others was a priority, but where could she showcase that when she hadn't been given the one chance she was hoping for – an American pro league?

She played in Jacksonville for the WABA, a semi-pro league. But she wanted people she's admired from afar – whether they knew her story or not – to learn about who she was both on and off the court.

AU was the avenue she needed.

"I feel like I'm a much better person from anything that I've had to go through," Bannister said. "I feel like I have more compassion and more grace and more favor towards people."

Bannister repeatedly mentioned having more grace with people, and that showing more love has been something she's worn on her sleeve for quite some time, and was thrilled to share compassion with some of the greatest basketball players in the world.

"Being a better person, being a better leader, being a better teammate to people," Bannister said. "I was angry for a long time with different stuff throughout my life and I had to change my heart. It wasn't so much for having any hate in my heart, but it was just a lot of bitterness and I had to change that to love and just change it to channel it into something that was positive."

COLE SETS FOCUS ON SEASON 2: 'I'M READY TO WORK HARDER THAN I EVER HAVE'

By W.G. Ramirez
January 5, 2023

For some, turning the annual calendar incites the saying: "New Year, New Me."

For Athletes Unlimited star point guard Taj Cole, it may be a new year, but the grind she's begun is nothing new.

Cole, who signed her second AU contract in Spring 2022 and was one of the first basketball players to announce she'd play in Dallas this Spring, has turned the focus to herself.

Cole spent the past six-plus months back home, where she's been working with her family's private school and basketball facility, the S3 Academy in Petersburg, Virginia.

Whether she's been working with kids from her area, or exchange students from the likes of Russia, Montenegro, Poland, Senegal and Zimbabwe, Cole has filled the roles of an entire basketball organization's staff.

From being a leadership professor, to nutritional and travel planning, to graphic design work and leading the social media content campaign, to girls and boys player development, to head coach of the girls varsity team, to serving as the director of operations for basketball – the experience Cole's established the past six months has been invaluable.

"I'm just connecting with kids from all over, developing them as players and developing them as people," Cole said. "I'm just trying to make this private school one of the best private schools and academies in the nation."

Cole said she did what she could to push and work through the holidays, knowing it was closing in on a time she needed to treat as training camp, and has been fortunate to have her own gym so she can get her shots and weightlifting in.

Nevertheless, Cole said though she has all the access she needs at her fingertips, she never felt as if she went all in while giving her time to others.

But as the calendar changed, so did her focus.

"Just to hear from a league that I tried out for last year, and then contact me so soon, like they really wanted to bring me back for year two," said Cole, who closed the inaugural season in 10th place on the leaderboard with 4,415 points. "It's one thing to believe in yourself, but to solidify that with your performance and with what others say about you, I think that's what I realized the most – and I still want to improve many things.

"I'm excited, so I'm ready to work harder than I ever have. I'm excited about what is bringing so many new faces, I'm excited for the competition, I'm excited just for the league growing itself."

Cole added she knows she has no excuse for year two with AU, where she'll try to parlay a successful first season that saw her attract five offers for a WNBA training camp contract.

"I think it proved to me that I can play with the best of the best," said Cole, whose 12 assists on Feb. 5 are tied for second-most in a game. "I can play with pros, even the veterans who are (WNBA) pros. I can play with people who've been to a WNBA championship, (and) played in WNBA Finals."

Cole, who was one of three AU players to hit a league-best six 3-pointers in a game, was the seventh-leading scorer in AU with 16.9 points per game. She authored 12 double-digit scoring efforts, including six 20-point outings, and ended the season with eight consecutive double-digit scoring efforts.

It all sounds impressive, but Cole is determined to get better.

After all, the five WNBA contract offers she had following the 2022 AU campaign pale in comparison to this year's goal.

"This year I just want to focus on getting 12 – all 12 – so that I can make a decision I want to make, and make the right decision," said Cole, who ranked third in the league with 91 assists. "I just want to be part of an organization that wants me."

Last year she chose to attend the Connecticut Sun's camp and was cut before the regular season.

Cole said if she would have gotten only one contract after the inaugural AU season, rather than five, she may have been more disappointed. But she had her pick and chose to go to training camp in Connecticut.

As the Sun found their way to the WNBA Finals with three other AU alum – Courtney Williams, DiJonai Carrington and Odyssey Sims – Cole was thinking ahead to this season, and the opportunities she's planning on making for herself.

"I felt like I could have definitely helped out in the finals," Cole said confidently. "I felt like I could have definitely helped that team."

Raising her caliber of play during the 2022 AU season opened the eyes of GMs and coaches in the WNBA because her agent was contacted near the end WNBA's regular season, by teams who were interested in bringing her on in the event they'd make a playoff run.

And rather than allow rejection to penetrate her mental game, she used it as fuel to remind her at the very least she was sought after.

"I think it gave me validation," Cole said. "I can always believe in myself, but it showed me the world believed in me and also showed me I can play with the best. I know my time will come.

"I want to get all 12."

LEXIE HULL REFLECTS ON THE IMPACT OF TWIN LACIE ON HER BASKETBALL CAREER

By Jade Thomas
January 31, 2023

Alexa, play "Twin" by Roddy Ricch.

No bond is naturally stronger than twins, especially identical twins. Lexie and Lacie Hull took their bond to another level and won a National Championship together at one of the best colleges for women's basketball.

"Our entire lives we've always done everything together," said Lexie, who spent her rookie campaign with the WNBA's Indiana Fever and recently joined the 2023 Athletes Unlimited Basketball roster. "Starting off with basketball in kindergarten, we played together. We played soccer together; played volleyball together. Every single day."

Since the second grade, the Hull sisters were also each other's biggest competitors. They became so competitive that their mother Jaime made them split up at school, so they were in different classes all throughout elementary school.

"I think something that a lot of people don't know is that my dad is also a twin," Lexie said.

"Him having a twin growing up I think led him to raising us with a twin's mindset if that makes sense," Lacie added. "He understood the inherent competition we would feel doing anything against each other."

It was their competitive spirit that helped them become skilled basketball players.

"It made us that much better," Lexie said. "If one of us was outside practicing ball handling or shooting on our hoop, we heard the ball outside and the other one came out. We wouldn't let the other one try to get ahead."

When college recruitment began, their goal was to play together as they always had, and garnered interest from the same schools.

The pair chose Stanford, where they went on to win an NCAA Championship in 2021. But, when their time at Stanford was almost over, they knew that their future plans were taking them their separate ways.

"In the fall of our senior year, we knew that our paths were going to change and that our relationship with basketball was going to change," Lexie said. "So it wasn't a big shocking event, it kind of just happened that way."

Lexie was drafted sixth overall in the 2022 WNBA Draft by the Fever, while Lacie began her career at eBay in Austin, Texas.

It was an adjustment for the duo, as their bond shifted away from the physical presence they always had to communicating in every other way.

"Now, we talk with each other on every form of communication—FaceTime, phone calls, text, Snapchat, Instagram DMs, Tik Tok DMs, you name it," Lacie said. "She is top 3 on my Snapchat best friends list constantly, something I would never have guessed when we were in college or growing up together."

It wasn't the only transition Lexie faced as she took the court in her first professional season.

"The transition from college to the WNBA was harder [than high school to college] for me because of all of those times where I would've leaned on someone or talked to someone who understood," Lexie said. "I didn't have that as readily available so it definitely was a harder transition."

In her rookie campaign, Lexie averaged 12.8 minutes, 3.8 points and 1.5 rebounds per game. As the season progressed, so did she, culminating the season with four of her best games where she averaged 12 points, 3.3 rebounds and 29.75 minutes per game.

Now, Lexie heads to Dallas, Texas for the second AU Basketball season and while her sister may no longer be on the court alongside her, she won't be far – Austin is just four hours away.

"It's so exciting that she will just be a drive away," Lacie said. "I look forward to being able to support [her] in person!"

"I definitely wouldn't be anywhere near the person or basketball-wise, the player I am without growing up with her," Lexie said. "We pushed each other into the people that we are."

BURKHOLDER EMBRACES NEW ROLE AS BASKETBALL PEC MEMBER

By W.G. Ramirez
February 2, 2023

The inaugural Athletes Unlimited Basketball season had familiar names and faces to start the season, and players who gained popularity by the end of the campaign.

Starring in their shadows were players who made their mark every game, and off the court, bonding with everyone involved in the league.

For Kirby Burkholder, her presence and influence were never forgotten.

"Kirby is just a light," Natasha Cloud said. "She's so talented on the court, like a silent assassin, and she has so much passion for the game and for AU."

So much passion, that Burkholder was a slam dunk when it came time to fill vacancies on the Player Executive Committee (PEC).

"She makes our PEC complete," Cloud said. "Something also that I love about Kirby is her ability to be able to put herself in someone else's shoes which is why I think she's so essential in making decisions that are gonna benefit our league and our players' experiences."

Burkholder, who placed 28th on the leaderboard with 2,767 points, said she is ready for year two of AU Hoops after skipping a trip overseas for the first time in nine years. The former three-time all-Colonial Athletic Association selection is also excited for the opportunity to have a voice for the 44 athletes who will play in Dallas later this month.

"This year is kind of a little more comfortable, you know, a little more how it works, what's going on," Burkholder said. "I know a lot of the returning players so I'm excited because it's a really cool league. And I'm just excited to get back out on the court a little bit."

Burkholder said she's spent parts of the offseason still explaining to some exactly what AU Hoops is about, but has also felt nothing less than positive vibes generated from the first season, and excitement from others for the upcoming campaign.

Becoming a part of the PEC has opened her eyes a bit more to just how visible the league has become, and what's involved in so many other aspects of it.

"I think the way Athletes Unlimited has just produced everything, highlights everything, and kind of put out these games that everyone wanted to be a part of," said Burkholder, who recorded 200 or more points in five games, including a season-high 381-point performance for Team Hawkins in the third week of the season. "I've had a lot of people contact me and just contact the PEC in general, just wanting to be a part if it works out with their schedule."

Burkholder's offseason also included time spent at the 2022 USA Basketball 3X Nationals, joining Nikki Greene, Taj Cole and Essence Carson on a squad that represented Athletes Unlimited, providing more exposure by bringing the brand to Springfield, Mass.

Though she said it was a last-minute surprise, she was proud to bring AU Hoops to the USA umbrella and actually practice and train with the national team.

"That was another cool experience," Burkholder said. "It's definitely tough. It's another side of basketball that's a little bit different and it takes a different stamina to play. But being able to be with three people I was familiar with, we had a really good time just competing. And I think, you know, Athletes Unlimited was kind of using that as a trial to see where they can maybe go with that in the future."

"It'd be cool to see athletes and women be able to produce a team that could compete in the future of those big tournaments and things like that."

Interestingly enough, Burkholder said she's been learning a different side to the game she's played most of her life, as she's been refereeing for the past two-plus years.

It's an aspect she said has been an entirely different world, in terms of learning and figuring out things from an officiating standpoint.

"In my mind, it hasn't been easy to kind of change the life you've lived for almost a decade plus," she said. "So refereeing is something unexpected that I've gotten to enjoy. And then I'm also still kind of figuring out what is that other piece I'm going to pair with it, which is where I like to use a sports recreation management type of a role."

Which, again, is why she fits in nicely with the PEC.

"Kirby was an easy choice for the PEC because we'd already seen her be a great teammate on the court so she already had our respect," Sydney Colson said. "You can always count on her to be present and attentive in our weekly meetings and she's willing to speak up if she has a different opinion than the group."

Now, as she prepares for the second season, though winning nightly, weekly, and overall remains the goal, she is comfortable transitioning to a veteran, or, mentorship role.

"Anything that helps Athletes Unlimited," Burkholder said. "It is interesting as your career kind of changes. It's a great opportunity to do that."

ESSENCE: BASKETBALL PLAYER, MUSICIAN, PHILANTHROPIST

By Jade Thomas
February 10, 2023

With the evolution of entertainment in and around sports, athletes have been taking on new opportunities.

Essence Carson embodies this newfound freedom.

Essence, a 13-year WNBA veteran who was a 2011 WNBA All-Star and 2016 champion, is ready for her second year with Athletes Unlimited.

But being an athlete is just one of the unique things that Essence does. Add a philanthropist, musician, speaker, and senior manager to that list as well.

Essence took a liking to music at a very young age. Growing up in New Jersey, her grandparents and aunt would always play music around the house. Although her grandma insisted on playing the same 'broken' piano, Essence loved the way music made her feel.

"[Music] will always evoke some sort of emotion, and that made me feel good," Essence said. "It felt relatable...it felt like they were talking about my life and where I'm from. And then there are other songs where it talks about a life that you aspire to have one day."

While music has always been a part of Essence's life, she felt outside pressure to solely focus on one interest.

"When I was young, many people didn't understand how you could focus on two different passions," Essence said. "So, to combat that, I kept both worlds separate and it just kind of became a thing. It got to a point where I was tired of being these two different people. It's exhausting being one person in today's world, so I was tired of being two different people."

To the public eye, basketball was the spotlight of Essence's life; but Essence never stopped pursuing music. In 2013, she showcased her work and released her first album called "Broken Diary."

Essence expressed that this first album was special to her as it was her way of opening up to everyone. While she now has a successful music and basketball career, the NIL was not around when she was in college. When asked if she wished it was, she laughed.

"Man, absolutely...I definitely would have benefited from it, but it is what it is, it wasn't my time."

Essence is now retired from the WNBA, but didn't stay away from professional basketball entirely as she is back for another season with AU after finishing season 1 No. 18 on the leaderboard with 3,350 points.

Along with music, Essence has been finding ways to give back. She joined a campaign called Operation Warm.

"Operation Warm happens to be able to provide coats for children, and since New Jersey is within the northeast of the United States, it gets pretty cold, especially during the winter-time," Essence said. "You would hate to see any of the kids that weren't in the position to access that stuff, and you want to ensure that they have a means, and that means is making sure that they're warm during the winter."

Essence stresses the importance of giving back to the community. Joining this cause and raising money for these kids is near and dear to her heart.

In addition to joining community projects, Essence has been working on her own projects as well.

She recently completed an EP about her thoughts and reflections during the pandemic. The release date is to be announced, but Essence explained that it is completed and will be dropping soon.

While Essence has been enjoying life, she also has found new power and a sense of completeness. Recently, she changed her artist and producer name from 'Essence Carson' to just 'Essence.'

"I put a period at the end of Essence for a specific reason. It's more complete with a period at the end. It's whole. It represents the completion and being completely fulfilled with who I am — basketball player, musician, philanthropist, and so on."

So, 'Essence.' it is.

CALIYA ROBINSON SETS EYES ON NEW OPPORTUNITY WITH AU BASKETBALL

By W.G. Ramirez
February 17, 2023

When Caliya Robinson was barely into her high school years, she faced adversity no young person should endure.

Robinson almost lost her mother, Terri Johnson.

Twice.

Robinson's mother was diagnosed with lupus and it severely took a toll on her body, overwhelming her bones and crippling her to the point she could barely walk.

Suffice to say, Robinson's appreciation for life goes without saying.

Thus, to this day, Robinson does what she can to either sit with Johnson and spend time, take her on walks and tend to her when she's not on the court.

The first-year Athletes Unlimited-signee has been graced with her mother's presence for two basketball games, two very important occasions, in the state championship for McEachern High School in Marietta, Georgia, and on Senior Night at Georgia.

So, since flying is hard on Robinson's mother, and it's a rather long drive to Dallas, she'll watch her daughter on televised and streamed games.

After all, she's Robinson's No. 1 fan.

"She supports everything I do no matter what it is, as long as I'm happy with it," Robinson said.

Though playing overseas and the time differential made it difficult to watch games that were late at night wherever she may have been playing, Robinson said last season she had her eye on Athletes Unlimited, which this season has her excited for her turn in the league and any possibilities that would result from a successful season.

"It's honestly just an exciting feeling, because you just never get the opportunities that come of it," Robinson said.

That said, while many who play overseas or who played in Athletes Unlimited last season hope for a shot at the WNBA, Robinson has a relatively different mindset for this Spring.

"I really just want to come in and enjoy playing again and be able to play without all that stress," she said. "Right now, if the opportunity is given, I'm gonna take it. But if not, I'm not gonna let that get me down."

Of all the players who star in both the WNBA and Athletes Unlimited, newly signed Chicago Sky Courtney Williams is Robinson's favorite.

"I just love her energy and watching her play – it's crazy fun, the excitement," Robinson said. "When she gets the ball I know she's gonna go crazy."

Though the two have never met, Williams invited Robinson to some Atlanta runs. Robinson, however, couldn't make it because she was overseas. The thought of meeting her and potentially playing alongside the veteran adds to her anticipation.

Being close with Taj Cole from their days together at the University of Georgia, adds to the anticipation of joining the 44-player league.

Robinson's former Bulldog teammate – and AU fan favorite – has told her to be herself and bring her all while helping to smooth out any nerves she originally had once Robinson committed to her first season.

"Don't be afraid, just come out there and play ... because everyone who is there is just so welcoming and it's gonna be a great experience for me," Robinson said.

And when Cole said "bring you" to Robinson, what does that mean Athletes Unlimited fans can expect?

Robinson said a shot blocker who can run the floor and facilitate things when needed, providing an all around game for a league where the individuals certainly benefit from a diverse game.

"I think I'll mix well, get along with everyone and learn from some of the best," Robinson said. "And in the end, everyone will get a chance to see what I'm capable of while learning a little more about me, both on and off the court."

KIERSTAN BELL CONTINUES FIRST PRO YEAR WITH AU HOOPS

By W.G. Ramirez
February 22, 2023

As the inaugural 2023 Athletes Unlimited Basketball Draft got underway, host Jade Hewitt announced her way around the Week 1 captains and told viewers second-year star Taj Cole had the league's best smile.

Cole passed the baton in the fifth round, as she drafted Player Executive Committee member Sydney Colson, saying the veteran hooper flashed AU Hoops' best pearly whites.

Wait'll they get a load of AU rookie Kierstan Bell.

With a humble swag, brash confidence, an infectious personality and electrifying energy, Bell is sure to steal the hearts of AU fans when she hits them with her dazzling smile.

"She is a joy," WNBA star A'ja Wilson said during media day in 2022, not too long after Bell was drafted 11th overall by the Las Vegas Aces. "She's always joking, cracking jokes, and she is who she is and what I love about it, she doesn't try to be anybody. She just does her thing. And that's what I love the most. And that's a sign of a good rookie. She knows who she is. She has that swag to her."

Comfortable in her own skin and authentically herself, a pair of traits that gave her a chance to become part of the Aces, they're the same attributes that will allow her to thrive among the 40-plus other athletes who are set to embark on season two of AU Hoops.

Not to mention the fact she can play basketball.

Bell holds records at Florida Gulf Coast with her 23.6 career scoring average, 23 career double-double games and is one of three players in program history with 100 or more career blocked shots (103).

Quiet as it's kept, Bell has a chance to steal some headlines thanks to her keen ability to hybrid from someone who can run the floor, a shooter who can bury from long range, or being a dominating paint presence. Whether she's scoring, rebounding, blocking shots, dishing assists, or clearing space for her teammates, Bell is the consummate professional who didn't look like a rookie during the Aces' championship run and won't look like one as she debuts on Team Orange with captain Odyssey Sims.

"I just wanted to be a part of something that is fun, and rapid play and compete," said Bell, who was taken in the fourth round by Sims, ironically, once again 11th overall in the entire draft.

SOMETHING NEW

Bell admitted she was unaware of Athletes Unlimited at the start of last season, but after seeing several people share stories and posts on social media, she became intrigued and was tuning into games by the second half of the season.

"I saw how much fun everybody had on social media, all the things that was going on," said Bell, the Atlantic Sun Player of the Year in her final year of college. "You got Syd, you got Tasha (Cloud), you got Courtney (Williams) – people that play in the WNBA – they're playing in another league, but just having fun and just playing basketball and it's a different type of system."

Knowing points can be taken from your individual scorecard didn't intimidate her – there's that confidence – while knowing her strongest attributes on the court could help her creep up the leaderboard and potentially raise money for her cause (The Shaquille O'Neal Foundation), not to mention bonuses for herself, had her hooked on becoming a part of AU Hoops.

Bell's ability to recognize situations on the court faster than anyone else and then react, her versatility of being able to transition from one place to the next, make the right reads in those situations, and most importantly doing those things in an efficient manner is what will make her a weekly threat on the player leaderboard.

"Bell is fearless," Aces star Kelsey Plum said last May. "I think as a rookie you come in, that's one of the biggest hurdles to get over, not being afraid at the moment because it can be overwhelming. There's so many things coming at you from your new offense, all this new personnel, to defensively who you're guarding, all these changes on the fly, adjustments on the fly. I just love Bell's mentality."

RIGHT MINDSET

Bell, the first player to be named the Becky Hammon Mid-Major Player of the Year in back-to-back seasons at FGCU, said she is simply approaching her rookie year in AU Hoops the same way she approached her rookie campaign in the WNBA.

She learned how to be a team player, cheering for starters like Wilson, Plum, Chelsea Gray and Jackie Young, rather than being the star of the team.

"You're a rookie coming into the league, not sure if you're gonna be playing, not sure if you're gonna be getting any minutes, just not knowing," she said. "So when I came into training camp the thing that I took was just – be me. That's how I got into the league, how I got drafted, was just being myself and being confident in who I am as a basketball player."

"And then when I came into the game, still lit it up, still played my game. It's fun when you have fans and the organization still likes you even when you don't get in the game. And that's what it all comes down to, is just having fun."

And while she's looking forward to getting to know everyone in her new basketball family, Bell said she's most looking forward to playing with, or against, the other WNBA players so she can gain knowledge from them. Whether it's on-court technique, off-court tendencies, mental approaches to the game, Bell wants to cling to anything that will continue to grow her game.

"It's good to have people that played in the WNBA that you're gonna be competing against, that's just better competition on the floor," said Bell, who recently played with Adelaide in the Australian Basketball League. "Having people here, where I can learn from, and also compete against, to show how good I am, that's what I'm most looking forward to."

While in Dallas, and not on the court, Bell said she's looking forward to taking in some Mavericks games and seeing Kyrie Irving, and eating at Dallas' top seafood and soul food spots.

More importantly, it's the bonds she's heard so much about from the inaugural season in Las Vegas that she's looking forward to experiencing.

"I'm just trying to connect with other athletes and see what they like to do outside of basketball, just continue to build relationships," she added. "Other than that just really here to hoop man."

THE CAPTAIN'S JOURNAL: COURTNEY WILLIAMS

By Savanna Collins
February 24, 2023

Courtney Williams doesn't get what all the fuss is about.

Everyone warned her that being a captain would be stressful, taxing. But she's been "smooth" throughout the entire process. Does someone who wears shades inside on Draft Day seem disturbed?

Didn't think so.

The collected Captain Court — or should I say GM Court — isn't this cool by chance. She put in the time to be ready to make those 10 picks.

"I thought I would meet with her in the morning for the draft," Pokey Chatman, Williams' facilitator for the week, said. "But she said, 'Nope! I'll meet you downstairs in the lobby.' This is about 11:15," Chatman emphasized, "P.M."

When Chatman got there, Williams was organized. She had a depth chart on hand. Even a practice plan was in place for the team she hadn't drafted yet.

THE DRAFT

Williams knew what she wanted sitting in the blue chair, ready to select her team: experience.

"Everybody is coming with different sets, different plays, different defensive schemes. So I wanted players that I knew would just catch on right away," Williams explained.

There were some key picks that gave the captain the veteran mentality she was seeking.

Forward Theresa Plaisance has nine years under her belt in the WNBA and, most recently, a 2022 title with the Las Vegas Aces in her resume. Guard Layshia Clarendon also has nine years in the league and international experience with Team USA in their repertoire. (Clarendon alternately uses they, she, and he pronouns.) Then you have Isabelle Harrison, who Williams competed with multiple weeks last season. Harrison was a top-four finisher on the leaderboard and Defensive Player of the Year.

The squad was assembled.

PRACTICE

Practice with Williams' crew was a balance of pushing themselves hard enough to get game-ready, having fun and establishing chemistry on the floor.

That could probably be easily summarized with a common phrase from the captain, "Let's get after it."

Monday was dedicated to getting up and down to get their conditioning right because it still gave the team three full days to recover. Williams described it as similar to the first day of training camp. The next two days were largely committed "to [figuring] out that flow of us playing with each other."

Williams may reject the idea of her being a coach — according to her she's too impatient — but Chatman sees how she goes beyond just managing her team.

"To me, it's her teaching points once she gets the captain's stuff out of the way," Chatman praised. "When you come to practice [she's] talking to younger players or people at different positions. She understands the totality of the game, not just her position."

GAME DAY

The 2023 season of Athletes Unlimited Basketball opened up with Team Sims vs. Team Williams. Season openers are usually exciting but this game turned out to be an overtime thriller.

The Blue squad held the lead most of the game, at one point by 11, but Team Sims went on a 7-2 run to start the fourth quarter and then surged on a 25-12 run to pull ahead.

After falling behind by as many as 11, Team Sims made a charge in the fourth quarter and got back into the game by using scoring runs of 7-2 to start the final period and a 25-12 later in the quarter to take a two-point lead late in the game. Regulation tied at 86 all.

Williams scored six of her team's 10 points in overtime to help them to a 96-93 win over Team Orange. And those vets that Williams built her team around? They came through. Harrison led the team with 23 points, while Plaisance had 18 points, and Clarendon had 10.

After the game, Williams said her biggest takeaway about this team is their resilience.

"They came back and they went on a nice run. We went into overtime but we didn't put our heads down. We kept playing and we came out with the win."

Stat sheet in hand, Williams said what stood out to her about the team on paper were boards and free throws. They out-rebounded Team Orange 55-44 and hit 10 out of 11 free throws — crucial in a game won by just a handful of points.

What might be most drastic and impressive on the final box score is a tiny statistic, usually in the bottom right corner. It's the bench production of both teams.

Team Blue's bench: 33. Team Orange's bench: 0.

That wasn't lost on the captain. It was that aspect of her team she spoke most excitedly about.

"This just shows it's not just about your starting five," Williams said. "You need people that's gonna come in and when they come in it doesn't lower the momentum... our bench was huge for us."

Williams starts the weekend and her first-ever captainship with a dub. Next on the schedule is Team Cloud at 8:30 p.m. ET / 7:30 p.m. CT on Friday.

So long as you don't call her coach, you can call her GM Court from here on out.

ODYSSEY SIMS HAPPY TO PLAY IN OWN BACKYARD WITH AU HOOPS

By Stephen Hunt
February 27, 2023

Roots are important to Odyssey Sims, who was born and raised in Dallas-area suburb Irving, where she starred at MacArthur High School and was national high school player of the year in 2010.

Sims then starred at Baylor, which she helped win a national championship in 2012, and then professionally in the WNBA and overseas. As a pro, she has played near her hometown only once, in 2016 with the WNBA's Dallas Wings in their first season after relocating from Tulsa.

So, when the opportunity to again play in the Dallas area, where she continues to call home, arose with Athletes Unlimited in 2023, she intended to take full advantage of such a great opportunity.

"Being at home is always a plus. I have family and friends coming to watch," Sims said. "I have a lot of people in the stands. I'm excited just like they're excited."

Another reason she's ecstatic over returning to AU and playing before friends and family at Fair Park Coliseum is because of the great experience she had during AU's inaugural season of basketball in Las Vegas in 2022.

"Coming off year one, think everybody enjoyed themselves. Just to see familiar faces and new faces, I'm excited," Sims said. "I think the talent level is a little better than what we had last year. I'm excited to see what these young ones can do that I'm not familiar with and of course to play alongside some of the seasoned veterans."

Last season, she played 15 games and averaged 20.7 points, 5.4 rebounds, 5.3 assists, and 1.1 steals. Sims amassed 5,043 total points, sixth-most among all players and delivered two 30-point games.

Sims went 6-9 overall and was 1-5 as a captain but felt her previous experience as a captain would serve her well this time around.

"This year, I've got a little more knowledge after going through it last year and being captain three times. I think I've kind of got the hang of it," she said. "Last year being the first year, we were stuck on picking our friends, people that we know."

"Every captain has a different style of play and when you have a style you like, that's the unique part, being able to pick the players that you want to play with, that you know can play how you want to play. Personally, I think I did a better job this year because I like to run. The team I have this (first) week, Team Orange, I'm surrounded with shooters, one through five. Even my bench, they can shoot it. I think that's great."

Indeed, her experience did serve her well as Sims led her team to a 2-1 opening weekend, which helped her secure the No. 1 captain's position for Week 2.

This season, Sims is playing for the One Love Foundation, a national non-profit organization which seeks to end relationship abuse.

"Well, it's all about relationships. Times are changing," she said. "You hear a lot more about violence in relationships like physical altercations, verbal abuse. That's why One Love is very important. It's a great foundation because it teaches us all to love and to love each other from the standpoint of we're all human and have things going on but how to deal with anger, depression, sadness. There's a way to deal with it when you're in a relationship and of course when you're by yourself."

When asked what impressed her most about year one of AU Basketball, Sims cited those working behind the scenes to make the league such a great destination for top players like herself.

"Credit to the AU staff, they've done a great job all-around of making sure we have everything we need, that we're taken care of. We always have somebody we can reach out to for anything," she said. "That's always a plus. The staff is amazing. I'm loving what they're doing with AU and hope they keep it in Dallas for years to come."

Basketball has been central in Sims' life for as long as she can remember, but there is another sport she enjoys, bowling, an activity also known to bring out her celebrated competitive fire.

"I'm competitive in everything I do. I hate to lose. I've been competitive since I was young," she said. "Bowling is therapeutic to me. I enjoy going with my friends. It's fun to do something different outside of what you normally do."

"We play basketball all day all year around, so it's nice to do something like go to the movies, go to Main Event. I have a two-year-old son [Jaiden]. He keeps me busy, but when it's warm outside I take him to the park. Yeah, just anything I can do to just relax, have fun, and be around the ones I love [is great]."

'I LOVE THE EXPERIENCE SO FAR': JORDIN CANADA SETTLING INTO FIRST AU SEASON

By W.G. Ramirez
March 1, 2023

Playing in Hungary in 2022, veteran Jordin Canada started seeing marketing and social-media posts about Athletes Unlimited.

In turn, she started watching the inaugural AU Basketball season and was immediately impressed.

Her intrigue grew stronger when she returned to the States for the WNBA campaign with the Los Angeles Sparks, and teammate and Player Executive Committee-member Lexie Brown filled her in even further on Athletes Unlimited.

"I was like, 'Oh, I would love to be a part of this,'" Canada said.

Thus, Canada's agent got in touch with AU director of sport (basketball) Ilene Hauser, a meeting ensued, and fast forward to now, both the fifth-year pro and second-year league are benefitting from one another.

"I love being here, I love the experience so far," Canada said. "All the girls have been super welcoming, and super nice. And even the staff and everybody that's involved in AU, it's just been a great time so far."

Canada scored 21 points in her league debut to lead Team Cloud to a 78-72 win over Team Cole on opening night, and earned a pair of game honors in her first two games, both as the No. 2 MVP. She finished her first week 13th overall on the leaderboard, with 938 points.

That first-week performance came as no surprise to captain Odyssey Sims, who was quick to draft Canada first for her Week 2 roster.

"Great player, crafty ... somebody that likes to play fast like I do, will get down and guard anybody you need her to – her presence is always felt," Sims said. "I was gonna pick her last week but ... she was taken. This was an opportunity I couldn't pass up. I was hoping she wouldn't get picked and she didn't so ... I'm excited. Definitely excited to play with her this week."

For Canada, it's just the beginning.

LONG-TERM PLAN

After a few stints overseas, Canada wasn't a fan of the travel and knew she wanted to spend an entire year in the States. She had already decided she was going to take a break.

Athletes Unlimited simply became the perfect elixir to satisfy her offseason crave for a basketball court and decent competition.

Considering the format, and the opportunity to play against and alongside different players every week, Canada sees the league as an alternate way to develop her game than playing overseas or in the WNBA. It's not as if Canada isn't confident in her game or she's forgotten how to shoot the ball, her numbers speak for themselves, she just knows there's always room for improvement.

"You can always get better, and I think here AU has done a great job of having skill development coaches to help us out with not just only playing, but working on our game. For me, I always still want to perfect my game," Canada said. "I know I can shoot the ball, but it's just learning how to take the right shots at the right moments and being confident in that, and I think AU has definitely helped me with that."

Though her fans might not believe it based on her style of play, whether she's locking down opponents or stroking mid-range jumpers with relative ease, Canada admits she's a bit of an introvert. She's hoping AU will help rekindle the confidence and swagger she once displayed during her college days at UCLA, and possibly grow out of the timid professional she's become.

"I think sometimes you kind of get lost when you become a professional athlete, you kind of think of it as a job, although you still love the game," Canada said. "It becomes super serious sometimes and you kind of lose that aspect of the love that you have for it when you were a kid and you were playing in AAU. This is the feeling I get when I'm playing in AU is that I feel like I'm back in AAU, like when I was a kid and I'm playing, having a good time."

The empowerment of 43 other women has been the common theme since the league's inception. It's an intangible that's encapsulated Canada since arriving in Dallas, and allowed her to step outside her comfort zone while establishing friendships with people she might not have even spoke to in the WNBA, or ladies she wouldn't have met otherwise.

"And I think in the years to come, it'll grow and I think a lot more people will want to be involved, which will make it even better," Canada said. "It's a different dynamic. I love how they have the dynamic of the league where every week you're playing with different people. I think that's a cool idea, something that I've never seen before, so it's pretty interesting."

HOMETOWN HERO

It's been a while since the Los Angeles Sparks have had a chance to boast a true hometown hero, the most notable probably former WNBA great Lisa Leslie, who was born in Compton.

Given her impeccable credentials, her charismatic personality and her infectious charm, Canada is well on her way to becoming Los Angeles' next great hometown hero.

Canada was born in Los Angeles, was a McDonald's All-American after starring at Windward High School and was a two-time Pac-12 Defensive Player of the Year at UCLA.

After starting her career in Seattle, and winning a pair of championships alongside the great Sue Bird with the Storm, Canada is approaching her second season with her hometown Sparks.

And there's much more than wanting to bring a championship back to Los Angeles.

Which is why she's playing for the Los Angeles Ronald McDonald House, which she's been working with the past couple of months, hoping to grow a relationship with it while giving back to the same community where she fell in love in basketball.

"Just being able to give back to children and families who are not as fortunate as I am ... I think it's a great opportunity for me to do something different and to give back to the families and children who are severely ill and need a lot of help," Canada said. "I think Ronald McDonald is doing an excellent job of providing housing and food and everything that they need for families to stay there cost free, I think that's amazing. And so that's something that I want to be a part of."

It's also provided yet another bonding moment with her new AU family, as she's come to learn about other players, the charities they're playing for, and the causes that have touched their hearts.

"Being able to just meet people and then also getting (to) just hear stories about why they decided to play," Canada said. "I think that's a great thing as well."

"Everything that I thought it would be is exactly what it is, and even more than I expected to be honest – I love that about AU."

THE CAPTAIN'S JOURNAL: NALYSSA SMITH

By Savanna Collins
March 2, 2023

The final buzzer sounds on Sunday night in Fair Park Coliseum and NaLyssa Smith is still sweating after her third consecutive double-double.

She may not know it yet, but she's at the top of the leaderboard. She and her teammates head to the iPads to cast their MVP votes to reward those who made the biggest impact in the game. Smith is voted MVP 2 for +60 points and it's locked in: she's going to be captain of the Blue team in Week 2.

She quickly changes out of her uniform and heads to the car because, in the next hour, she'll pick the team that will don her name.

It's the quickest turnaround a group of Athletes Unlimited captains has ever had with little time to strategize and mull over picks with their facilitator.

So as Smith drives the 25-minute trip to the studio where the draft is live-streamed, she decides one thing for certain: she's going to get Kelsey Mitchell.

"Because it was such a short week she wanted to get people she was comfortable with," Smith's facilitator Zak Buncik said. Mitchell is a given, they went 2-1 together during Week 1 and are teammates on the WNBA's Indiana Fever.

Smith went on to draft two more teammates from her Week 1 group and as she looks at her roster, she's excited.

"I picked a team that knows how to run, knows how to be aggressive," Smith said after the draft. Her only regret is not going to get Lexie Hull, the third member of the Fever squad, before Odyssey Sims scooped her in the third round.

Comfortability is a recurring theme between Smith and Buncik when they discuss the week. After playing three games in four days, the players needed rest and most teams, including Smith's, took Monday off from practice.

That left the captain and her facilitator to answer the question, "How quickly can we mesh on a one-day turnaround?"

Turns out for this group, very well.

Smith describes herself as a laid-back captain and she's right. She casually guides practice along with Buncik on Tuesday and her easy going attitude leaves space for everyone on the team to give input.

Guard Sydney Colson is directing the traffic of the offense as they install plays. DiJonai Carrington is injured but pressuring her team to focus on defense from the side. Then, Kelsey Mitchell suggests an option, a double brush that really gets everyone really excited.

What started as a quiet practice led by a fairly quiet captain had gotten much louder in two hours.

"You gonna see a lot of times where I'm not the main one talking in the circle 'cause I let them, you know, do what you gotta do," Smith explained. "We're all pros so I love having help from everybody else."

STEPPING OUT OF THE COMFORT ZONE

Technically, Smith isn't a first-time captain.

Although in the official AU record books this is the first-ever team she's led, she was a captain during the scrimmage games. Buncik was her facilitator for those games too and said this second time around Smith has embraced the role differently.

"The first week she just kind of wanted to step away from it and just play. This week she came in with a plan of what she wanted to do offensively and defensively which was really good to see from her."

The experience is pushing Smith, requiring more from her than just playing. She's not usually one to tell her teammates what to do but now as a captain she's asked to draw up plays, make subs, and corrections.

"I never wanted to coach in my life either, so it's kind of new to me," Smith said. "But I feel like it's something I could add to my little arsenal."

LETTING THE GAME SPEAK FOR ITSELF

What Smith assembled in just three days with her team withstood a challenge that would crumble others.

They opened up the series on Wednesday night vs. Team Harrison and trailed by 10 in the fourth quarter. Calls weren't exactly going their way and they could have given to the frustration.

Instead, the veterans Smith entrusted and empowered during practice stepped up. The team went on a 12-0 run to come back and take over.

Colson scored a season-high 16 points with a game-high seven assists and three steals. Mitchell dropped 20, plus she hit a three from the corner to give the team the lead with just 31.1 seconds left.

Isabelle Harrison cut the game to 85-84 but down the line with 8 seconds left, Mitchell drew a foul and split two free throws for a two-point advantage.

Team Smith had clawed back and won the game.

"Regardless of the score, we all just stuck together. There were no pointing fingers, there was no blaming. Nobody. We all collectively just came together and wanted to win," Smith said in the postgame interview.

Smith was asked in that interview how it felt when the team looked at her in the final moments but she said they weren't looking at her, they were looking at the vets.

"The vets told them what to do. They kind of said, 'Keep punching in to Lyss, she's having success.' So I'm glad that I didn't disappoint them."

How could she have disappointed them? She put up 28 points and 12 rebounds. Smith went to the free throw line a league-record 11 times and hit 12 out of 15 shots from the stripe. It was her fourth straight double-double and she's the only AU athlete to ever start her season with that stat streak.

It's clear in just four days following Smith as a captain that she's begun to master what many who are asked to lead face: knowing when to step up and when to step back. And if there's one aspect Smith has yet to struggle with at AU so far, it's leading by example.

Smith's teammates rally around her game on the floor. Busting for rebounds, driving to the hoop regardless of any bodies along the way.

She came to AU looking to build her leadership skills and she's found it. When asked if she's been tested in the ways she expected Smith said, "Oh absolutely."

"This game was a big one. It showed how you just gotta keep pushing, keep talking."

SHINE, GRIND, HUSTLE: THERESA PLAISANCE BRINGS INFECTIOUS VIBES TO AU HOOPS

By W.G. Ramirez
March 8, 2023

*"It was trials and tribulations on the road to chasing that paper.
Seen so many faces, been so many places, caught some cases
Crazy thing is, out of all life done taught me
Before you get one win, you gotta take a thousand losses"*

Rod Wave's lyrics can penetrate souls when he rhythmically talks of life, love, tragedy, adversity... everyday occurrences everyone experiences at some point. Disappear into his music, and he will flow into your heart with at least one of his songs.

For some, more than others.

For 30-year-old Theresa Plaisance, the words run deep. Some of them fittingly into her nine-year professional career.

She's been shuffled around the WNBA as a reliable journeywoman, she's recovered from a torn ACL, and she not only endured a career-threatening back surgery but survived a second one shortly thereafter that threatened her life.

And yet through it all, there is nothing but positive vibes that emit from the New Orleans native, who's quite simply one of the most jovial and infectious players among the 44 women in Dallas for the second season of Athletes Unlimited Basketball.

"She just knows how to make the mood light and I think that's what's so special about her and why she's remained in the W for so long," Isabelle Harrison said. "She can go into any locker room and adapt and I love that. I'm really happy that she gets to be shown in AU and really just tell her story the way that it needs to be told."

When Harrison was shipped to Dallas from the Las Vegas Aces in 2019, it was Plaisance who first reached out to her then-newest teammate to make her feel welcome.

"And she just remained the same all these years," Harrison added.

ISSUES AND PAIN

*Through all of the issues and all of the pain
They say sun shines after it rains*

Plaisance worked hard to return from ACL surgery in 2017, while she was still with the Dallas Wings, but also at a time she wasn't sure what to expect from the procedure.

What she learned about the recovery process was how much she put into it would be exactly what she'd get out of it. If not more.

It was an invaluable lesson at the time, one she didn't know she'd need when she was told she would need reconstructive surgery on her back.

A microdiscectomy is a surgical procedure for the relief of pain and other symptoms that occur when a herniated disc in the spine presses on an adjacent nerve root.

But Plaisance knew that whenever people say back surgery, there's the, 'Ooh, yikes,' factor. For her, she had that lesson to lean on.

And with faith in her surgeon, she was adamant to get back on the court, knowing she could get to a place where she would be pain-free.

"I just had to put my mind, put my body, and put my heart into what I really wanted to do," she said. "I couldn't keep going the way that I was going. And when you have something like back surgery, it really helps you open your eyes to either wanting to have your career continue, or this could be the end of the road."

The procedure and recovery are generally considered routine and might be compared to having a meniscus cleaned up in the knee. But for Plaisance, it was the aftermath that became scary. Two weeks later an infection just millimeters away from her spinal canal immediately forced her back on the surgery table, otherwise, there was going "to be some bad news."

Thus, the process started over, which for back surgery, can be very mentally draining with nothing to do besides stand up or lay down.

"When you have back surgery as a normal human being, you're just getting to a place where you can be comfortable every day," Plaisance said. "When you have back surgery as a professional athlete, you have to get to that place and then push your body even further to be a professional athlete. To hit the floor, to cut, to be able to react. It was a learning experience of how I need to treat my body. I'm now well aware of the maintenance I require, the diet that's required. Everything kind of helped me tune up a little bit. You just learn a lot about yourself through injury. And I feel like I came out of my back surgery feeling stronger than ever, both mentally and physically."

Plaisance says she feels better at 30 years old than she did at 26, and over the years when dealing with minor post-game issues here and there, she's ecstatic being able to wake up every morning with no issues, and being able to put her joggers on and walk around without any pain.

"It's phenomenal," she said.

SHINE, GRIND, HUSTLE

*I remember everything, the shine, and the struggle.
I remember all the pain, all the grind, all the hustle*

Plaisance isn't afraid to put in work, especially during the offseason – when most championships are truly won.

So when former Aces teammate Sydney Colson called to talk Athletes Unlimited, the intrigue of what she describes as "professional pickup basketball" sounded like the perfect way to prepare for her fifth WNBA franchise.

"Training by yourself at home gets a little boring," Plaisance said. "So being able to play in a league where you can actually make a pass and play defense and score on somebody that isn't your brother, it's really nice to be able to play 5-on-5 basketball."

Through the first two weeks, Plaisance has not only fallen in love with the game within the game, but she's also thriving as a points leader and one of the most sought-after stretch forwards when captains take their place for Sunday morning drafts.

And it's been more than the games keeping in her shape, and getting her mind ready for a new venture in Seattle, she said, it's being around people that have been around the game for years, having facilitators and support staff, and having outside eyes that see the game a bit differently than a player would.

"Here, your job looks different every single week, just depending on where you're drafted, what's asked of you, so I think it's a really cool league in that aspect," said Plaisance, who is currently seventh on the leaderboard. "I did not expect to come in and make a splash the way that I did the first week, I just kind of had no expectations and I was just kind of going to see what AU was like, trying to get a feel. And I just hit some shots and got going a little bit with my first outing, which was really nice because that was my first time outside of practices here being able to play five against five."

THE CAPTAIN'S JOURNAL: NAZ HILLMON

By Savanna Collins
March 9, 2023

A rookie with a veteran's mind.

Ask anyone who has competed with Naz Hillmon at Athletes Unlimited and that is one of the many praises you'll hear about her.

Hillmon rounds out her first year as a pro with Athletes Unlimited Basketball coming off of a record-setting rookie year with the Atlanta Dream. Throughout 2022 she showcased her apt rebounding and midway through the season earned a starting role.

Here, she's Captain Hillmon: drafting teams with ease, scribbling practice plans in her blue notebook, and building attack plans for opponents.

DRAFT DAY EVE

Usually, the Captain's Journal begins on draft day but for Hillmon it really starts on "Draft Day Eve."

Take last week for example. Hillmon had an inkling she might be captain after Week 1 and started to plan Saturday night just in case. It's a good thing she did because she moved into the No. 4 spot on the leaderboard from Sunday's game and had to draft her team that evening.

This week, she had more time to plan with her facilitator Seimone Augustus. Hillmon and the four-time WNBA Champion/three-time Olympic Gold Medalist have been paired for two consecutive weeks.

Augustus said with Hillmon's leadership her job has been "quite easy over the last two weeks, but fun as well."

"Coming into the draft, she knew exactly what she wanted to do, how she wanted to pick," Augustus said.

Though you wouldn't guess it from the speed Hillmon makes her picks, she says she gets nervous on Draft Day. It starts with a light breakfast. Then, more planning with Augustus. Together they holed up in a back room at the draft studio to talk about how to improve on the team Hillmon drafted last week and who could help her chase a 3-0 series.

"The biggest thing was we knew what we needed more of," Hillmon said. "We needed more depth, we needed more people [that could play] different positions and put them into really good spots where they can shine."

BUILDING THE BLUE SQUAD

Hillmon has built her teams not only around her own skills that pushed her to the top of the leaderboard but also around her repeat No. 1 pick, Allisha Gray.

Gray and Hillmon will soon be Dream teammates in the upcoming WNBA season and are building a rapport that will carry into training camp. Hillmon's intellect is the first thing that comes up when talking to Gray about playing together.

"It's kind of hard to remember that she was just a rookie last W season 'cause she's so wise beyond her years," Gray said. Both rosters have been built around these two and Gray thinks she's begun to understand what her captain is looking for.

"Naz wants players like her. She works hard, unselfish, wanna see you win, positive," Gray said. "I think that that's what's in her mind when she's drafting."

Gray is definitely onto something because when asked what excited Hillmon about this week's team, it's many of those attributes.

She describes her blue team as one who can play on both sides of the ball and really get after it. The pride they take in defense, toughness, and effort are what stand out as their strengths after two days of practicing together.

SEEING A DIFFERENT SIDE

Hillmon says she eventually wants to coach and that this experience has been the opportunity to start to identify who she is in that role. Over the course of these two weeks, she's started to discover her philosophy and style.

She's found that she always puts the person before the player and she expects others to put in the same effort that she does.

"I think that'll be the icing on the cake for a lot of players," Hillmon said. "You wanna play for somebody who works hard for you."

While Hillmon directs practice with confidence, she leaves space for collaboration. Point guard Natasha Cloud had ideas that they walked through. Guard Lexie Brown chimed in about defense when the team circled up.

Hillmon is surrounded by great basketball minds and holds her own with the best of them. It's something she's proud of and explained how the setting of being an AU captain put her in the position to make decisions and showcase her IQ to her team.

"Whereas I felt like sometimes in the 'W' you have so many veterans [and] they put out what's supposed to be happening. They make sure that you know what's going on," Hillmon said. "And now in this setting, I feel like a little bit of the vet because I'm telling my team what I want, what I wanna see from them."

"TURN THE PAGE"

Team Hillmon's first challenge of the week was the orange team, Team Smith.

The priority discussed at practice was on their bigs, which includes the dominant NaLyssa Smith, Theresa Plaisance and Crystal Bradford. Hillmon knew this trio would be their biggest adversary and planned to attack them in transition and lean upon the spot-up shooters she drafted.

They split the first and second quarters and Hillmon's blue squad led 41-38 at the half. In the locker room, Hillmon wrote three points of focus: Transition, Pace, Turnovers

The two teams were tightly matched. There were 14 ties and 14 lead changes in the game that came down to the final minute. Tied 86-all, Team Smith came out of a timeout and Clarendon drove to the basket to score with 2.0 seconds remaining. Team Smith secured an 88-86 victory.

Hillmon stood at the front by the whiteboard as the team huddled postgame. She talked through how they might have had a different outcome. Not giving up defensive assignments, quarter wins. She took responsibility for moments she could have played differently, "I should have been there up top."

"I have to figure out what works best for those who are on the team and put that in," Hillmon said. "I feel like that's what the first game is about, finding what worked, what didn't work, using it or don't."

After the loss the team wasn't down — they were determined.

Hillmon drafted what she describes as a "high energy" team on purpose. They're important when you win but even more so when you lose.

"We're good. We're gonna bounce back. I mean, I love this team. Lots of great energy and they're not gonna hang their heads down, so look out for us for game two."

For NaLyssa Smith, there was a game during the second week of the season she was wondering if Plaisance was going to miss. Plaisance's consistency and versatility led Smith to bring her aboard Team Orange for the third week of the season.

"I feel like every single game she's very consistent and that's something that a lot of people look for, you know, she can score the ball from a lot of areas," Smith said. "She's always a good teammate too, she always has energy, she's always supportive – that's the main reason I wanted her on my team."

It's the main reason she was an integral part of the Aces' run to the WNBA championship last summer.

Plaisance said the off-court relationships easily correlated to on-court chemistry, and as the season progressed, she felt something special happening, due to the players buying into not only first-year coach Becky Hammon but also into one another. For her, it meant being part of a supporting cast that at times needed a voice on the bench, coming to practice with the mindset to push her incredible starting five teammates.

"TP brightened the locker room last year simply by being herself," Colson said. "She's such a funny person and as much as I act like she's nauseating, she's actually a joy to be around. (DeArica Hamby's daughter) Amaya was obsessed with her and I'm sure it was because of her childlike nature. She's truly just a great teammate and vet."

Thus, she arrived in Dallas after what she said was one of the best summers of her life. The bonds on and off the court with the Aces were tremendous and on display all season. The laughs were endless, the competitiveness was fierce, and the result was a title.

"You just want to be a part of it, and you will do whatever it takes to make sure that championship happens," Plaisance said. "There was always that energy of just pushing each other to be the very best that we can. And you just saw a team come together and do something incredibly special. And winning that championship was just the cherry on top. I could honestly tell you that even without the championship, we would have had the best time of our lives. But that championship meant the world to every single one of us because we know how much we put into it. We know how much we poured into one another. It was just really, really special."

Midway through the AU season, Plaisance is once again having the time of her life.

"You're never too old to learn more about the game or enhance your game," Plaisance said. "If anything, you're always finding a new way to make your game relevant. Playing here and also playing with a different team every week, there's no one way to do it. So this has kind of allowed me to have an open mind about what basketball is, what my role looks like, and helped me step out of my comfort zone in a lot of different ways."

"The players that come in here that can do just more than one thing, and that have some versatility to their game, this is a venue where you really get to show a little bit more."

For Plaisance, showing a little bit more is something she's been doing her entire career.

AIR HEARN SAVORING SECOND SWIM THROUGH AU WATERS

By Stephen Hunt
March 13, 2023

Air Hearn is no stranger to Athletes Unlimited Basketball. Last season, the 2014 first-team All-American Athletic Conference selection at Memphis finished 15th overall with 3,861 points. Hearn's 19 steals ranked ninth in AU as she averaged 7.5 points and 2.3 rebounds per game.

However, she has raised the bar for year two.

"My mindset is to be stronger. I've come into season two with a lot more confidence. That makes me feel good," Hearn said. "Being with Athletes Unlimited is a blessing. It's a blessing to know they enjoyed me not only as a person but as a player. That meant a lot they invited me back for season two."

This season, Hearn is playing for the Trauma Institute and Children's Trauma Institute, a non-profit organization founded in 1997 to promote healing and healthy development for children, adolescents, and adults who have experienced trauma and loss, and to develop, evaluate, and disseminate effective prevention, assessment, and treatment methods.

"I'm a big believer that everything starts with the mind. A person becomes who they are depending on how they respond to what happens in life," Hearn said. "It's just important to me that 1) mentally, people are healthy and 2) that trauma is real. People go through real things, and it makes people who they are because of how they bounce back from the uncontrollable. To play for those people, the mental side of the game, mental happiness, it means a lot."

During her time at Memphis (2012 to 2016), she was known as Ariel Hearn. However, while playing overseas in Iceland, a teammate would repeatedly butcher her name, so she told her to simply call her "Air". It immediately stuck.

"Well, I've had the name Air for myself since years ago, but when I said [my name was] Air, people didn't believe in it. It never stuck," Hearn said. "That was in 2020 in Iceland when one of my teammates started calling me Air. It kind of stuck. I guess it's me having more confidence when people ask me who I am, and I tell them Air. They ask me why [Air is my name] and I just feel more confident when I talk about it."

Besides Iceland, she has also played in Australia and Germany, stints abroad she wouldn't trade for anything because of the multitude of great experiences she had on and off the court and the amazing people she met. "My experiences abroad were pretty positive. I did make a huge impact on the court, but I think off the court is what a lot of people can't see. I think that's where I made my biggest impact," Hearn said.

"Every country that I went to (Germany, Iceland, Australia), I can truly say that I've gained family, just the people I was able to connect with, the teammates, the families. It's always good to keep in contact with those people. Being abroad, it's a different world but I love it. It broadened my personal palette."

Speaking of her palette, Hearn admits she ate very healthy while playing overseas but consumed plenty of potatoes, sausage, and bread while in Germany. While in Iceland, she ate plenty of seafood. Her cuisine of choice in Australia was Greek since the teammate who she was living with was from Greece. "I was able to eat a lot of Greek food, which I really enjoyed," she said. "Really love Greek food. They love to eat."

Another interesting fact about Hearn is that her birthday is April 1st or April Fool's Day, something she truly celebrates. "It's definitely a one-of-a-kind thing. I always try to get my own joke in on my birthday, but it's hard," she joked. "I love having an April Fool's birthday. The people that know me say it definitely fits with my personality."

Hearn also takes immense pride in her Memphis roots, both because it is a great basketball city and a truly unique place to call home. "When people outside of Memphis hear about Memphis, sometimes I think they get a negative perception. When they hear my perspective about Memphis because I grew up there, people change their perceptions," she said.

"When I am able to tell people I am from Memphis and they experience me as a person, it is a joy for me to hear people say, 'She makes me want to travel to Memphis to see what it's like.' That just brings me joy. I love that Memphis is a basketball city. I love that there's just so much hospitality there. Basketball just brings so many people together, I love it. Memphis is definitely home. It will always be home in my heart. Memphis is just one-of-a-kind."

JASMINE WALKER EMBRACING OPPORTUNITY TO SHOWCASE TALENT WITH AU

By W.G. Ramirez
March 14, 2023

In April of 2021, Jasmine Walker felt as if she reached a point in her career where everything was finally paying off.

After all, according to the stretch forward, there aren't too many professional female athletes hailing from Alabama.

"Being I have that on my back, I gotta represent," she said.

And represent she did.

After averaging 19.1 points and 9.4 rebounds as a senior at Alabama, where she also registered 21 career double-doubles and was named a 2021 Katrina McClain Award Finalist, awarded annually to the nation's top power forward, Walker was drafted seventh overall in the 2021 WNBA Draft by the Los Angeles Sparks.

Then, two games into her rookie campaign, she tore her anterior cruciate ligament and her season came to an abrupt halt. It was the same ACL she had torn in high school. And she was devastated.

"It really took me a minute to accept the fact (I was) going through this again," she said. "I feel like my first ACL tear was rough for me. I was young. I definitely didn't have the many resources I had when I did it the second time. It wasn't even close."

Nevertheless, it took months for her to talk to anyone about it. She'd finally gotten everything she wanted, but then was knocked back 10 steps.

Working hard has never been an issue, though. Especially when opportunities arise.

"Once you get them, you need to be on it," Walker said. "And I feel that way about AU. I don't take this as a walk in the park. I'm trying to capitalize on all my opportunities because it's that serious."

Two years after her ACL recovery, her mind, body and soul are stronger than ever.

"She has such a mature mindset when it comes to basketball," said fellow AU athlete Theresa Plaisance. "She's very focused and driven on her goal, and she's very much so herself and she doesn't waiver from that. Jasmine, I know the time she gets in the gym here, that she puts towards working at her trade."

AS EXPECTED

Like many of the other first-year participants, Walker saw the inaugural season either online or via social media posts and was immediately intrigued by what appeared to be a mixture of competitive hoops and camaraderie among fun-loving women she obviously had something in common with.

"I seen the incredible things they did as an organization last year, seemed fun with all the players that (were) in it, WNBA players (were) advertising it, it just seemed like something I wanted to be a part of," Walker said. "It was something new and something to keep athletes in the United States. I felt like it was a good opportunity for me to hop on."

Walker said she believes there are plenty of other professional women like herself, who would much rather stay in the United State during the WNBA offseason, rather than travel overseas. It's a feeling that's been heightened since the Brittney Griner situation in Russia.

"I'm pretty sure that's at the front of everybody's mind," Walker said. "I've only experienced Puerto Rico. But I feel like everybody has their own experiences when it comes to overseas. (There are) a lot of us (who) would rather just stay in the States and play in front of family and friends ... instead of going out of your environment."

And three weeks into the season, Walker couldn't be any more pleased with her decision to join the league.

Since opening the season with back-to-back seven-point performances, Walker has scored in double figures in six of her last seven games, averaging 12.4 points per contest.

"Things have been going good, it's been going smoothly, I think," said Walker, who for AU fantasy players, is averaging 223.6 leaderboard points per contest. "Really just getting a feel for everybody and everything, trying to learn what everybody does individually, and then try to bring it together as a team. But I know me personally, I feel like everything is going how it's supposed to go.

"Everybody's coming together, everybody's friendly, everybody wants to know your background, wants to know your story."

Walker said there have been no "pleasant surprises" to this point because Athletes Unlimited has lived up to her expectations. What's stood out, however, is getting to know and blending with the many different personalities with nearly everyone in Dallas.

"I feel like you get to get close with everybody here," Walker said. "Whether you're a WNBA player or whether you're not, whether you play overseas, whether you don't. We all interact with each other. I just feel like AU is definitely the start of something great. I feel like in the future (the season) could probably be something much longer. I really feel like they're doing an awesome thing. So I really do appreciate them coming up with the idea to get this going. Because, I mean, some of us would rather stay in the States to play."

Walker said while salary seems to always be a subject matter during the WNBA season, she doesn't feel playing for Athletes Unlimited has to do with money, as much as it does the concept.

"Because regardless, they take care of you," she said. "You do receive money, but overall they take care of their athletes, I will give that to AU, they definitely take care of athletes in all aspects. I don't have to really worry about anything but just make sure I perform like I'm supposed to. I feel like they cover that much for you. I really enjoy getting to know some of these people that I probably wouldn't even have a chance to if I wasn't here. Most of the bonds or most of the relationships that I created I probably would have never had the chance without even coming here."

STORM WARNING

When it's come time to compete, Walker has transitioned quickly, both mentally and physically during her time with AU, in order to prepare for the start of training camp with her new WNBA team.

Walker was traded to Connecticut on Jan. 16 as part of a four-player deal, but was later waived by the Sun on Feb. 20.

The Seattle Storm then signed the forward as a free agent on Feb. 24.

Now, if anything, she's playing with a chip on her shoulder.

After all, adversity has been nothing for her given the two ACL tears.

Last season, when Walker returned to action with the Sparks, she played in 32 games amidst a whirlwind of off-court distractions with the team.

But Walker said despite the mid-season firing of then-coach Derek Fisher, and the abrupt departure of Liz Cambage, she refused to allow herself to get bottled up in things she couldn't control. Knowing all she could do was focus on improving after a mentally draining rookie season when she said it took months to even talk to anyone, complacency or disappointment wasn't an option.

"Last year, with the opportunity that Jas had, she took it and she ran with it, and you don't see that in a lot of young players, who are able to just go with the flow and adjust to the adversity," said Jordin Canada, who is also playing in Athletes Unlimited and played with Walker in Los Angeles last season. "Being here in AU, I've seen such a huge difference from last season to just even being here.

"I think Jas' confidence has gone up tremendously. She's shooting the ball with confidence, she's doing things that didn't necessarily have the opportunity to do with the Sparks. So, I'm very excited for her in this season, having the opportunity and chance to really show her game and to show the improvements she has made."

Which is why Walker said she continues to play as if she has something to prove, knowing there is someone who doesn't know about her talent who is always lurking.

"I'm at a point in my life and the point of my career where I still have to prove to people like I'm still who I'm supposed to be. Regardless of injury, regardless of where I've been, regardless of where I'm going, I'm still going to be me and I'm still going to work as hard," Walker said.

"I belong wherever I step my foot on because I work that hard. People who do know me, who do know my game, know I'm good enough. I've worked too hard to get to where I'm at today."

NAZ HILLMON PUTTING MATURITY AND HEART ON DISPLAY WITH AU BASKETBALL

By W.G. Ramirez
March 16, 2023

Poise and maturity come with time for professional athletes.

For Naz Hillmon, who arrived in Dallas for the second season of Athletes Unlimited after her rookie season in the WNBA, there's no time like the present.

"Her mindset and her maturity as such a young player and a young person and just seeing her as a captain, I just think that says a lot for someone who's 22 years old," two-time WNBA champion Jordin Canada said. "I've actually joked with her a few times about her not choosing me to be on her team."

No surprise there, considering Hillmon came into Week 4 with a 6-3 record (3-3 as a captain), and has slowly reminded folks about the bright young star who hailed from Cleveland and starred at the University of Michigan.

"Her mentality at such a young age isn't necessarily of her time," veteran Theresa Plaisance said. "I feel like she's very mature and she has a really great head on her shoulders. So being able to play with Naz and also see how she is in a basketball setting as a leader, I thought it was gonna be really interesting just to see how she ran stuff."

Hillmon, whose team lost its Week 4 opener on Wednesday, has scored in double figures in seven straight games and eight of her first 10 this season. She's averaging 16.3 points per game.

But there's more to the mindset of the 2021 Big Ten Player of the Year who starred for the Atlanta Dream last summer.

Her compassion for others has become quite relevant, either as a captain at Athletes Unlimited, a friend to those she's met while in Dallas, or the cause she's playing this season, the Black Heart Association.

"I just think the whole environment here, it's just been really great," Hillmon said. "They've got a really good group of girls here, on the court and off the court. I love the competition. I love that we do some things outside of basketball. So I've had a really good experience so far."

ALL HEART

In 2021, Zaharius Hillmon collapsed during halftime of a basketball game. The then-senior from Shaw High School suffered cardiac arrest, and a contracted trainer with the team performed CPR. After being rushed to the hospital, doctors found Hillmon had a congenital heart defect that previous physicals didn't reveal.

Naz Hillmon's brother – who was in a coma for a short time and ended up having open heart surgery – has since recovered and is living a happy and healthy life in college, playing basketball in recreation leagues.

"He lives his life as he did prior to without the organized basketball piece," Hillmon said.

Nevertheless, the overall concern for her brother led Hillmon to delve deeper into educating herself about heart disease.

Per a 2018 report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, heart disease is the leading cause of death in Black men and women.

When Hillmon arrived in Dallas for AU, she was late in submitting the organization she would be playing for and had to choose from a list provided.

"I was super happy and grateful that the Black Heart Association was up there," Hillmon said. "Going with Black Heart Association was definitely important to me ... I think just having that education piece is so important for everybody, and I think especially in the black communities, making sure you're getting your consistent checkups or you're going to get CPR-certified or anything in between that could help your case or someone close to you or around you."

Hillmon said she is hoping others will learn the importance of heart health, especially for Black women, when she feels the No. 1 thing we hear about is breast cancer research.

"I'm sure there are plenty of other organizations, in terms of health, that need to be looked at and talked about," Hillmon said. "But I felt like we stick to either when it's a celebrity or an athlete, or that most prominent thing that everybody wants to talk about Everybody has breast cancer awareness month. Football has got it in October, and basketball has got it in February for Kay Yow. But there are a lot of people out there that need to have more recognition. We need to talk about it more, there need to be more classes.

"At this point, like to even play this sport, once you get to the college level, there needs to be CPR-certified, CPR training. There are a lot of things that need to go into it, the first thing is having that awareness."

THE BOUNCE BACK

Hillmon was still a senior in Ann Arbor when the inaugural Athletes Unlimited season tipped off in Las Vegas, but she was tuned in. Hillmon said she was streaming games, and once she figured out the rules and points structure, she was dialed in. She also felt she could benefit from the league if ever given the opportunity to join forces.

Thus, after her agent reached out, and a call from Player Executive Committee member Ty Young followed, she was all in.

"Especially since I didn't go overseas this year, and I feel like I hadn't played in forever," Hillmon said. "I didn't want to just walk right into the W season (this year), hadn't played basketball since the last time, so I really wanted to get back into it. I feel like I had the itch to get back on the court, it'd been so long. That's probably the longest time I hadn't played organized basketball since I started playing. But also just watching it last year."

Since her arrival, Hillmon has been working on her mental game as much as the product she puts on the floor.

At Michigan, she went from getting the ball every single time down the floor, with a majority of the plays surrounding her. Then she got to the W, where she didn't play much the first half of the season, averaging 13.4 minutes per game. At AU, she wanted to strengthen her mental game, which in turn would help her resurrect the confidence she played with while dominating Big Ten competition.

Hillmon said she's benefitted from not only the coaches and facilitators on hand, but also from being a captain.

"It's just more so the feedback ... on ways to get better while I'm here, on and off the court," she said. "We have some really bright minds here in our facilitators. But I think also getting some feedback from the other players. There are quite a few vets here that you can learn a ton from, and I feel like I've benefited from them."

And with a resurgence in her game, she's felt her confidence return when she's on the court.

Throw it in a metaphoric blender, and you have the poise and maturity of a seasoned veteran trapped inside a 22-year-old rising star who has earned the respect of her peers as captain, as a player, and as a person.

THE CAPTAIN'S JOURNAL: KIERSTAN BELL

By Savanna Collins

March 16, 2023

"I'm the same person regardless if I'm a captain or if I'm just on the team. I think I just come with the same energy, come with competitive nature."

Energy has been a recurring theme throughout Kierstan Bell's Athletes Unlimited season. It's often used to describe her as a player and now, it's the same aspect that has her excited about the team she has built as a captain.

Bell found herself in the captain's chair on Sunday unexpectedly. In just three games, she shot from No. 9 to No. 3 overall on the leaderboard.

In the AU scoring system, that's feasible in the first two weeks of competition but rare to make that large of a jump halfway through the season. Bell's priority entering AU was to "come in with the open mindset of just coming to hoop," but captainship wasn't on her radar.

"I told my mom, 'I don't wanna be a captain, I just wanna hoop.' And she was like, 'Well, what if you end up being a captain?'" Bell reconsidered. "It'll be nice to be a captain, you know, make the practice plans, being able to be in charge of a team. (Carlos) Knox is gonna help me out. We [are] gonna get things rolling."

Bell has worked heavily with her facilitator Carlos Knox throughout her captainship. Each captain approaches utilizing their facilitator differently and Bell has relied on him in helping to execute her ideas. Knox reiterated almost exactly how Bell described herself.

"KB is more of a, 'Hey, let me just play, let me hoop,'" Knox said. "But she does an excellent job of getting information to me and some of the things that she wants to implement and to her team."

Bell had three priorities for the group she was building: sharing the ball, running the floor, and rotating in off the bench well.

At practice, Team Bell bounced off of the energy of their captain. Despite it being Week 4 when many athletes are feeling fatigued, they were loud and lively.

They tried to carry that energy into the first day of games but got to a slow start against Team Smith. Team Bell was in a 22-point deficit they would spend all game clawing their way out of.

At the end of the quarter, Knox looked at the group and told them, "Now we know we can never start a game like that again." Team Smith led Team Bell by a 30-8 margin but the team didn't hang their head. Each quarter after, they chipped away at the lead.

"I just feel like we came out lax and I feel like no one really took it as seriously as they should have with this being the first time that our team played together," Knox explained. "They had to get acclimated to each other and see exactly what was going on on the floor before they made adjustments."

And the adjustments from then on worked.

They won the next two quarters and took a 2-point lead in the fourth for the first time all game but were unable to seal a comeback victory. Evina Westbrook tied the game at 90-90 with a pair of free throws with 22 seconds remaining, but Kristi Bellock splashed a three off on an inbound play and pass from Kelsey Mitchell with 2.9 seconds remaining.

Bell has experienced the highs of an ASUN Conference Championship in college and a WNBA Championship in her rookie season with the Aces.

Win or lose, her energy always bounces back.

"KB is one of the [most] fun captains that I've been a part of," Knox said. "Because she has that jovial attitude and mentality and she's just able to get everybody going with their words. You gotta watch out for her because if she gets hot and she gets in a great rhythm she's a pretty good player."

Despite the challenge of getting to know one another this week and a first quarter that tested them, Bell and her team still showcased who they are as a team when aligned.

"I think just for these last two weeks, it's about having fun but also still wanting to compete and try to get your name onto the leaderboard," Bell said. "We're gonna just play free."

VERONICA BURTON A QUICK STUDY IN AU BASKETBALL

By Stephen Hunt
March 20, 2023

Veronica Burton is less than a year into her professional career, but already the former Big 10 Conference Defensive Player of the Year at Northwestern has made quite an impression, both with the WNBA's Dallas Wings and in Athletes Unlimited.

The 7th selection in the 2022 WNBA Draft, she played 36 games as a rookie, making six starts, and averaged 2.6 points, 1.9 assists, and 1.5 rebounds. In three playoff games, she averaged six points, three assists, 2.7 rebounds, and two steals.

However, many of the great things Burton did as a rookie didn't show up on the stat sheet. Whether it was deflecting a pass, forcing a turnover, diving on the hardwood for a 50/50 ball, or bringing energy off the bench, that's where she truly shined.

"It was one [season] where I learned and grew a lot. Defense is something I'll always take pride in, bringing energy and doing whatever I can to influence the game in a positive manner," Burton said. "It oftentimes wasn't in the points category, but over time I started to see the ball go in more."

"I got more comfortable as I gained experience. Being able to get some starts under my belt was huge, especially in the playoffs. It ended on a very high note. I'm fortunate to be in Dallas and get the experience I did."

She's brought a similar skill set to AU as a league newcomer. After four weeks of play, she ranks 19th with 2,972 points overall. "The community here and the opportunity to continue to play professional basketball has been really special," Burton said.

One thing which has made her AU debut special is the opportunity to again play alongside former Dallas teammates Allisha Gray, now with Atlanta, and Isabelle Harrison, the 2022 AU Defensive Player of the Year who is now with Chicago.

"It's awesome. Getting the opportunity to get to know them on and off the court last season was really special," Burton said. "It's fun to continue to compete with them and build those relationships. I [also] know Lexie Hull and NaLyssa Smith. I've competed with them on 3-on-3 teams."

Playing in AU is not only a great opportunity for her to forge new friendships and reconnect with former teammates, but also a great way to conclude her first season as a pro and help prepare for the upcoming WNBA season, which begins for Dallas on May 20 against Atlanta.

"I think it's at the perfect time as well, being a month and a half before training camp starts. Getting back into basketball shape and being able to compete is the best thing for me," Burton said. "Obviously, I'm here in Dallas, so that's even better to be able to have those Dallas Wings fans supporting me at Athletes Unlimited. Just getting more and more familiar with Dallas, which I love as well."

It also affords her the opportunity to play for an organization very close to her heart — the Ron Burton Training Village, a complex in the Boston area where kids can train and attain personal growth. Ron Burton, who started the village, is Veronica's grandfather.

"It means so much to me, just to be able to support them in a way. I grew up going to RBT every single summer," Burton said. "It truly shaped who I am. To be able to play, contribute to it, and give back to it is the biggest thing for me. It's incredible that Athletes Unlimited has given me the opportunity to do so."

Burton's father, Steve, a former Northwestern quarterback, is a well-known television sportscaster in Boston, while her sister Kayla, who played basketball at Lehigh, is entering broadcasting. "It's something that's always interested me. I don't know if I'll be as good in front of the camera [as my dad], I get a little shy," she said. "The city of Boston embraces him so much and shows him so much love. That's really cool."

But the center of Burton's life is her strong Christian faith, which governs everything she does on and off the court. "My faith is everything. Honestly, it's what has allowed me to even be here, be a professional basketball player," she said. "It's kept me grounded. There can be a lot of times where sports or just life in general can be overwhelming."

"My faith ultimately keeps me humble and just reminds me that basketball is just a game. It's not really who I am. It's what I do. Ultimately, my faith is who I am. I play and do everything to glorify the Lord. It's just allowed me confidence-wise to keep going and has been a steady outlet for me for sure."

BRADFORD ABSORBING AU HOOPS EXPERIENCE

By W.G. Ramirez
March 21, 2023

Unpredictable was the word used to describe Crystal Bradford.

And four-time captain Naz Hillmon meant it as a compliment.

"Crystal is probably one of the hardest people to game plan for because ... when she's coming down the court, you don't know if she's going to pass it, sometimes she's doing fake in and outs to herself, you just really have to be ready for anything," Hillmon said.

What you can expect, however, and is seemingly very predictable, is her confidence and competitive spirit.

"You want someone who's going to go toe-to-toe, nose-to-nose," 16-year veteran professional Essence Carson said. "Especially in those very important games, where it takes a lot of confidence to be ultimately successful and Crystal definitely has it. If she hasn't proved it throughout this AU season, I don't know what else you can ask from her."

Bradford is averaging a double-double in her first season with Athletes Unlimited, with 13.9 points and 10.5 rebounds per game.

Her versatility as a wing on the perimeter or shooting forward penetrating the paint has made life hard on defenders, forcing the opposition to dictate what she is doing, or at least try to, rather than sitting back and waiting to see what she will do.

A lot easier said than done.

"She uses her size to an advantage," Hillmon said. "She just has a very unique style of play. She plays at her own speed and her own pace. (She) can move quickly on the perimeter, or slow things down in the paint.

This is probably why captains NaLyssa Smith and Odyssey Sims have jockeyed for Bradford the past four weeks in the draft. After Smith took Bradford sixth in Weeks 2 and 3, Sims swooped in to draft her fourth in Week 4. Smith wasn't taking any chances for the upcoming final week and grabbed Bradford in the fourth round.

For Bradford, it's arguably the biggest week of the season, if not her entire career.

AU ISLAND

Bradford intended on playing during Athletes Unlimited's inaugural season after speaking with senior director of operations, Kristen Miles.

Tryouts were slated to be held in Atlanta, where Bradford was at the time. She was told she wouldn't have to try out and was excited to stay in the States. Unfortunately, Bradford was injured and missed the campaign altogether.

"I watched the games, it was nothing selfish about the leaderboard, it was to clock production," she said. "I've always prided myself on what are the intangibles of basketball. So seeing that that's what they were clocking, I was excited. I knew it was something that I would just enjoy."

She was right, as she fit right in during the second season, both on and off the court. And it's been the antics behind closed doors she's enjoyed the most and said she could see benefits of the league looking into releasing footage in the likes of a reality series.

"I'd say it's like a game show, I feel like I'm on a game show. Like I'm on "Love and Hip Hop" or "Love Island" – a reality show that's not scripted," Bradford said. "I would love for them to get the 'day in the lives of us' next year, where they record us like it's a TV show. Because the off-camera stuff is as funny as on-camera. We have different events. I think the coordinators do a good job. I would love for people just to see more."

And it's not just the funny moments, she said, even though Player Executive Committee member Sydney Colson makes it hard to escape them while leaving the women amid laughter. Bradford said there are meaningful encounters and projects the players have enjoyed, too.

Like when Colson had everybody come together to discuss the businesses they're involved in, in order for everyone to learn something new about one another.

It's been those special encounters that have helped Bradford's mental health, something that's important to the 29-year-old Detroit native.

Which is why she decided to play for the Virago Project, a nonprofit organization that is dedicated to improving the physical and mental health of all women athletes.

"I just love the fact that we are honing in on our mental health," Bradford said. "I've struggled with ADHD all through my life. And I found that routines work really well for me, the things that I eat work really well and make a difference. The things that I read, things like that really make a difference to my everyday life and my performance on the court."

Thus, she is hoping to help provide a solution for those who have walked the same path, while continuing her journey to a stable mindset.

SECOND CHANCE

Bradford was a first-round, seventh-overall pick of the Los Angeles Sparks in 2015, and appeared in 15 games during that season, averaging 2.7 points per game.

It wasn't until April 2021 that Bradford would play in the WNBA again, signing with the Atlanta Dream.

But after averaging 8.8 points and 3.8 rebounds in 18.3 minutes in 24 games, she suffered a fracture in her right foot and missed the remainder of the season.

When a video of Bradford and then-teammate Courtney Williams surfaced with them involved in a fight outside of an Atlanta area food truck, she was released from her contract.

Although there were extenuating circumstances surrounding the altercation, and Bradford and Williams argued they were in danger and acted in self-defense, both expressed remorse and apologized for any embarrassment the incident caused the Dream and the WNBA.

Williams returned to the league, signing with the Connecticut Sun and helping lead them to the WNBA Finals last season.

Bradford hasn't seen another minute and has yet to hear from a team for the upcoming season.

Bradford did sign with the Chicago Sky in February of 2022, but was released before the season started due to the fact the team felt her foot had not healed properly.

With one week left in the AU season, Bradford looks healthier than ever.

She said she has thrived with the coaches who have been on hand to serve as facilitators, help break down film, and work with the players individually between each week's schedule.

"I've improved every single week," Bradford said. "Thanks to coach Danielle (Vigilone), I work with her all the time, she slows down film, and we work on our inside game, outside game, and free throws. I have improved a lot due to her. I've watched coach Zak (Buncik) be my facilitator the last three weeks. I've watched him improve, which helped me improve. I think his and my growth has been identical. ... I had Pokey (Chatman) the first week and I learned so much. Pokey is a wizard – a 'wizzard.'"

"The facilitators are a blessing, and I'm big on learning. So I feel like I'm learning every day, every week, and something new I'm doing every day and every week."

Be it her footwork, her efficiency, her overall skill set, or simply bringing energy, Bradford said she's learned to improve progressively in order to bring out the best in her team.

While the individualism in Athletes Unlimited is a big reason to compete, Bradford said she's rarely focusing on her stat sheet.

"I'm not thinking about myself any more than being an efficient producer than any other time," she said. "Somebody else was telling me that you have to be a little more selfish ... and I don't think that because if we all are playing together and moving the ball, you're gonna get your points. So that's just how I think about it."

Easily one of the top unsigned free agents, Bradford is hoping her successful run with Athletes Unlimited will land her in a WNBA training camp.

"I think I've been pushed to the side and kind of bumped down not just due to the fight, but due to my injury," she said. "This year, I figured once they saw me play (in AU) I would be signed pretty much right away. But right now it's just conversations. I don't know what fear they have because I'm a winner. And anywhere I go, we're gonna compete."

"I don't have a doubt once I get somewhere, if it's a good fit, I can stick."

THE CAPTAIN'S JOURNAL: ODYSSEY SIMS

By Savanna Collins

March 23, 2023

When the Captain's Journal series started in 2022, Odyssey Sims sat down for the first interview.

She was one of the four inaugural captains of Athletes Unlimited Basketball and she was also the guinea pig for the multimedia series that documents the experience. Year one, week one covered Sims.

She was clearly stressed, not so much about the interview but about being a captain. She'd lost the season opener the night before and was overwhelmed having to play, coach, sub, draw up practice plans, and lead a team all at once. She went 0-3.

This year is drastically different. She's been a captain every week of the 2023 season. First in orange in Week 1, then gold in the No. 1 spot on the leaderboard every week since. She's comfortable, confident, a little worn down, but smiling.

"When you look at it you're like, 'I think I might've got a hold of it this year. It looks like she got it,'" Sims said.

It doesn't just look like she's got it — she does. She's 8-5 as a captain and so far has gone 2-1 every week. Since last season, things have clearly changed.

She said season one was like a test run to understand the captain's experience and now she's been more strategic. She's adjusted how she approaches the draft, this season establishing her style of play and then choosing athletes that can work in that system.

Plus she's had a confidant the last four weeks in Jordin Canada.

Canada was shockingly taken off the draft board by NaLyssa Smith before Sims could lock her into her team for the fifth time.

"I'm a little heartbroken, not gonna lie," Sims laughed. "My partner in crime is not with me to finish this last week."

A last-second decision by Smith broke up what has been a flawless pair. They don't have to say much to communicate and flow together on the court. Both point guards share the role without fuss.

"One of the best teammates I've ever had...it was just a great one, two punch."

But Sims' true confidant is always on her team: her son, Jadon. That's the biggest factor that has made this season feel different for Sims. He turns three in April and is understanding that his mom is a professional basketball player for a living.

"He's understanding like I go to work... I'm watching mama play basketball. It's surreal to me 'cause you know, I'm making him happy. He loves to watch me play and just have him with me 24/7. I can just tell that he's proud of me so I wanna continue to do that."

After celebrating win after win with her team, Sims heads to the stands for 'J'. He's at her games and follows her to the training room. Still in her gold 99 jersey, she's mom. Often right after playing over 30 minutes and dropping double digits in scoring.

Not only is Sims leading her team to wins as a captain, but individually she's playing off the charts. She holds a 25.6 scoring average and is on a streak with 18 outings of 20 or more points.

The numbers speak to what she wants everyone to know.

"I'm still really good at basketball. I think some people think I fell off but I haven't. AU speaks volumes so I just let my game talk. Everything else will show for itself."

Sims signed a seven-day hardship contract with the Connecticut Sun in August last year before ultimately signing on for the remainder of the season. She played in all 12 playoff contests for the Sun as they made a run at the WNBA Championship but lost to the Aces. Right now, Sims remains a free agent for the 2023 W season.

She didn't go overseas during the offseason and spent her time with her son and working out. She says there's no secret to her performances and extended minutes for 15 games in just five weeks.

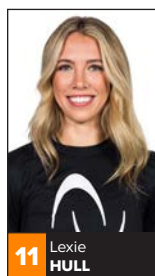

"I guess I had extra energy bunched up that I needed to get out," Sims laughed. "But there is no secret anything. I'm just full of energy."

Last year, Sims finished sixth overall on the leaderboard and set her sights on finishing in the top four as a returner. She never expected to be in first with a 400-point lead going into the final two days of competition.

She's excited but tired. It's no wonder considering she leads the league in minutes played with 503, but she can't let up now. Sims is just two games away from cementing her season as truly golden with a first-place finish.

"I'm just loving basketball; it's just hitting different for me at this point in my life."
