FAIR PARK COLISEUM

Athletes Unlimited Seasons Hosted: 2021 & 2022 Volleyball, 2023 & 2024 Basketball

Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball made its return to Fair Park Coliseum for the 2024 season, marking the fourth time the iconic venue has hosted Athletes Unlimited competition. In addition to serving as the home for Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball in each of the last two seasons, it was the site for the first two seasons of Athletes Unlimited Pro Volleyball in 2021 and 2022.

Built in the 1950s, Fair Park Coliseum is a multi-purpose arena located just east of Downtown Dallas inside historic Fair Park. The facility features a multi-purpose floor that can be transformed into numerous surfaces for a variety of events.

Over the last seven decades, the facility's flexibility has allowed Fair Park Coliseum to serve as the host venue for concerts, ice hockey, family shows, wrestling, speaking engagements and rodeo events in addition to Athletes Unlimited Pro Volleyball and Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball.

Fair Park is the largest historical landmark in Texas and boasts one of the nation's largest collections of 1930s art and architecture. The 277-acre campus is home to the State Fair of Texas, museums, Cotton Bowl Stadium, an outdoor amphitheater, Music Hall at Fair Park (Broadway shows, ballet, opera) and over 1,000 events each year.

WHO WE ARE

Athletes Unlimited is a new model of professional sports where athletes are decision makers and individual players are champions of team sports. We literally change the game with faster play and fluid teams, delivering next-level competition and engagement in which every moment counts. Beginning in 2020 with Women's Softball and following with Women's Volleyball (2021), Women's Lacrosse (2021), Women's Basketball (2022) and AUX Softball (2022), Athletes Unlimited will build the next generation of both athletes and fans.

Our athletes are in charge of their team and league decisions, and of their individual success. We reboot timetables, rosters and game play to create fast and exciting competition that speaks to contemporary sports fans, bringing them close to the action and the athletes in games where every moment counts. We incorporate the player-centric model that fans love about fantasy sports. We use digital media platforms and cutting-edge technology to connect fans deeply to athletes at the top of their game on and off the field, and to the game itself.

HOW THE TEAMS ARE SELECTED

A draft will be held prior to each week's games with the top four players in the individual leaderboard serving as the team captains. The captains will then fill their rosters by selecting nine other players. Each draft will be held on the Monday before the week's games.

Uniform colors will be assigned based on the team captain's rank on the leaderboard. The top-scoring captain's team will wear gold, while the second-highest point scorer's team dons orange jerseys. The third-place team will wear blue jerseys and the fourth-place team will wear purple jerseys.

Each team will consist of 10 players and there are no limits on the number of players at a specific position (guard, forward, center, guard/forward etc.).

RULES OF INTEREST

Timing: Four 10-minute (10:00) stopped time quarters will be played during a regulation game with a 24-second shot clock in play. Halftime will be 15 minutes in length.

Overtime: If the game score is tied after regulation, a five-minute (5:00) overtime period will be played to determine the winner. Should the score remain tied following the overtime period, a subsequent "Elam Ending" period will be held with the winner of the game being the first team to score seven (7) or more points.

Timeouts: Each team is permitted three (3) 30-second timeouts and one (1) 60-second timeout during regulation play and all timeouts carry over from the first half to the second half. In addition, each team will be given one (1) additional 30-second timeout at the start of the overtime period in addition to any timeouts remaining prior to the period. In the event of an "Elam Ending" period, each team will receive one (1) 30-second timeout, but cannot use any other carryover timeouts.

Media Timeouts: One (1) media timeout will be called at the first dead ball at or below the five-minute (5:00) mark of each quarter unless a team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge occurs before that time frame. In addition, the first team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge of the second half becomes a media timeout.

Captain's Challenges: A captain or other determined team representative may initiate replay review of certain events subject to the provisions of the rule as set out below. Replay reviews triggered under this rule shall be referred to as a 'Captain's Challenge,' or 'Challenge' for short.

Each team is entitled to one (1) challenge in the first 38 minutes of the game and one (1) Challenge in the last two minutes of the fourth quarter, overtime period or "Elam Ending" period.

A team may utilize a Challenge to trigger replay review of the following events: (1) a called personal foul charged to its own team, and (2) a called out of bounds violation.

Replay review of the following events, among others, are not considered "challengeable" events: (1) a called personal foul charged to the opposing team, (2) continuation – i.e., whether a defensive foul occurred prior to the offensive player beginning her shooting motion, (3) a technical or flagrant foul, and (4) violations – i.e., traveling, carrying, double dribble, offensive or defensive three seconds, etc.

INDIVIDUAL LEADERBOARD

While traditional statistics are kept during an Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball game, players receive individual points based on those statistics. Points earned through statistics, quarter wins, game wins and Game MVP selections are used to create an individual leaderboard, which determines each week's captains and the season's individual champion.

Points are awarded at the following increments during the game:

Made 3-Point Field Goal	30 Points
Made 2-Point Field Goal	20 Points
Made Free Throw	10 Points
Offensive Rebound	10 Points
Assist	10 Points
Steal	10 Points
Blocked Shot	10 Points
Offensive Foul Drawn	8 Points
Defensive Rebound	5 Points
Shooting Foul Drawn	4 Points
Personal Foul Drawn	4 Points
Shooting Foul Committed	-8 Points
Personal Foul Committed	-8 Points
Other Foul Committed	-8 Points
Turnover	-10 Points
Missed Free Throw	-10 Points
Missed 2-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Missed 3-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Offensive Foul Committed	-16 Points

If an overtime and/or "Elam Ending" period is required, the stats accumulated during the extra period(s) do not earn any individual points for the athletes on the leaderboard. In addition, there are no additional team quarter win points for the extra period(s).

In addition, athletes will be awarded 60 individual points if their team wins a single quarter. If the teams score the same number of points in a quarter, the points carry over to the next quarter.

Athletes on the winning team in each game will be awarded 180 individual points toward the individual leaderboard.

A total of three MVPs will be selected following each game by the competing athletes with the top player earning 90 points. The second MVP will receive 60 points, while the third MVP claims 30 points.

POSTSEASON AWARDS

At the conclusion of the 2024 Athletes Unlimited Basketball season, medals will be presented to the top four finishers on the leaderboard in addition to the Defensive Player of the Year and the Newcomer of the Year. An All-Defensive Team will also be recognized as part of the closing ceremony.

ATHLETE COMPENSATION

Athletes are compensated in three ways during an Athletes Unlimited season, including base pay, win bonuses (quarter and game wins) and a leaderboard bonus.

ATHLETE CAUSES

The Athlete Causes program, powered by Give Lively, provides funding to charities of the players' choosing equal to 100 percent of their season win bonus and players will have the opportunity to create their own fundraising pages to support the organizations of their choice.

MEDALS

The top four players on the season's final leaderboard in addition to the Defensive Player of the Year and Newcomer of the Year honorees will receive a medal designed and fabricated for Athletes Unlimited by Lisa Issenberg, founder of Kiitellä, inc. The front face of the medal represents the identity of Athletes Unlimited, while the back face of the medal leans into the specific sport, the year, location and words about Athletes Unlimited's vision, mission and values on and off the field - Excellence in Community and Leadership.

THE BOOK OF UNLIMITED

The Book of Unlimited was designed, handmade and bound for Athletes Unlimited. The book weighs nearly 25 pounds, measures approximately 12" by 18" and contains nearly 500 pages. The champion, along with all who competed, are inscribed into the book. In addition, The Book of Unlimited also contains a history of achievements in Athletes Unlimited, including stories, highlights and events.

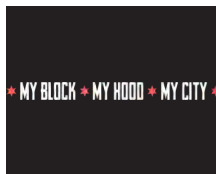

The book is opened during the Opening Ceremony for each season and is closed after the champion is named and her name is inscribed into the book following the Closing Ceremony. The tradition began during Athletes Unlimited Softball's inaugural season in 2020.

ATHLETE CAUSES

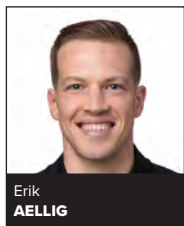

The Athlete Causes program, powered by Give Lively, will provide funding to charities of the players' choosing equal to 100 percent of their season win bonus and players will have the opportunity to create their own fundraising pages to support the organizations of their choice.

SEIMONE AUGUSTUS

LEAD FACILITATOR • SECOND SEASON • LSU, '06

Seimone Augustus finished her second season as an Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball facilitator, including her first campaign as the league's lead facilitator, in 2024.

Augustus started 365-of-391 games in the WNBA over a 15-year career (2006-20) after being taken by Minnesota with the No. 1 overall pick in the 2006 WNBA Draft. The Baton Rouge, Louisiana, product spent her first 14 seasons with the Lynx before she closed her career with the Los Angeles Sparks in 2020.

A six-time All-WNBA selection, Augustus led the Lynx to four WNBA championships (2011, 2013, 2015, 2017) and two additional WNBA Finals berths (2012, 2016). She was named as the WNBA Finals Most Valuable Player in 2011 after guiding Minnesota past Atlanta for the franchise's first league crown.

Named as one of the top 25 players in the league's history in 2021, Augustus shot 48.0 percent from the field during her career and finished with 6,005 points and 1,228 rebounds. The eight-time WNBA All-Star and 2006 WNBA Rookie of the Year stands seventh in league history with 2,455 made field goals while her 5,111 career field goal attempts rank eighth on the all-time list.

Augustus averaged 20.0 or more points per game in a season three times during her WNBA career, including a 22.6 average during the 2007 campaign when she ranked second in the league in scoring. She also netted 21.9 points per contest in her rookie season and contributed 21.0 points per game in 2009.

In addition to her WNBA career, Augustus spent seven seasons playing overseas. She led Galatasaray (Turkey) to the FIBA EuroCup title in 2008-09 and earned FIBA EuroCup Most Valuable Player honors for her efforts. She also spent two years with Dynamo Moscow (Russia) and three seasons with Dynamo Kursk (Russia).

The second-leading scorer in LSU women's basketball history, Augustus tallied 2,702 points over 140 games from 2002-06. The Lady Tigers' career record holder for games started (140) also ranks 15th in program history with 728 career rebounds while her 276 assists are 17th on the all-time ledger.

The Lady Tigers' leading scorer during all four years of her career, Augustus was named the Naismith Player of the Year as a junior and senior along with winning the Wade Trophy, Wooden Award and Honda Sports Award. She also received Southeastern Conference Player of the Year notice in both seasons after guiding LSU to back-to-back NCAA Final Four berths.

Augustus, who owns the LSU career record with an .857 career free throw percentage, holds the distinction of being one of just two players in school history to make at least 90 percent of their free throws in a season after converting 90.1 percent during the 2003-04 campaign.

After having her No. 33 jersey retired by LSU in 2010, Augustus became the first female athlete in school history to get a statue in their honor on Jan. 15, 2023. She also had her No. 33 jersey retired by the Minnesota Lynx on May 29, 2022.

Augustus' success on the hardwood extended to the international level as she guided Team USA to four Gold medals, including three Olympic Gold medals (2008, 2012, 2016). She was also a member of the 2006 FIBA World Championship team that won a Bronze medal.

Honored as the 2003 USA Basketball Female Athlete of the Year, Augustus posted a 105-6 career record in international play. She authored a .530 career field goal percentage and averaged 8.3 points per contest.

Augustus was named as a member of the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame Class of 2024 on April 6, 2024.

KARIMA CHRISTMAS-KELLY

FACILITATOR • FIRST SEASON • DUKE, '11

Karima Christmas-Kelly closed out her first season as an Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball facilitator in 2024.

Christmas-Kelly, who spent the 2023 WNBA season as an assistant coach for the Indiana Fever, was a four-year letter winner at Duke who started 55-of-134 games from 2008-11. The Houston, Texas, native finished her career with 1,052 points, including a career-high 347 points during her junior campaign.

Melvin, a native of Roseboro, N.C., averaged 9.7 points and 5.4 rebounds per game during her 12-year WNBA career from 1999-2010. The No. 11 overall selection in the 1999 WNBA Draft by the Cleveland Rockers, Melvin earned the starting assignment in 302-of-393 contests while playing for the Rockers, Washington Mystics and Chicago Sky.

Following the 2004 season, Melvin was selected by the Washington Mystics with the second overall pick in the WNBA Dispersal Draft. She appeared in 157 games over four seasons with the Mystics before being acquired in a trade with the Chicago Sky during the 2007 campaign.

After being traded to Chicago, Melvin averaged 9.0 points per game in 63 outings, which included 43 starts. She also shot 45.6 percent from the floor and contributed 5.8 rebounds per contest.

Melvin returned to Washington as a free agent in 2009 and ended her WNBA career by playing two more seasons with the Mystics. Over six total seasons in Washington, she owned an 8.7 scoring average and grabbed 5.2 rebounds per contest.

Melvin's success in the WNBA came after a legendary and All-America career at NC State, which included the Wolfpack's only NCAA Final Four appearance in 1998. She started 118-of-124 games during her four-year career, receiving the starting nod in every game during her final three seasons.

Melvin, a 1998 NC State graduate with a degree in mass communication, became the fourth player in program history to receive Kodak All-America plaudits, earning the distinction in 1998. She received an Honorable Mention commendation on the 1997 Associated Press and Street & Smith All-America Teams before securing All-America status from the WBCA and Women's Basketball Journal as a senior.

The Most Outstanding Player at the 1998 NCAA East Regional, Melvin earned a spot on the NCAA Final Four All-Tournament Team after establishing an NCAA Tournament record with a career-high 37 points in the Wolfpack's semifinal loss against Louisiana Tech.

A three-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection, including back-to-back First-Team nods in 1997 and 1998, she was also honored as the league's Rookie of the Year in 1995.

Melvin finished her career with 2,042 points and 1,020 rebounds to stand as the second player in Wolfpack men's and women's basketball history with 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds.

Melvin ranks fourth on the Wolfpack's all-time scoring and rebounding lists, while her .582 career field goal percentage also stands fourth in NC State history. She also collected 39 career double-doubles to rank sixth on the Wolfpack's all-time list.

Melvin, who owns fifth place on the Wolfpack's career list with 154 blocked shots, was the team's leading scorer and rebounder during all four seasons and converted at least 57 percent of her field goal attempts in each campaign.

On February 1, 2000, Melvin had her No. 44 jersey honored by NC State, joining six other players to have their jersey raised to the rafters of Reynolds Coliseum. She also entered the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame in 2017.

In addition to her playing career, Melvin served as an assistant coach with the Phoenix Mercury during the 2021 season. DANIELLE VIGLIONE

PLAYER DEVELOPMENT • THIRD SEASON • TEXAS, '97

Danielle Viglione completed her third season as an Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball facilitator during the 2024 campaign, including her second year in charge of player development.

The Sacramento, California, native, who earned a trio of All-Conference accolades, knocked down a school-record 293 three-pointers and ranks seventh in Texas women's basketball history with an .812 career free throw percentage.

In her rookie campaign with the Longhorns, Viglione averaged 21.0 points per game and set the program's freshman single-season record by finishing with 629 points. The 1994 Southwest Conference Freshman of the Year also established the Longhorns' single-season mark with 115 made three-pointers, a mark that still stands today.

Viglione, the only player in Texas history with two career 40-point games, secured the Texas single-game standard when she erupted for 48 points, including a school-record 11 three-pointers, against Houston on Jan. 29, 1994. She also had 40 points earlier that season against Marquette.

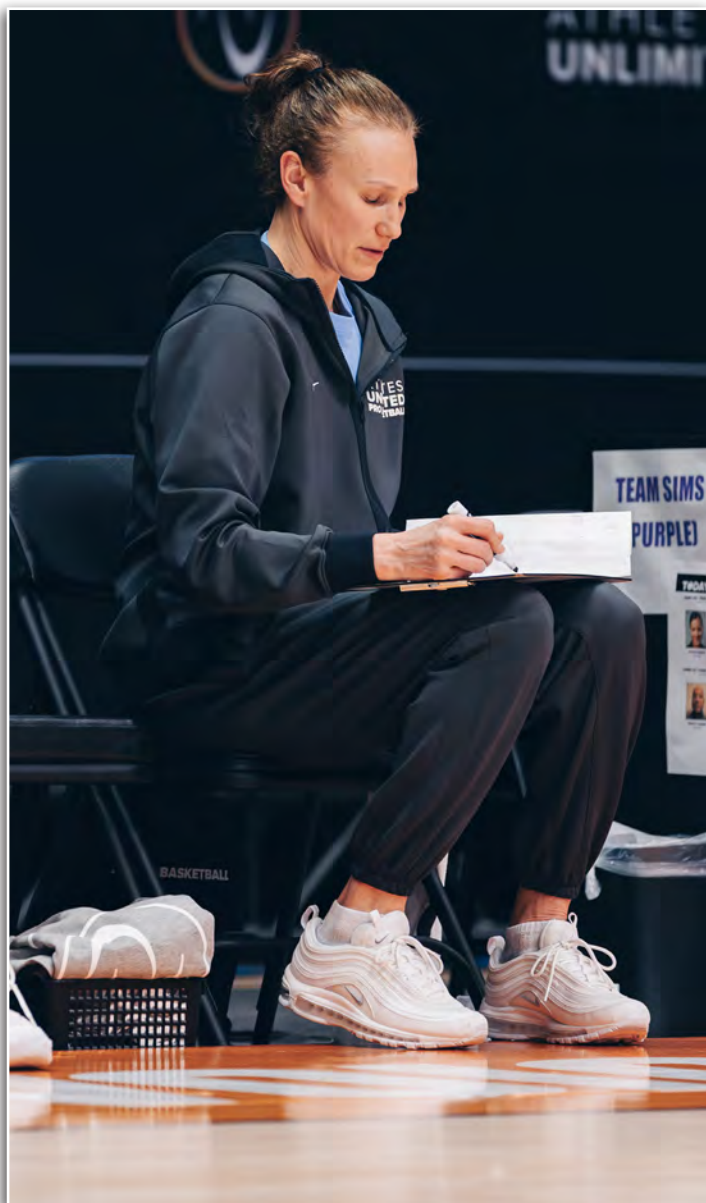

With 1,658 career points, Viglione ranks 14th on the Longhorns' all-time list and is one of five players to average 20.0 or more points in a season.

Viglione played one season in the WNBA, appearing in six games with the Sacramento Monarchs during their inaugural season in 1997. She went on to play 10 years overseas, spending time in Israel, Turkey and Italy.

The holder of 10 California state records and five national marks, she sank 379 three-point field goals and eclipsed Cheryl Miller's single-season record by scoring 1,300 points.

The owner of the Sacramento Skills Academy, Viglione was inducted into the CIF Hall of Fame in 2014 and the Sacramento Hall of Fame in 2015 before earning her spot in the UT Athletics Women's Hall of Honor in 2019.

A 1998 graduate of Texas with a bachelor's degree in kinesiology, Viglione was the recipient of the NCAA's Postgraduate Scholarship in 1997.

RAE BURRELL STRIVES TO CONTINUE GREATNESS AND GROWTH IN AU PRO BASKETBALL SEASON 3

By W.G. Ramirez
February 26, 2024

As Rae Burrell makes her way through the workout stations at Phase 1 Elite training facility, a voice yells out with authority.

Phase 1 owner Mike Waters doesn't care if it's a professional basketball player, professional football player, or college or high school athlete, the message is quite clear: "Don't be afraid to be great."

With all due respect, that's the last thing Burrell is afraid of; never has been.

Her mere 6-foot-2 presence emits motivation and positivity. Toss in an intoxicating personality and infectious smile, plus a competitive edge and desire for success, yeah, Burrell isn't afraid to be great.

Her on- and off-court attributes have been felt within a historic program at Tennessee, they've been felt when she's gotten into WNBA games during a spotty two-year start to her professional career, they're certainly felt at Phase 1, and this month they'll be felt when she joins Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball's roster for the league's third-ever season.

"Her work ethic in general, she works hard when she comes in here," Phase 1 trainer Chris Reuther said. "Once we start, once she's under that bar, or into her explosive movements, it's 100% every time. You don't even have to tell her that. Her working hard is expected at this point. I don't have to babysit her. The biggest thing I'm worried about is making sure we're giving her an optimal workout that day."

ELITE STATUS

After an impressive career at Tennessee, where she helped lead the Lady Vols to the Sweet 16 her senior season, Burrell was selected ninth overall in the 2022 WNBA draft by the Los Angeles Sparks. But a knee injury after just three games brought an abrupt end to her rookie season.

With the coach who drafted her out of college fired from his position, Burrell did not make the Sparks initial roster following last season's training camp. But when the Sparks endured a rash of injuries, she was signed to a pair of hardship contracts, one in May and one in June, and ended up playing 29 games for Los Angeles.

She's played two different years overseas, after her rookie year in Australia and this past season in Belgium, both of which helped her see different styles of play.

Now, she's facing what is probably the most important offseason of her basketball career.

"It's important for the offseason to hold yourself accountable because it's easy in college to have your schedule ... but when you're a professional, that's on you," Burrell said. "Nobody's telling you to get up and go workout and get prepared for the offseason. Your goals are set and it's what you're willing to do for those goals."

Last year the goal was just to make a roster since Derek Fisher had been fired. This year, Burrell is confident she can find the right place and will be patient with what she feels will put her in the best situation. And then, the goal is to make a name for herself in the league.

"I'm just doing everything I can physically and mentally to prepare myself for that," Burrell said.

Like putting forth every ounce of effort at Phase 1, making sure she's getting her on-court workouts in, and keeping her mind clear and mental health in check.

Per Reuther, it's been nothing short of a breath of fresh air for all those who come in contact with Burrell, including him.

"Any performance trainer, that's what they want to be with, is the elite athletes," Reuther said. "When you do have some of those top-level athletes, it gives you a little bit more motivation for that day. You want to make sure that what you're doing is going to translate to them as a professional athlete. I take it as seriously as they do when I wake up in the morning. I'm only here for one goal and that's to make you a better athlete."

THE NEXT STEP

Though it's only been two years since she's been drafted, Burrell said she's felt the love and respect of her fellow professionals, as she's tried making connections everywhere she's been. Thus, there's a part of her that knows other players have gotten to know and see her work ethic, and respect it.

She's also become known as one of the best-dressed players in the league, widely popular for her pre-game tunnel walks, and frequently promoted on GQ Sports' Instagram pages and polls.

"It's been nice being able to have my name out there like that – but I want to have my name out there on the court," Burrell said.

Which is why she is grateful for the bond she's forged with two-time WNBA champion Kierstan Bell of the Las Vegas Aces.

The two met during the 2022 WNBA Draft, and have been friends ever since. Knowing Bell was headed to Vegas, Burrell's hometown, it was a given the two would be able to hang out and strengthen their bond.

And when Bell became a popular face during her rookie season with the Aces and during Athletes Unlimited's second season, she targeted Burrell and urged her to jump on board last season.

"But I was in Australia, so this year she had been telling me (again)," Burrell said. "I was kind of going back and forth about it because I was in Belgium, but then I decided that I wanted to do it."

Burrell said she knew it would benefit her all-around game, on and off the court, as she could not only work on her shot, finishing and executing, and taking a physical play from older and seasoned veterans — all the things she saw herself improving on during the WNBA last season — but also learn more about the personalities of women she's barely gotten to know.

"I'm looking forward to playing with other W players that I haven't even really got the chance to play with," Burrell said. "Just working on things that I need to work on. Keeping things consistent that I have, like with my shooting and just getting stronger with ball handling. I'm using Athletes Unlimited to work on my own personal things that I know I need to work on. I'm trying to win, too. So whichever team I get put on for that week. I'm just focused on doing whatever I need to help the team win as well."

From there, Burrell is confident her resilience and ability to keep her head down while working hard and trusting will pay off.

"Knowing that controlling what I can control is all that I can do, I just feel like I've learned that throughout these last few years, is just to control what you can control," Burrell said. "What you can control is your work ethic and your attitude that you bring every single day."

BASKETBALL LEGEND ANGEL MCCOUGHTRY RETURNS TO THE COURT WITH AU PRO HOOPS

By W.G. Ramirez
February 29, 2024

"I'm a legend and an Icon..."

The lyrics flow with a melodramatic vibe serving as the backdrop to Angel McCoughtry's bars on her latest track.

Aptly named "Icon," it's one of McCoughtry's many ventures that is keeping fans engaged with her life off the court.

"Legend, GOAT, Role Model..."

Call her what you want, they're all vibes that will be felt over the next four weeks in Dallas within the confines of Athletes Unlimited's third pro basketball season.

McCoughtry has quickly become a welcomed O.G. along with a handful of other established and beloved basketball stars whom younger players in attendance have admired for years.

"I don't want to age her, but I remember watching her when she played for the (Atlanta) Dream when I was in high school," AU Player Executive Committee chair Lexie Brown said during Tuesday's press conference. "I was a very, very avid fan growing up in Atlanta, so I remember watching her thinking she was amazing. I remember all these things. So to have her here, we're so grateful. I'm honored that she wanted to be a part of this for sure."

First-year AU Pro Basketball player Haley Jones took a step further, saying she didn't want to age Brown, but she was in middle school watching McCoughtry when she was working on an All-American career at Louisville.

"I think it's really cool to be able to be here and ... just soaking up a lot of her knowledge," Jones added. "Especially having someone like Angel, who's just like a pillar of women's basketball for me growing up."

McCoughtry admitted during a recent conversation she was skeptical at first, questioning whether she wanted to dedicate five to six weeks to a 3-year-old league at the age of 37, wondering if this was the avenue that would lead her back to the WNBA after missing last season.

Should she work on her basketball skills privately while focusing on several entertainment endeavors, including her newly released six-episode "Ballin' in Baltimore" on the Very Local app, or her music that has been widely streamed across the board?

"I worked so hard for this..." is a lyric from another one of her joints, "3 Stripes," which leads the open to every "Ballin' in Baltimore" episode.

What McCoughtry's worked hard for is a decorated career as a basketball player and businesswoman, which is why it didn't take long for her to realize joining AU was her best decision to tip off 2024.

"I'm around the camaraderie again," she said. "I get to be around the energy of it. It really is amazing how they have everything organized and just being around players like Ty (Young) and Essence (Carson), the older players. I'm glad they're here because I did not want to be the oldest player here. It's good to have that, the vets mixed with the younger players, because then you can see the younger players learn from Essence and Ty and (Natasha) Cloud ... and myself."

From a personal standpoint, she also gets back in shape, and is not only around the game, but will be in competitive situations she'll need to obtain a new contract in the WNBA.

"That's my goal, and I thank AU for giving me that opportunity," she said. "This actually has been a blessing in disguise for a lot of girls. It's beyond basketball here, I'm getting to know what these girls (do). To learn the talents they have beyond basketball, this is creating a legacy for all these women, and friendships and bonds beyond the game."

CHARMING ANGEL

The creators of "Ballin' in Baltimore" couldn't have picked a better person to introduce fans to her hometown of Charm City, considering McCoughtry exudes nothing but pleasing human characteristics, such as charm and charisma.

Hailing from East Baltimore, the five-time WNBA All-Star first picked up a basketball at 8 years old when a friend of her mother's suggested the sport due to McCoughtry's height at such a young age. Her father played at Coppin State, so the sport, some may say, was in her genetic code.

When you come from a historically basketball-rich community like Baltimore, where in certain neighborhoods you honed your skills on asphalt courts, built-in grit was a necessity. And if you can't show your bravado and toughness on street courts, others will find your weaknesses to expose.

McCoughtry has never been one to be exposed for weakness.

A quick glance at her résumé proves that, as she clearly belongs in the same conversations, many add Diana Taurasi, Sue Bird, Maya Moore, Candace Parker, and Cynthia Cooper in when discussing WNBA GOATS.

Perhaps the defensive tenacity that landed her on the league's All-Defensive First Team seven times comes from a cold-blooded nature that's sometimes needed to ball in Baltimore.

The two-time WNBA scoring champion also has roots grounded in Atlanta, which she proudly represents in addition to her hometown, making it two basketball-rich communities known for the type of moxie that employs a winning attitude.

In keeping a tough, deliberate persona as a true baller from the streets of Baltimore, she can also present a calming and resolute nature. It's a dichotomy she pulls off well, understanding those around her without judgment.

"She's a veteran with over a decade of W experience and an Olympian who helped that team win a gold medal," third-year AU veteran and fellow OG Syd Colson said. "With that résumé alone, you know that she'll bring great insight to whichever team she's on each week and a winning mindset."

THOUGHTFUL ANGEL

Don't get it twisted, the two-time gold medalist wants what she deserves.

But this is a person who when WNBA players were making no more than $100,000 per year said she wanted to see players and their brands expand to 1 million dollars of net worth within 7-10 years.

That was in 2017.

Some annual salaries are now upwards of $200,000 per season, while endorsements for many players are nearing nearly seven figures, if not there already.

Her stance remains the same, that the men's game is set, and the women's game is an evolution.

"It's a beautiful thing that it's happening," said McCoughtry, a member of the WNBA's 25th Anniversary team. "Of course we have a way to go. But I feel like it's just time. You can't tell me Candace Parker's value and brand is worth less than a million. You can't tell me that. You can't tell me Diana Taurasi's, Sue Bird's brand, my brand is less than a million. I'm standing by that. I just want things to get better for vets like myself, who have paid their dues."

BASKETBALL LEGEND ANGEL MCCOUGHTRY RETURNS TO THE COURT WITH AU PRO HOOPS

"And it's time to pay homage to these women who've been around so long. They kept the league alive."

She isn't shy in admitting she's contemplated leaving the game many times, but the deep passion she has for the sport — past, present and future — has kept a ball in her hands no matter what.

She continues to prove she still has game; her voice is powerful on and off the court, her leadership is invaluable, and her experience would enhance any locker room.

Which is why she wants to make a return to the WNBA, make a difference with whatever team will have her, and prove once and for all she should retire on her terms — not those of others.

"No vet of any caliber of that sort should go through that," McCoughtry said. "And hopefully my story can change that with the future of the league, with more roster spots for women, better treatment for women with injuries, better treatment for women who are pregnant, it's time to elevate our game to that level.

"I don't want it to continue to where women give their all to this game and then you're shut out."

Further, McCoughtry wants to be more involved in working toward a better community for women who support one another after basketball, be it with professional endeavors, coping with retirement, or simple check-ins from a mental health aspect.

It's an area from the outside looking in she said her basketball comrades can do better, working together stronger, knowing there's more power in numbers.

"I think we all as human beings have our own mental health struggles," McCoughtry said. "We have our own demons and spiritual warfare. But it's more so checking on a person. Sometimes we don't check on (friends). People fake being okay. They're not gonna show you they're hurt.

"I don't want these girls to get lost. I hear a lot of the older OG's, older than us, say, 'I just feel like I'm on my own island.' I don't want that to have to keep happening. I want girls to work together more, help each other, have a place after the game where they can continue to build, have a community grow and where they can continue to make money.

"I don't want to see any WNBA players struggling financially when you're a pro athlete."

Words of a Legend. An Icon.

REBECCA HARRIS HONORED TO HOLD AU PRO BASKETBALL LEADERSHIP ROLE

By Stephen Hunt

March 4, 2024

Rebecca Harris is among a handful of players to participate in Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball each of its first three seasons, something she considers a badge of honor.

"This is certainly a high-level competition, but I look at it like coming to summer camp with your friends. The people that come through here, you look forward to seeing them and you look forward to catching up," Harris said. "You look forward to getting to know them a little bit better."

Not only is Harris an AU veteran, but she's also part of its leadership through her role on AU Pro Basketball Player Executive Committee (PEC).

"I really look at it like a huge responsibility. I know how I felt, the things that I went through when I first entered this scenario as a player who has a different background than a majority of the players," she said. "I see some things needed for everyone, for the different types of players."

"This is different than playing in other leagues where people just come and go. Here, you can get into it more seriously with one another, be vulnerable and open. That's something I certainly look forward to. I honestly try and relay that message to the rookies or the young bucks — 'Hey, really tap into this (opportunity) a little bit differently than you would anything else.'"

Sydney Colson is a fellow AU veteran who is playing for a third straight year and again serving on the PEC, which she chaired in 2022 and 2023. In fact, she and Harris are close friends, which led Harris to play this season for the Guthy-Jackson Charitable Foundation, which seeks medical breakthroughs for those with neuromyelitis optica (NMO), a life-threatening autoimmune disease.

"So, I chose this foundation because it's more important to someone who's important to me. This is the foundation that she (Colson) has represented for years due to her mother's condition," Harris said. "When choosing the foundation I wanted to represent this season, (I thought) it would be great to help her and this foundation out. Speaking to the people that run this organization, I couldn't be more excited and prouder of my decision to help and represent them because they seem like some great and awesome people."

Harris has won three championships in the Global Women's Basketball Association (GWBA) along with a decade spent playing abroad in countries like the Czech Republic, Poland, and Turkey.

Besides her impressive basketball resume, Harris also grew up in a military family, spending her formative years in the Philippines, Japan, and Germany before her family settled in Illinois for high school. Her experiences on and off the court have not only led her to become a successful motivational speaker, but also a published author as her book "How Bad Do You Want It?," which answers all the questions fans had about her life in and out of basketball.

"People often ask me how was it (being in a military family) and would you rather (have grown up differently)? I'm like, 'No, this is what has shaped me,'" Harris said. "From an early age, I learned how to be accepting of others. How could I not be accepting of others as a young, African American female growing up and living in Japan, the Philippines, or Germany and seeing other cultures?"

"Kudos to my parents because we were also a family that took the time to explore, go off base, be engulfed in the countries we were in, to be appreciative of their land, way of living, food. That's certainly helped me adapt to any situation (in) any place that I've ever been, and helped me be successful in having an overseas career for such a long time. It's certainly allowed me a greater respect for different cultures and adapting to the world around me."

Another label she's added in recent years is coach as Harris has done so at both the high school and collegiate levels, experiences she enjoyed on several levels.

"I love giving back. I love showing people the way, teaching people everything I've ever learned from all the great coaches and mentors that I've ever had," she said. "I take my opportunities when they've come and when it was a good time for me to just take a break from playing overseas. It's been good. Will I get back into it? Where would I like to coach? What level would I like to coach? I've turned down a couple jobs over the years just because I still love playing, but yeah, it's a possibility. I'll probably get back into it at some point."

TIFFANY MITCHELL'S PURSUIT OF PERFECTION

By Savanna Collins

March 8, 2024

Basketball is a game often measured in percentages — field goal percentage, true shooting, free throws made. While no one is expected to hit every shot or drain every three, Tiffany Mitchell has always chased the impossible: 100%. Perfect.

"I'm never satisfied," Mitchell explained. "Even if I make 30 points, I'm thinking about the one shot that I missed. I could have had 32 points."

This has been the calling card of her eight-year journey in the WNBA. Mitchell has had stability and longevity, two things many trying to earn one of the 144 spots in the W desperately covet. Drafted to Indiana in 2016, Mitchell played seven seasons with the Fever until being traded to the Minnesota Lynx for the 2023 season. This upcoming year she's headed to the Connecticut Sun after another trade.

All those years in one place, Mitchell never let familiarity lead to stagnation. Even though she suited up with the same name across her chest year after year, those seasons are each marked drastically different for No. 25.

"You have to be willing to accept certain things and roles that are thrown at you," Mitchell said. "There's teams that I played on and played 30 minutes a game, and there's teams that I played on where I played five minutes a game. Being a competitor, those games where you're playing five or less minutes is very hard to still wake up and want to keep getting better."

The mental strength required of a pro is a lesson the fresh-faced South Carolina grad could never know stepping into her rookie season. She would learn over time as teammates were signed and traded, coaches hired and fired, that the thing she could control was her.

"I still got to be the first one in the gym, last one out... constantly evolving," Mitchell said.

BUILT IN COLUMBIA, S.C.

Mitchell's foundation when she stepped in to be a major contributor as a rookie in 2016 was a firm one. She left South Carolina as one of the most decorated players in program history, making more starts and playing in more games than any Gamecock. She earned the University of South Carolina President's Award, the highest annual award bestowed on a student-athlete, honoring achievement in athletics, academics and community outreach.

She's in the books as fifth in Gamecock history with 1,885 points and 234 steals, and second in program history in both three-point shooting (39.9%) and free throw shooting (77.3%). She holds seven single-season school records, including three-point percentage (.541 in 2013-14) and free throws made (157 in 2013-14) and free throw percentage.

It was clear if Mitchell couldn't be perfect, she was going to be the closest one to it.

BECOMING UNIQUELY VALUABLE

In her near-decade as a pro, Mitchell said each year she's strived to "put something else in her toolbox."

While in the system of a traditional team, it's not often she gets to flash all the skills she's built up over time but at Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball it's what made her a standout player in Week One and catapulted her to the top of the leaderboard. She showcased how she can make an impact on both ends.

"Defense isn't that flashy. [When] people come to the games, they want to see the offensive scoring, the fast pace, but you also need those players who can lock those people down so the fact that I feel like I'm able to do both is very hard to come by," Mitchell reflected.

Mitchell is third in the league in points made and steals. She can drive hard to the rim or pull up from long range.

"Two-way players sometimes get looked over because they do take so much pride in their defense... I hate getting scored on. It happens but I'm trying my hardest to not get scored on, but also still be effective offensively."

Within the AU Pro Basketball scoring system, all the effort that might get overlooked is rewarded in the points system from grinding for steals and boards to the flashiness of hitting a three. Of all athletes with 10 or more attempts, Mitchell had the best three-point shooting percentage sinking 7-of-12. Her three-point shooting was a misconception she was eager to correct.

Mitchell wants it known that it's not that she can't shoot the three, it's that it wasn't expected or asked of her on most of her previous teams. She was tasked with getting downhill while other teammates spread the floor.

"As you see here, I'm a lot more comfortable, a lot more free to kind of just do what I've been doing my whole life. I've been in the gym 24/7, so it's not that I can't shoot 'em, it's just being confident and knocking 'em down."

PERFECTING PERFECTIONISM

A journey through the lens of perfectionism can be a challenging one. While it's pushed Mitchell to excellence she exudes it's also hindered her in the past.

"You have those days where you question if what you're doing [is] enough," Mitchell said through tears. "I'm always harping on what I'm not doing and not realizing the path that I've taken, how much that I've actually accomplished along the way, and just letting myself experience some grace and not being so hard on myself all the time."

It's what's made this past week at AU Pro Basketball so sweet. A different setting, a different stage where Mitchell could step into the limelight in a way she never has before.

"This past week for me has been amazing, just knowing that I'm able to show people this is really who I've been."

Previously, she might have defined perfect as never making a mistake. Now, it changes every day.

"If I try to reach and chase after perfection, greatness is somewhere in the distance," Mitchell explained. "I just try to focus on one part of something that I'm going to work on or lock in on and try to perfect that day and whatever that is in that moment and then along the way, I'll just keep building on that."

Her emotions were fueled by all the hours spent no one saw. The injuries she pushed to overcome, sometimes relearning to jump or even walk. The hard conversations with her family confronting what it will take from her to not only maintain a spot on a WNBA roster but thrive.

"People who know me know this has always been Tiffany. She's always been one of the hardest workers. She's always spent time in the gym. I'm just getting that opportunity now and to show everybody.

"Seven years of Indy, one in Minnesota, traded to Connecticut. All of that is a part of my book and I'm still writing my story. So stay tuned."

GRACE BERGER HAS MADE QUICK ADJUSTMENT TO AU PRO BASKETBALL

By Stephen Hunt

March 11, 2024

Grace Berger's first week in Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball was an absolute whirlwind, but she's not complaining.

After completing her rookie season with the WNBA's Indiana Fever last September, she ventured abroad for the first time, playing with Spain's Gernika KESB for three months before getting injured.

After returning to the States, she reached out to AU Pro Basketball about playing in Dallas in 2024, but there were no available spots. However, at about 10 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 24, she received a phone call out of the blue.

"(AU Director of Sport for Basketball) Megan Perry sent me a message asking me to call. I called her right away, (she) said a spot had opened up," Berger said. "I was excited."

At the time, Berger was in her hometown of Louisville, Kentucky with her parents and two days later departed for Dallas to join AU. After talking to Lexie Hull and Kelsey Mitchell, Fever teammates last season, she knew exactly what to expect.

"I knew this league has a lot of great players. It was something I wanted to do to challenge myself, especially when preparing for my second WNBA season," Berger said. "It was a quick turnaround, but it was really exciting. 'I've asked them (Hull and Mitchell) a bunch of questions. They've told me how it works.'"

And in a nice twist, she found herself on Team Hull in Week One, and as she did during her successful collegiate career in Indiana, where she was a three-time first-team All-Big 10 Conference selection, she did a little bit of everything, averaging nearly 11 points, four rebounds, and five assists over her first three games.

"The point system's cool because it's not just focused on scoring. Being able to do other things is important," Berger said. "Being a versatile player will be helpful going into the next W season."

On and off the court, it's been a seamless transition for Berger, something she credits to the outstanding AU staff who made her instantly feel welcome and who ably assisted her with basic tasks to ensure she could focus on returning to the court.

"They've been great. Obviously, it was a quick turnaround to get me here and then I only had a couple days to prepare for my first games," she said. "They made sure I was set up and my living conditions were good. They moved me in right away. The medical staff has been great, helping get my body right to play three games in four days, which is a lot. The facilitators have been good in letting me know what to expect. Everyone's been really welcoming."

Berger, who is playing for Players for Pits, a dog rescue organization based in the Chicago area which gives second chances to pit bull-type breeds, has also enjoyed the off-court activities which AU organizes for its players as ways for them to get to know one another better and as learning experiences.

"Today (March 6), we had a history lesson with people from the AIAW (Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women). People who played women's basketball in the 1970s gave us a history of what the experience was for the trailblazers in our game which a lot of people don't know about. That was really cool," she said. "They're providing experiences for us, not just on the court a good experience, but a great experience off the court as well."

Speaking of different experiences, even though her first taste of playing overseas was unfortunately cut short by injury, Berger took away plenty of positives from her time in Spain.

"Getting hurt was a bummer just because you move over there. Obviously, you don't want to have to pack up all your stuff," she said. "You want to be able to finish out the year, but it was still a great experience. It was a different playing style, but I think that's really good to experience that, take some things from their game, the European style, and hopefully bring that back and add it to what the game's like here. The refs let you play over there. The players are more physical for sure. That will help me going into the next season of the W when we're playing against the best athletes in the world."

And after hearing Hull, the 2023 AU Defensive Player of the Year, talk last season in Indiana about how much she loved the AU experience, Berger knew it would be a great way to prep for the upcoming WNBA season.

"It's perfect timing. It's four weeks, a perfect timeline heading into training camp. You're playing against WNBA competition every game," Berger said. "I'm getting to guard vets in the W. They're getting to guard me and I'm getting to test out different things I'm hoping to use in this upcoming year."

HALEY JONES STRIKES BALANCE ON HER OWN TIME IN DEBUT PRO YEAR

By W.G. Ramirez

March 14, 2024

It has been a while since Haley Jones has been able to embrace hobbies away from basketball.

In fact, it has been a while since the Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball newcomer has been able to enjoy much of anything off the hardwood.

Spending most of the last 10 years dedicated to 12 months of training — be it with AAU or high school ball before starring for Stanford — the only thing the 6-foot-1 guard has been consumed by has been basketball.

“When you’re in college, your days are so scheduled out for you, it’s very rigid. You lift, practice, you have study hall, you have treatment — your day is so scheduled out,” said Jones, who was drafted sixth overall in the 2023 WNBA Draft after rejecting an option for an extra season of eligibility after Stanford was shockingly eliminated in the second round of the NCAA Tournament last March.

Now, after appearing in all 40 games for the Atlanta Dream last summer and averaging 14.6 minutes per game while turning in 3.7 points, 2.4 rebounds and 2.3 assists per contest as a reserve, she was able to enjoy her first true offseason.

Whether it’s been taking long walks, educating herself on a holistic outlook to life thanks to the influence of Dream teammate Monique Billings, entrenching herself into fitness and yoga, meal-prepping for a healthier lifestyle or finally losing herself in books that have nothing to do with college — Jones is living her best life.

And everything has been on her time.

“Stuff like that has been really fun, I think it’s been great,” said Jones, who led Stanford to the national championship in 2021 and was named the tournament’s most outstanding player. “Also, just to take a little bit of a break. College is year-round. So, getting to have my first little bit of a break to kind of relax, have a bit of a reset has been nice.”

Her training has not lacked, as she’s continued to work with Atlanta’s staff both on the court and in the weight room, not to mention doing community service for the Dream. But again, on her time.

She has also been building a bigger following with her podcast and even had her new teammate and AU alum Jordin Canada on as a guest.

“I think she has a great personality, she seems like a lovely girl,” said Canada, who was traded to Atlanta in the offseason. “Our conversation was very fluid; it wasn’t awkward at all. She’s able to hold a conversation and her maturity level is very high for someone of her age. That’s a testament to her and how she was raised and being at Stanford. I’m looking forward to getting to know her a little bit more as a friend and as a teammate and just being able to share my knowledge of what I’ve learned in this league and how I’ve improved and how I could potentially help her going into her second year.”

Before that, though, Jones continues the process of preparing for her sophomore campaign by playing alongside some of the best players in the WNBA, with the second half of the AU season set to tip off Thursday.

“I feel like I expanded my skill set a lot in the offseason and now I have to incorporate that into a live game setting,” said Jones, who sits 27th on the leaderboard with 1,442 points heading into Week Three at Athletes Unlimited. “I think AU, with the competition level here, it’s going to push me.”

She said another differential from her years at Stanford has been enjoying some of the many activities planned away from the court that have allowed her to make new friends from around the W, players she may not have met otherwise. It is one thing to have bonded with some of her Stanford teammates during her time in Palo Alto, but she did not bond with players around the soon-to-be disbanded Pac-12 Conference.

At Athletes Unlimited, she has gotten the chance to bond with 39 women and isn’t taking her newfound relationships for granted.

“I can hear about whatever people are doing, just learning more about them off the court, and I think that’s really interesting,” Jones said.

That said, Athletes Unlimited has given Jones a chance to reconnect with her former college teammate Lexie Hull, the league’s reigning Defensive Player of the Year.

The two, who both starred on the championship squad and were teammates during Week One of the AU season, have been reminiscing about good times, playing pickleball, and gotten back to The Bachelor watch parties on Monday nights.

“I feel like I’ve talked to so many people, (but) I think what’s been really fun these first few weeks is getting to hang out with Lexie like we used to,” Jones said. “We haven’t seen each other very much. You go from spending four years with somebody in such a tight-knit community, and then we were separated and now (I get to) be around her again.”

The past two weeks, eight-year WNBA veteran Alisha Gray has drafted Jones to her squad, and beams with pride when talking about her Dream teammate.

“I love Haley, she’s such a nice and sweet person,” Gray said. “She’s a great leader and she’s also a big point guard, hence, why I wanted her on my team as well. I think her playing at Athletes Unlimited will help her a lot. It will allow her to try different positions and also test out different parts of her game. She can learn more stuff about herself as well, and I’m looking forward to her making her jump from her rookie season to her second year in the W.”

Canada added that the combination of Jones’ basketball IQ and versatility is something she is looking forward to being around in Atlanta.

“She was able to grasp the league very quickly and adjust very well,” Canada said. “Just her being able to have that ability to (be versatile) really does help a team, especially for Atlanta, her being able to come and play the one and control the offense but also being more of a scorer, being more of a rebounder, and being able to guard four players in this league.

“Because this league is very fast and very quick. You have a lot of post players who are very mobile now, and so the fact that she can do that, it really does bring an advantage to Atlanta to the team.”

And for Jones, with a chance to play on a roster drenched with talent, she is elated with how much promise there is in just her second season as a pro.

“I’m really excited, I love being in Atlanta,” Jones said. “I love playing for (coach) Tanisha (Wright) and the rest of the staff. I think that they’re really special. And I think that last year doing what we did ... It left us really wanting more and moving into this next season.

“I think that we already kind of created a great foundation with the run we had last year. And then to have those offseason pickups like Jordin Canada, Tina Charles, Ariel Powers, like those are big names ... bringing those people in who are not only extremely talented on the court, but just seem like great pieces to add to a team. I’m really excited to play with them.”

EMILY ENGSTLER: EVOLVING ON AND OFF THE COURT

By W.G. Ramirez

March 18, 2024

Through 2 1/2 seasons at Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball, many basketball alumni have come away talking about improved confidence and a better understanding of X's and O's.

For Queens, New York native Emily Engstler, it's been a bit more uplifting than what she expected, and what she's gaining on the court.

"I have many people in my life, friends and family, who deal with deep mental health issues, and it's really sad and scary," she said. "And I tell them, 'You need to talk to somebody, it's going to help. You can't do this by yourself.'"

If anyone knows, it's Engstler, who struggled with her mental health during her early college years and continues her growth and healing, a maturation process that has helped her evolve as a professional.

At AU Pro Basketball, the support has been tremendous.

"I am definitely not at a point in my career where I think I can settle," said Engstler, who has been one of AU's top newcomers and broke the league's single-season blocks record in Week Three. "I'm still grinding, I'm still trying to get into the (WNBA). I can use those (mental health) victories right now. I got a chance to be with Athletes Unlimited. All these pro players around me who's dealt with the same things, I'm having conversations with them and it's giving me an easier time to come in and have more confidence and be more excited for this training camp."

FINDING HELP

Her evolution, she said, has been much in part to being open to conversation the past couple of years, while she's worked as much on her mental health as she has her on-court skills.

Talking to veterans such as Theresa Plaisance, Natasha Cloud, and Ty Young has helped tremendously, as it reminds Engstler that even some of the longest-standing names in professional women's basketball have shared the same emotions.

Engstler attended the Washington Mystics' training camp last year and had a handful of conversations with Cloud, now a member of the Phoenix Mercury. But during this AU season, the two have spoken at length, for hours, and the veteran has provided a wealth of hope for Engstler.

"Props to (Athletes Unlimited for) the people that they're pulling in, because they've done a really good job," Engstler said. "As a younger player, I'm able to talk to them. They're very easy to learn from. It's tough love but it's good, it's not demeaning. They've done a really good job of making me feel better about my third year going pro, whether that's the W or overseas."

If Engstler had it her way, she would push for better resources at the high school level, preparing athletes for college.

Engstler said when she was playing at Christ the King in Queens there wasn't much to worry about, going about life carefree while enjoying her time attending and playing for her hometown high school.

Things changed when she got to Syracuse.

"There was so much more pressure around being an athlete ... and that's when I think I dealt with my own issues," she said. "And one of the hardest things was I had the resources, but I was embarrassed or afraid to use them. I think it's important to show high schoolers that there is help so when they get to the more pressured age, because at this point with all the money involved, it's getting younger and younger, the pressure of playing sports."

"I think college was so difficult, so many emotions, so many things going on. I made numerous bad decisions because of my mental health at certain points in my career and life. And by the time I became a pro, I wish I did it differently, in some aspects. I dealt with a lot of anxiety, and I didn't know how to control it or figure it out."

SHARING IS CARING

Though it's been a grind for Engstler the past two years, she's found herself grinding and leaning on close friends when she hits mental blocks.

"The biggest thing that I do use is the people in my circle," Engstler said. "There are a couple of people who I talk to for different things and they keep my head up high. I'm at a very good place in my life right now mentally, I'm really trying to capitalize on it because I also think I'm at a point in my career where I can make a roster and make some stability out of my career."

After being selected fourth overall pick by the Indiana Fever in 2022, and playing 12 games with the Minnesota Lynx last season, Engstler is hoping to latch on with the Mystics after signing a training camp contract with them in February.

And that's where the confidence of everyone else who's played at AU comes into play for Engstler, who is feeling both mentally and physically at her best after battling a shoulder injury last season.

"AU is a very important league. It gives players who might have been struggling a real chance to hoop. We all feel like we're on the same level playing field and it's just a really good opportunity. I would say my game has definitely been more confident. It's definitely boosted mine from just two weeks of play. I would say my game from when I first walked in here to now, I'm way more confident about going into training camp."

Engstler said playing for a cause is one thing she's come to appreciate while playing in AU Pro Basketball and wishes the WNBA would inherit the same idea.

"I don't know if this will ever happen, but I think one of the coolest things at AU is that we play for a cause," said Engstler, who is playing for Virago, a nonprofit organization and wellness community dedicated to improving the physical and mental health of athletes. "If they could implement that into the W, I think we would help a lot of causes because, obviously, the W has been around a lot longer. They probably get a little more money and have more players. Some kind of way we can implement that in, I don't know exactly how they do it. But I think that's one of my favorite things about this place ... It was one of the reasons I joined this league."

RUTHY HEBARD RELISHES ROLE AS SPARK OFF BENCH IN AU PRO BASKETBALL

By Stephen Hunt

March 21, 2024

Basketball fans know Ruthy Hebard from her time with the Chicago Sky and her standout collegiate career at Oregon, where she earned countless awards and played alongside current WNBA contemporaries Sabrina Ionescu and Satou Sabally.

However, before hitting the hardwood in Eugene, she was a two-sport star in basketball and volleyball in Anchorage, Alaska, a unique upbringing she wouldn't trade for anything.

"It was fun. I didn't know much else other than Alaska and the competition there," Hebard said. "It shaped me into who I am, to be a competitor, not always the first noticed, the underdog, but to go out, have fun, and be myself. I know that can carry me far. I'm blessed to be from there."

And even though it's been a few years since she last played volleyball, she sees serious carry-over in the skills needed to succeed at both sports.

"I see lots of volleyball and basketball players have the same build. I miss volleyball. It was so much fun," Hebard said. "I didn't like running as much growing up, so volleyball was one of my favorites to go out there, jump, and hit the ball. The footwork carries over. You have to have good footwork in both, hand-eye coordination. All that is similar (for both sports) in those aspects."

The Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball newcomer recently signed with the Minnesota Lynx after four seasons with the Sky. She was the No. 8 pick in the 2020 WNBA Draft, helping lead the Sky to the 2021 WNBA title.

Like many players who come to AU, Hebard has embraced its unique format of potentially having different teammates each week.

"It's been really fun but also it's (great) learning from new people every week, learning styles and stuff," Hebard said.

"It makes me a better player to know that Natasha (Cloud) likes this as opposed to Odyssey (Sims) likes this. It's fun. It's challenging. I like to challenge myself."

In her first few weeks in AU, she's already earned high marks from her captains, including Odyssey Sims in Week Two, for doing what she does best, providing a spark off the bench.

"That's crazy to hear that," Hebard said of the heady praise from Sims. "I like to do that, be a spark off the bench. I want to come in and provide the same energy as the starters and show them that I can hang with them too."

Like AU, another recent change is becoming a mother in April 2023 with the birth of her son, Xzavier.

"It (motherhood) has been challenging too but it's amazing. It's fun," Hebard said. "It's so rewarding and I'm having a blast being a mom. He's about to be one next month. I can't believe that. It makes my heart happy."

Hebard also has considerable experience playing overseas, logging minutes in Hungary, Italy, and Turkey thus far.

"(I loved) meeting new people, trying new food, and just playing. Basketball is obviously universal and it's fun to be able to go overseas and learn the different cultures while also playing basketball and seeing that basketball brings people together," Hebard said.

"No matter what you look like, how you talk, all that stuff, when you're on the court and in that gym with all the fans, it's all like a family. It's all fun. It's all competition. It's just fun. Hopefully, I can go back overseas in the next few years."

Hebard said Italian was the easiest of the three languages to pick up, a transition made easier because of a book of English words in Italian that a teammate made for her.

Hebard is playing for Chapter 510, an organization based in Oakland, California which provides youth with writing, bookmaking, and publishing opportunities by connecting teaching artists and volunteers with educators.

"When AU was talking about causes, I wanted something I care about. I really care about kids and I'm big into reading and writing," she said. "You put that together and this is perfect."

"It'd be so fun for me growing up if I had a safe space with other kids who enjoyed this to come together to write, read, be imaginative, and creative together. I wanted to support that and give back because that's something I'd love to be a part of even after AU to help kids not just in Oakland but all over the place to have safe spaces to be themselves."

LEXIE BROWN'S BATTLE FOR HER HEALTH AND BASKETBALL

By Savanna Collins
March 22, 2024

"I didn't think I was going to be able to be healthy enough for AU."

Ten months ago, Lexie Brown stared into an uncertain future about basketball and her health. Of all the obstacles she's faced in her career, this was one Brown couldn't outwork.

Brown battled untreated and undiagnosed Crohn's disease for the entirety of the 2023 WNBA season. Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball is Brown's first step back on the court following almost a year of pain, procedures, and finally recovery.

"Having this league changed my life and it's allowed me to get back healthy and get back to the level of play," Brown said.

Crohn's disease is an inflammatory bowel disease that causes chronic inflammation and irritation of the digestive tract. Brown was diagnosed with Crohn's in November but the journey to her diagnosis was a long and painful one.

PLAYING THROUGH PAIN

When training camp with the Los Angeles Sparks started in May, Brown was journaling about her days. In those entries, she wrote about the early signs of not feeling herself; how she didn't have her usual energy to come in to practice early or pick up extra workouts that she always did on away trips.

By the time the regular season rolled around, Brown was enduring intense pain caused by fistulas. Fistulas are small tunnels that form between two organs or an organ and the surface of the body. Inflammation from Crohn's disease causes the sores to form. They can make everyday occurrences like walking or going to the bathroom excruciating.

Brown was playing more than 35 minutes per game in the WNBA with the condition. She had a routine she tried to maintain to work around the pain: go to shootarounds in the morning, eat, then go to the bathroom. This gave her enough time to get the pain to a tolerable level and take pain medication right before warmups so she could be ready for tipoff.

She played through it. Through seven games in the season, Brown averaged 16 points per game. She even had a Sparks career-high night, putting up 26 points against the Phoenix.

But an early afternoon game on a road trip to Dallas threw a wrench in her makeshift routine. The team was huddled in the locker room ready to run out when Brown had to sprint away and endured a traumatizing trip to the bathroom.

She didn't have enough time to let the pain pass. She could barely walk.

"I don't know how I played that game. I was in so much pain," Brown said. "If I can find any clips of me running during that game, any game actually, it was like I had something stuck inside of me. I was moving very gingerly."

Brown, recognizing something was wrong, sought medical help for months but hadn't gone to a colorectal specialist yet. She saw a doctor when she returned to LA after the road trip. The day after, she was in emergency surgery.

It was mid-June when Brown had her first of two procedures to treat the fistulas and control the pockets of bacteria in her body. They had caused an infection and she was nearly septic. She missed a month of games, spending that time letting the fistulas heal but continuing to battle the pain.

"I was just in bed all day doing nothing except getting up and having a horrible time in the bathroom and then just crying. It was just really hard," Brown recalled. She takes Snapchat photos and videos as a digital scrapbook to look back on. "I had nothing in July. I wasn't doing anything and I felt horrible... From mid-June to August it's just nothing."

"YOUR BODY WON'T REST UNTIL YOU ALLOW IT TO"

Brown knew the fistulas were causing her pain but the root diagnosis of Crohn's disease was still unknown. Meanwhile, the outside noise was loud.

Media outlets, fans, and the usual mob of Twitter anon's conjectured why Brown's status with the Sparks was a "non-covid illness". Many criticized, accusing her of having a "mystery illness" and being secretive. People demanded answers but there wasn't one to give.

"There was nothing for me to share," Brown said. "I was just sitting in a corner like, 'Okay well, I'm just going to let this ride out' because the team knows what's going on, my family knows what's going on, and that's all that matters."

Like every other obstacle Brown had faced in her career, she hoped this could be another that she outworked. "All these years I've played basketball, days off time didn't exist," Brown said.

That mindset got her to the elite level she is at today but in this phase of her life, it would no longer serve her.

"The universe literally had to take me out for me to be like, 'Okay, maybe you're doing a bit too much. You need to take a few steps back and reevaluate how you approach basketball and taking care of your body and health and wellness.'"

When she'd been cut from teams in the past: work hard. When the fear of losing your spot creeps in: work harder. Brown thought she could outwork the pain and push past being tired and sick.

But her surgeon, Dr. Lin at UCLA Health, told her otherwise, "Your body won't rest until you allow it to." That candid conversation started to reshape Brown's perspective and gave her a hard realization.

"That's when I decided to shut it down for this season, which was one of the hardest decisions I had to make because I was playing so well and it was, I think, a pivotal point in my career in the W that I was having," Brown said. "It was just snatched for me."

The Sparks released a medical update on Aug. 29 that Brown would miss the remainder of the 2023 season. It was a definite ending to her season but she still had so much uncertainty ahead.

WHAT SHE'S WANTED ALL ALONG

Many people affected by Crohn's disease face weight loss and malnutrition. Brown was no exception. She lost nearly 20 pounds, hadn't played in a game since July 25, and no longer saw the strong professional athlete she'd spent six years building in the mirror. The Sparks told her to "take her time" but doubts clouded her mind.

Moved to tears, Brown recalled how hard it was to step away for the 2023 season, not knowing if she would play again or if a spot would be there for when she returned.

"They didn't tell me that, but that's just how my mind works," she explained.

On Feb. 6, 2024, Brown signed a two-year contract extension with the Sparks.

"For them to give me that two-year extension that I've worked so hard for in the midst of all of this meant everything to me and people – I don't think they realize that's always been my goal."

LEXIE BROWN'S BATTLE FOR HER HEALTH AND BASKETBALL

Now on medication to keep the fistulas under control, Brown began training again. She worked to rebuild her stamina and muscle and slowly got back to hitting the deep 3-point shots she's known for.

AU Pro Basketball also extended a contract to Brown; she was one of the league's first signees for the inaugural season in 2022 and is the chairperson of the Player Executive Committee weighing in on league decisions through the leadership role.

"I think when it comes to basketball, I'm going to be more remembered for what I did with Athletes Unlimited than what I did in the W. Athletes Unlimited didn't exist when I was growing up or when I was in college."

She believed in the league before it launched and it believed in her to make her comeback.

"I think I'm actually playing better now than I was playing last summer," Brown said. "People knew that I wasn't going to sign something or promise people a version of myself and show up as something less than that. So, I mean, I am just so grateful for everyone who has believed in me throughout this entire situation."

A NAME FOR HER PAIN

Brown didn't receive an official diagnosis of Crohn's until November near Thanksgiving. Although her symptoms pointed to the disease, it took months to see a gastrointestinal specialist who could give her the diagnosis. Brown began taking medication called Remicade which she receives through an IV infusion. It's a common medication for Crohn's that can block a specific immune antibody that causes inflammation in different autoimmune disorders.

Nearly 1 in 100 Americans are diagnosed with inflammatory bowel disease (IBD) and while it can occur at any age, Crohn's is most often diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 30. Doctors and researchers are still seeking an explanation for the cause and a cure.

Brown is playing for the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation of Greater Los Angeles/Orange County. The non-profit is dedicated to finding cures for Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis, and improving the quality of life for those with these diseases. A grant equal to 100% of Brown's end-of-season win bonus will be donated in her name to the organization.

When Brown arrived at AU Pro Basketball in February, she was on limited minutes and thought that might be the reality for the month-long season. But after Week One and three games behind her, she felt good. After flying home for her Remicade infusion, she felt even better.

With just two games remaining, Brown is eighth overall on the leaderboard. She's one of the top stat point earners this season, shooting 41.6% from the floor and 33.3% from three-point range.

When asked about this version of herself – the one who balances rest and is honest about how she's feeling but is still competitive – Brown smiles.

"I like her," she reflects. "She's still very private and still works really hard, but she's really at peace with herself."

What Brown is no longer private about is her diagnosis and struggles with Crohn's.

"The first step to living a better life is just being honest with yourself and being honest with the people around you and taking those days when you need them," Brown said.

She no longer fibs with an "I'm fine" when asked how she's doing. She's honest and is sharing her experiences with the disease so others feel less alone.

The first thing Brown googled after her diagnosis was "professional athletes with Crohn's disease." The results were limited.

Now, Brown's name will come up in that search along with all her accomplishments: the two-year extension with the Sparks, her soaring comeback with AU.

That's her message to others diagnosed with the disease: we're out there and we can thrive.

AIR HEARN'S RISE AND GROWTH ON THE BASKETBALL COURT

By W.G. Ramirez

April 2, 2024

When Air Hearn was a little girl, her mother Sonya would tell her she had nothing to be anxious about.

"You wake up every day, you brush your teeth just like these other girls, you take showers, you work out just like these other girls," Sonya Renee Hearn would say.

After three seasons playing at Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball, Hearn has proved she plays like these other girls, too.

WNBA stars, to be exact.

Just ask long-time veterans Allisha Gray and Natasha Cloud, who have both been singing Hearn's praises in saying she deserves a training camp contract.

"Air Hearn needs a job in the W and I'm gonna keep advocating," Cloud said. "I'm trying to get Phoenix to bring her into the camp too. I'm gonna keep advocating and utilizing whatever resources that I have. This girl has continued to prove herself over and over and over again against the most elite-level players in the WNBA. This girl deserves her opportunity. She can score, she can facilitate, she plays both ends of the floor, and who she is as a human being. She would be such a blessing to any organization but she's earned her opportunity."

Hearn closed the AU campaign ranking fifth in the league with 5,176 leaderboard points, just behind Cloud. In 12 games, Hearn averaged 18.0 points per game while scoring in double digits in 11.

The dynamic guard ranked third in the league a 54.6% shooting clip, while her 29 made 3-pointers were fourth-highest.

During an interview last season, Gray was asked to name one player not on a WNBA roster that deserved to be on one.

"I've been on the Air Hearn train since last season, so it's not new to me," said Gray, this year's overall champion. "I think Air deserves to be on a W team or in a training camp at least."

As does Hearn.

GREATNESS IS A PROCESS

Hearn doesn't shy away from why an invite to the W has never found her inbox, despite having the talent, as she admitted she could've been better at being more willing to learn and be coached.

"Just thinking back over the eight years, I think it definitely just wasn't my time," Hearn said. "God's time is right about everything. Not only basketball-wise, I had to have a character change. I would say that my character probably wasn't the best. I had other things going on in my life that I've since let go. ... I feel like now is the time that I fit. I fit the style of play, I fit where the W is going."

Part of her learning process came during the inaugural season of AU Pro Basketball while playing on Team Cloud during a marathon of a game against eventual 2022 champion Tianna Hawkins' squad.

The teams went into overtime during a game that saw 22 lead changes and had 24 ties.

And while she played just seven minutes of the entire game, Hearn sat back and soaked up the fact she was among players such as Cloud and Hawkins, who had won the WNBA title a few years earlier, not to mention Kelsey Mitchell, Sydney Colson, Kalani Brown, and DiJonai Carrington — all of whom she had watched at some point during their respective WNBA careers.

"I just felt like the spirit of God just told me it's not my time," Hearn said. "I really need(ed) to watch and learn. Like, these W players are really good, so I just needed to watch and learn. ... I knew as long as I would be back to AU, then I would be better. That was my humbling moment, just being on the bench ... having to take all of those steps back. I really had to sit and watch and I had to learn how to be a good teammate. I had to learn how to keep encouraging. I've never been in that position where I'm just on the bench the whole game."

"My ultimate goal is to be in the W and just to play on the highest level. And I felt like AU is kind of my best shot. It's kind of like a layup for me. So I knew I had to get in the gym, I knew what I had to work on. I just took that year to work on myself, to work on the details, and also just to rest. I got in better shape. Just seeing the results of not only the work that I put in last year, this is the work that I've been putting in for years."

BECOMING GREAT

Hearn said while taking time away from actual competition, she "lived in a gym" while honing in on her skills and coming away with a new breed of confidence.

"Just knowing that preparation breeds confidence, I knew that I had to prepare better, I had to work harder," she said.

Aside from sharpening her basketball skills, Hearn said she worked on getting into shape, running on the football field, sprinting at times, or running miles for conditioning. The idea was to come out on the other side game-ready.

When she was in the weight room, it was body parts she knew she needed to rely on to knock down shots.

"I did a lot of shoulder work, a lot of leg work," Hearn said. "I know I have to get my legs stronger in order to get my shots up and make them go in. My strength and conditioning coach used to say everything in basketball always starts with the legs, so I put in a lot of leg work, a lot of shoulder work, a lot of back work to complement my style of play."

Now, as subtle and humble as she can be, the God-fearing baller out of Memphis is confident in saying she's confident in what she would bring to a WNBA training camp.

"I just came in this (AU) season with the confidence knowing that I can compete with anybody in the W," Hearn said. "I'm just as good. I truly feel like I deserve to be here. And just keeping that mindset, it really gives me that much more confidence."

It's been a long climb for Hearn since playing her final year playing for Memphis and recently her third with Athletes Unlimited.

The chip on her shoulder is still there, but it carries a much different aura, one that can be appreciated with a much better attitude toward the sport she loves.

"There's (been) more W talent (at AU) and just the fact that I've been able to showcase, be able to perform, be able to stay healthy, has been the biggest blessing," Hearn said. "To be honest, I would not be surprised if I did not get a training camp contract. (But) I know that my story is special. I know that my story will definitely be one of a kind; I know that my entry to the W would be one of a kind."

"It would be exciting for young girls that are younger than me to know there are different ways to get there, and I'm just going to have to say that I took the long way when I arrive."
