ATHLETES UNLIMITED

ATHLETES UNLIMITED PRO BASKETBALL 101

WHO WE ARE

Athletes Unlimited is a new model of professional sports where athletes are decision makers and individual players are champions of team sports. We literally change the game with faster play and fluid teams, delivering next-level competition and engagement in which every moment counts.

Our athletes are in charge of their team and league decisions, and of their individual success. We reboot timetables, rosters and game play to create fast and exciting competition that speaks to contemporary sports fans, bringing them close to the action and the athletes in games where every moment counts. We incorporate the player-centric model that fans love about fantasy sports. We use digital media platforms and cutting-edge technology to connect fans deeply to athletes at the top of their game on and off the field, and to the game itself.

HOW THE TEAMS ARE SELECTED

A draft will be held prior to each week's games. Each week's four captains will be selected using the following procedures:

- » Week One: Captains will be determined by a random selection among returning players who wish to be included in the lottery
- » Week Two and Week Three: Captains will be the top four players on the leaderboard for the previous week only (i.e. The Week Two captains will be the top four players from Week One leaderboard)
- » Week Four: Captains will be the top four players on the cumulative season leaderboard (first three weeks)

The captains will then fill their rosters by selecting nine other players. Each draft will be held on the Monday before the week's games.

Uniform colors will be assigned based on the team captain's rank on the leaderboard. The top-scoring captain's team will wear gold, while the second-highest point scorer's team wears orange jerseys. The third-place team will wear blue jerseys and the fourth-place team will wear purple jerseys.

Each team will consist of 10 players and there are no limits on the number of players at a specific position (guard, forward, center, guard/forward etc.).

RULES OF INTEREST

Timing: Four 10-minute (10:00) stopped time quarters will be played during a regulation game with a 24-second shot clock in play. Halftime will be 15 minutes in length.

Overtime: If the game score is tied after regulation, a five-minute (5:00) overtime period will be played to determine the winner. Should the score remain tied following the overtime period, a subsequent "Elam Ending" period will be held with the winner of the game being the first team to score seven (7) or more points.

Timeouts: Each team is permitted three (3) 30-second timeouts and one (1) 60-second timeout during regulation play and all timeouts carry over from the first half to the second half. In addition, each team will be given one (1) additional 30-second timeout at the start of the overtime period in addition to any timeouts remaining prior to the period. In the event of an "Elam Ending" period, each team will receive one (1) 30-second timeout, but cannot use any other carryover timeouts.

Media Timeouts: One (1) media timeout will be called at the first dead ball at or below the five-minute (5:00) mark of each quarter unless a team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge occurs before that time frame. In addition, the first team-called timeout or Captain's Challenge of the second half becomes a media timeout.

Captain's Challenges: A captain or other determined team representative may initiate replay review of certain events subject to the provisions of the rule as set out below. Replay reviews triggered under this rule shall be referred to as a 'Captain's Challenge,' or 'Challenge' for short.

Each team is entitled to one (1) challenge in the first 38 minutes of the game and one (1) Challenge in the last two minutes of the fourth quarter, overtime period or "Elam Ending" period.

A team may utilize a Challenge to trigger replay review of the following events: (1) a called personal foul charged to its own team, and (2) a called out of bounds violation. If the challenge is unsuccessful, the team will be charged with a timeout.

Replay review of the following events, among others, are not considered "challengeable" events: (1) a called personal foul charged to the opposing team, (2) continuation – i.e., whether a defensive foul occurred prior to the offensive player beginning her shooting motion, (3) a technical or flagrant foul, and (4) violations – i.e., traveling, carrying, double dribble, offensive or defensive three seconds, etc.

INDIVIDUAL LEADERBOARD

While traditional statistics are kept during an Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball game, players receive individual points based on those statistics. Points earned through statistics, quarter wins, game wins and Game MVP selections are used to create an individual leaderboard, which determines each week's captains and the season's individual champion.

Points are awarded at the following increments during the game:

Made 3-Point Field Goal	30 Points
Made 2-Point Field Goal	20 Points
Made Free Throw	10 Points
Offensive Rebound	10 Points
Assist	10 Points
Steal	10 Points
Blocked Shot	10 Points
Offensive Foul Drawn	8 Points
Defensive Rebound	5 Points
Shooting Foul Drawn	4 Points
Personal Foul Drawn	4 Points
Shooting Foul Committed	-8 Points
Personal Foul Committed	-8 Points
Other Foul Committed	-8 Points
Turnover	-10 Points
Missed Free Throw	-10 Points
Missed 2-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Missed 3-Point Field Goal	-10 Points
Offensive Foul Committed	-16 Points

If an overtime and/or "Elam Ending" period is required, the stats accumulated during the extra period(s) do not earn any individual points for the athletes on the leaderboard. In addition, there are no additional team quarter win points for the extra period(s).

In addition, athletes will be awarded 60 individual points if their team wins a single quarter. If the teams score the same number of points in a quarter, the points carry over to the next quarter.

Athletes on the winning team in each game will be awarded 180 individual points toward the individual leaderboard.

A total of three MVPs will be selected following each game by the competing athletes with the top player earning 90 points. The second MVP will receive 60 points, while the third MVP claims 30 points.

POSTSEASON AWARDS

At the conclusion of the 2025 Athletes Unlimited Basketball season, medals will be presented to the top four finishers on the leaderboard in addition to the Defensive Player of the Year and the Newcomer of the Year. An All-Defensive Team will also be recognized as part of the closing ceremony.

ATHLETE COMPENSATION

Athletes are compensated in three ways during an Athletes Unlimited season, including base pay, win bonuses (quarter and game wins) and a leaderboard bonus.

ATHLETE CAUSES

The Athlete Causes program, powered by Give Lively, provides funding to each player's chosen charity equal to 100 percent of their season win bonus and players will have the opportunity to create their own fundraising pages to support the organizations of their choice.

MEDALS

The top four players on the season's final leaderboard in addition to the Defensive Player of the Year and Newcomer of the Year honorees will receive a medal designed and fabricated for Athletes Unlimited by Lisa Issenberg, founder of Kiitellä, inc. The front face of the medal represents the identity of Athletes Unlimited, while the back face of the medal leans into the specific sport, the year, location and words about Athletes Unlimited's vision, mission and values on and off the field - Excellence in Community and Leadership.

THE BOOK OF UNLIMITED

The Book of Unlimited was designed, handmade and bound for Athletes Unlimited. The book weighs nearly 25 pounds, measures approximately 12" by 18" and contains nearly 500 pages. The champion, along with all who competed, are inscribed into the book. In addition, The Book of Unlimited also contains a history of achievements in Athletes Unlimited, including stories, highlights and events.

The book is opened during the Opening Ceremony for each season and is closed after the champion is named and her name is inscribed into the book following the Closing Ceremony. The tradition began during Athletes Unlimited Pro Softball's inaugural season in 2020.

ATHLETE CAUSES

The Athlete Causes program, powered by Give Lively, provides funding to each player's chosen charity equal to 100 percent of their season win bonus and players will have the opportunity to create their own fundraising pages to support the organizations of their choice.

NASHVILLE MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM

Athletes Unlimited Seasons Hosted: 2025 Basketball

The Nashville Municipal Auditorium, a multi-purpose facility located in downtown Nashville, served as the host venue for the 2025 Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball season.

The venue, which opened on October 7, 1962, can hold a multitude of events, including sports and concerts. In addition to the arena, which has reserved seating for nearly 10,000 fans, an outdoor plaza provides another location for events to take place. The facility has also been home to the Musicians Hall of Fame and Museum since 2013.

Belmont University used the venue as its home basketball court from 2001-03, while the Ohio Valley Conference has crowned its basketball champion at the facility 12 times, including a seven-year run from 2011-17. The Nashville Kats played their home games in the arena during the 2024 Arena Football League campaign.

The Nashville Municipal Auditorium also carries a rich musical history, serving as the host site for the Country Music Association's first CMA Awards event in 1967.

HODGES' CAREER FACILITATOR RECORD

Season	Week 1	Week 2	Week 3	Week 4	Week 5	Total
2025	1-2	0-2	2-1	2-1	-	5-6
Total	1-2	0-2	2-1	2-1	-	5-6

An 11-year WNBA veteran with professional and collegiate coaching experience, Roneeka Hodges joined Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball as a facilitator for the 2025 season.

Hodges was hired by the Connecticut Sun as an assistant coach on January 10, 2025, after spending three years with the New York Liberty. She led the Liberty to three WNBA postseason appearances, including the 2024 WNBA title. New York also authored 30 or more regular season victories during each of the last two seasons.

The stint with the New York Liberty marked Hodges' professional coaching debut following an 11-year playing career with six teams in the WNBA. She was the No. 15 overall pick in the 2005 WNBA Draft by the Houston Comets where she played four seasons.

A New Orleans, La., native, Hodges spent the 2009 season with the Minnesota Lynx before playing two seasons with the San Antonio Silver Stars in 2010-11. She split the 2012 season with the Indiana Fever and the Tulsa Shock where she stayed through the 2014 campaign. Hodges closed out her WNBA playing career with the Atlanta Dream in 2015.

Hodges appeared in 320 total regular season games during her WNBA career, including 136 starts, and averaged 6.0 points and 1.8 rebounds per outing. She also played extensively overseas, seeing action in 10 different countries.

Hodges began her coaching career as an assistant at Old Dominion University, helping the Lady Monarchs reach the Conference USA Tournament semifinals during the 2020-21 campaign. She went on to coach at Colgate University for one season before joining the Liberty staff.

Hodges graduated from Florida State with a bachelor's degree in social sciences after opening her collegiate playing career with three seasons at Louisiana State University before joining the Seminoles for her final season of eligibility in 2004-05.

In three seasons at LSU, Hodges appeared in 94 contests and averaged 7.1 points per outing for the Tigers. She also claimed Honorable Mention All-America plaudits from womenscolleg hoops.com as a freshman in 2001 after averaging 8.4 points and 4.1 rebounds per game.

During her lone season at Florida State, Hodges was a First-Team All-Atlantic Coast Conference and Kodak Region II All-America selection after ranking 22nd in the nation with a 19.2 scoring average, the eighth-highest mark on the Seminoles' single-season chart.

Hodges' 39-point performance against Maryland on January 16, 2005, still stands as the second-highest mark on the Seminoles' all-time single-game scoring list. She also ranks as one of six players in Florida State history to score 600 or more points in a single year.

Hodges represented the United States at the 2003 Pan American Games, guiding Team USA to a 5-2 record and the Silver medal.

Kelly most recently served as an assistant coach with the Connecticut Sun for two seasons, piloting the squad to back-to-back WNBA semifinal berths. The Sun finished 2024 with a 28-12 mark, improving on their 27-13 record in the 2023 season. Kelly was added to the Indiana Fever coaching staff for the 2025 campaign, rejoining head coach Stephanie White's staff.

Prior to his WNBA experience, Kelly worked as an assistant coach and recruiting coordinator at UT-Arlington from 2021-23. During his tenure, the Lady Mavericks claimed the 2022 Sun Belt Championship in their final year in the conference and earned their first trip to the NCAA Tournament since 2007.

Kelly is no stranger to the Nashville area after serving as the director of recruiting at Vanderbilt under White from 2019-21. He joined the Commodores' staff after working as a graduate assistant and assistant scouting coordinator at Georgia Tech during the 2018-19 campaign.

The Georgia native also spent time as a boys basketball coach at his alma mater, South Cobb High School, in addition to coaching at Kell High School and a pair of stints at Champion Performance Training as a player development specialist.

A 2011 graduate of Duke University, Kelly was a three-year member of the football program who posted 129 career receptions as a wide receiver with nine touchdowns. He also played one season of basketball at Georgia Southwestern following his time with the Blue Devils.

PATTERSON'S CAREER FACILITATOR RECORD

Season	Week 1	Week 2	Week 3	Week 4	Week 5	Total

With a WNBA coaching career spanning more than 20 years with five league titles, Shelley Patterson returned to Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball as the head facilitator in 2025.

Patterson previously served as a facilitator during the inaugural 2022 AU Pro Basketball season, finishing with a 9-6 record.

Patterson joined the Washington Mystics coaching staff ahead of the 2022 campaign and guided the team to a pair of playoff berths during her three seasons on the bench. She was named the organization's Head of Domestic Scouting on March 18, 2025.

Prior to her time with Washington, Patterson was a member of the New York Liberty coaching staff for two years.

A native of San Jose, Calif., Patterson spent 10 years with the Minnesota Lynx after joining Cheryl Reeve's staff ahead of the 2010 season. After the Lynx missed the playoffs during her first season in 2010, they registered a stellar 27-7 record and won the WNBA title in 2011.

Minnesota totaled a 231-109 record with four WNBA Championships during Patterson's time on the bench and held the top spot on the Western Conference standings six times from 2010-19.

Prior to her service in Minnesota, Patterson worked as an assistant coach with the Seattle Storm from 2006-09, helping the team to four consecutive Western Conference semifinal berths. She also spent three seasons (2000-03) with the Indiana Fever in addition to one-year stints with the Los Angeles Sparks and Phoenix Mercury.

Patterson made her WNBA debut on the bench in 1999 with the Houston Comets, serving as the director of basketball operations for the league titleists.

In addition to her WNBA career, Patterson was the head coach of the National Women's Basketball League's Chicago Blaze in 2005. She was also on the coaching staff with the Philadelphia Rage of the American Basketball League in 1998.

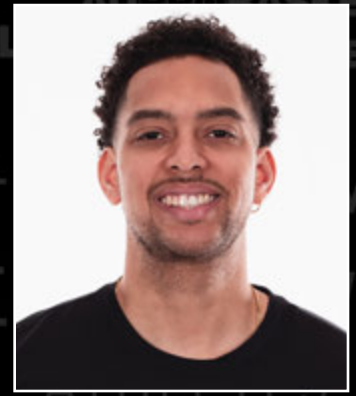

Patterson got her start in coaching as a graduate assistant at Eastern Michigan University from 1987-89.

A graduate of Washington State, Patterson appeared in 84 contests for the Cougars from 1980-83. Her 237 career steals and 2.8 steals per game average rank fourth on the career ledger, while her 99 thefts during the 1982-83 campaign are good for fifth on the Washington State single-season list.

A renowned skill development specialist, Sypkens is the founder and CEO of Touch Shooting in California, an organization that focuses on growing the game of basketball to boys and girls and providing player development and coaching team and individual concepts.

In addition to his work with Touch Shooting, Sypkens has been the head of skill development with Prolific Prep in California. He has also guided the Golden State Prep (GSP) team, a fifth-year post-graduate men's basketball program to better prepare athletes for collegiate basketball.

A four-year letter winner at UC Davis from 2009-14, Sypkens appeared in 126 games with 88 starts and finished his career with a 10.1 scoring average. He was an Honorable Mention All-Big West Conference selection as a junior after earning a spot on the 2009-10 Big West All-Freshman Team.

He finished his career by setting school and conference records with 315 three-point field goals, including a school-record 106 three-pointers during the 2012-13 campaign. He also established the Aggies' single-game standard with 10 three-pointers against Simpson on January 2, 2014.

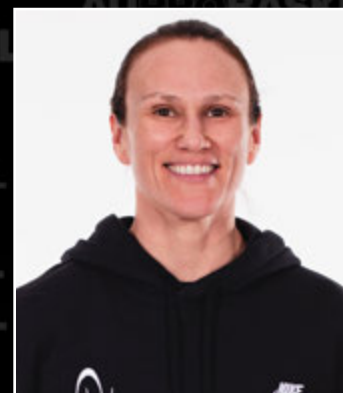

Sypkens went on to play professional basketball overseas, spending time in Colombia and Japan. He earned his bachelor's degree in psychology and minored in African American studies from UC Davis in 2014.

DANIELLE VIGLIONE

Danielle Viglione finished her fourth season with Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball in 2025, including her third as a player development coach.

After serving as a game facilitator during the inaugural 2022 season, Viglione pivoted into a player development role for the 2023 campaign and continued to hold that position in 2025. She did serve as a fill-in facilitator during each of the last two seasons.

Viglione, who joined the coaching staff for the WNBA's Los Angeles Sparks for the 2023 campaign, ranks fifth in the University of Texas record book after collecting a 15.8 scoring average over 105 games from 1993-97. The Sacramento, California, native, who earned a trio of All-Conference accolades, knocked down a school-record 293 three-pointers and ranks seventh in Texas women's basketball history with an .812 career free throw percentage.

In her rookie campaign with the Longhorns, Viglione averaged 21.0 points per game and set the program's freshman single-season record by finishing with 629 points. The 1994 Southwest Conference Freshman of the Year also established the Longhorns' single-season mark with 115 made three-pointers, a mark that still stands today.

Viglione, the only player in Texas history with two career 40-point games, secured the Texas single-game standard when she erupted for 48 points, including a school-record 11 three-pointers, against Houston on January 29, 1994. She also netted 40 points earlier that season against Marquette.

With 1,658 career points, Viglione ranks 14th on the Longhorns' all-time list and is one of five players to average 20.0 or more points in a season.

Viglione played one season in the WNBA, appearing in six games with the Sacramento Monarchs during their inaugural season in 1997. She went on to play 10 years overseas, spending time in Israel, Turkey and Italy.

The holder of 10 California state records and five national marks, she sank 379 three-point field goals and eclipsed Cheryl Miller's single-season record by scoring 1,300 points.

The owner of the Sacramento Skills Academy, Viglione was inducted into the CIF Hall of Fame in 2014 and the Sacramento Hall of Fame in 2015 before earning her spot in the UT Athletics Women's Hall of Honor in 2019.

ALYSHA CLARK PAYS HOMAGE TO TENNESSEE BASKETBALL PIONEERS IN HOMECOMING SEASON

By W.G. Ramirez
February 6, 2025

When Alysha Clark first moved to Tennessee in 2002, it felt like the mecca of women's basketball.

Some 23 years later, she finally got to play in the Volunteer State as a professional when she made her Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball debut on opening night in a special homecoming for Clark.

The fact the 37-year-old Tennessean scored the first points of the game on Wednesday, which happened to be National Girls and Women in Sports Day during Black History Month, made it even more special.

"To have grown up in this culture, it didn't matter where you were in Tennessee, you knew the fabric of the DNA of the players coming from this state," said Clark, who scored a team-high 20 points and grabbed four rebounds in Team Colson's 77-66 loss to Team Harrison. "And that's something that is super amazing and really, really special."

While she was quick to pay homage to women like Betty Wiseman and Pat Summitt, a duo who helped lay the foundation for women's basketball in the state, there's no doubt Clark is revered like the women she remembers from her days at Mount Juliet High School and in college at Belmont and Middle Tennessee State.

Wiseman led the creation of women's basketball at Belmont four years before Title IX, building the program Clark would eventually play for during her first two years in college. Thus, a sense of nostalgia settled in while she prepared for AU Pro Basketball's season in a city where Wiseman became the first Belmont coach or athlete inducted into the Tennessee Sports Hall of Fame.

"When you think of women's basketball in Tennessee, just being from here, you know B Dub — that's who you know," Clark said. "B Dub and Pat Summitt are the people that come to mind immediately. Just the impact that they had on the game, the impact that they had before it was cool. All the hurdles and things that they had to overcome. But they saw a vision, they understood the importance, and they didn't let outside (noise) and all that stuff deter them from accomplishing the goal."

Having the chance to be around Wiseman and learn her history, Clark is excited to share the Hall of Famer's story during the AU campaign while helping basketball enthusiasts understand the impact she's had on the women's game.

"There are so many pioneers before us that we don't know, or don't know enough about," Clark said. "And I think this is a perfect time to be able to tell those stories and tell that history, and it's a beautiful thing, and being from here and being able to be a part of helping tell her story, it makes this even more special."

COMING HOME

In addition to returning to her roots, Clark said Player Executive Committee members Sydney Colson and Theresa Plaisance enticed her to join Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball after hearing how the league operated over the first three years and how much they've enjoyed it.

"It's the perfect amount of time, it's four weeks, you're playing against great competition, and you get to work on those skills and things that you normally are working out with a trainer during off-season," Clark said. "You get to put that in live play and grow, and so that, for me, is exciting. And I'm just happy that I get to be a part of it."

Clark said that regardless of where she's been during the WNBA offseason, her approach to honing specific areas of her game has never changed. This year, instead of heading overseas, she will spend the next four weeks in the United States, stepping outside the role she's used to in the WNBA to sharpen her abilities while staying within a team aspect in the league's unique format.

She likes that AU enables her to be aggressive by allowing her to play more freely than she's used to during the summer or overseas.

"The players are the coach, and you're getting to just showcase the best of you while also still fitting within a team dynamic, which I love," she said. "AU encourages playing the game the right way. That's reflected in the scores and things that you earn points for, and I just think it's a great balance of both. At the end of the day, there's only a couple of superstars on every team. And so it's 'can you be a complementary player? Can you still excel while being in a different role?' And so, yeah, I'm excited."

For Clark, there's also a role she's thoroughly enjoyed during the latter years of her career — being a mentor to younger players.

"That's something that I'm always passionate about, is giving back and giving back to the game," she said. "And I know AU has a lot of younger players and young professional players. And so to be able to just pour into them, offer them the same wisdom that my vets gave to me over the years, is something that definitely excites me."

"And it's already happened and taken place, and that is special for me because I get to pay it forward for the vets that helped me get to where I'm at."

Said Las Vegas Aces coach Becky Hammon, about Clark: "They don't make 'em like AC anymore. She's really special."

Duane Clark would be proud.

HER SIXTH MAN

Immediately after Clark won her third WNBA title in 2023, she dedicated the season to her late father, Duane, who died in Sept. 2022. Clark said during a postgame television interview her father had been with her all season.

"He's been my sixth man," an emotional Clark said immediately after the Aces won the title. "I know he would be so happy right now. I'm just so happy, I know he's with me. I wish he could be here. I wish I could hold him. But, this is for him, this entire season."

Considering how Clark carries herself, her father would certainly be happy with any of his daughter's accomplishments. Forget about the six rings she's won — three in the WNBA and three overseas — not to mention the numerous accolades she's accumulated.

It's the person, teammate, and friend she is to people. It's the poise and grace with how she treats others and the professionalism she adds to any space.

"I think she does a good job of getting the best out of people around her," said Elizabeth Williams, who is also playing with Athletes Unlimited this season and will play for the Chicago Sky this summer.

Clark isn't one to focus on individual accolades or goals, especially as she winds down her impressive career. An unsigned free agent — she said she will likely announce where she'll play during the AU campaign — Clark is insistent on making an impact in the community she decides to play by doing things the right way, following her faith, and continuing to strive for her potential while continuing to bring out the best in others.

"And that's something that I've always hung my hat on," she said. "I'm not going to change the core of who I am just to try to go get an individual award (to) appease outside people. But if I can just continue to leave my mark in the communities that I'm in, make an impact on my teammates, and just reach my full potential, then I'll walk away with everything that I'm supposed to walk away with."

"I want to make sure that when I walk away from this game I don't have any questions, I don't have any regrets. I want to leave it all out there and make sure I'm reaching everything that's inside of me to be able to leave."

As Clark has stitched herself into the same Tennessee fabric of Wiseman and Summitt, she's given her father plenty of reasons to smile from above and remain proud.

TYASHA HARRIS SEIZING THE CHANCE TO LEAD WITH AU PRO BASKETBALL

By Terrika Foster-Brasby

February 14, 2025

Tyasha “Ty” Harris, one of the most talented South Carolina Gamecocks to ever play the game, is continuing to shine after her standout season in the WNBA. Now, in her first year with Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball, she’s embracing the challenge and is determined to show there’s more to her game than what most might expect.

As captain of the purple team for Week Two, Harris is stepping up and ready to demonstrate the value of a true point guard in a game that has moved toward positionless basketball. She’s out to prove that point guards not only still exist but are essential in today’s game.

For Harris, joining AU Pro Basketball was the perfect opportunity to stay in shape and prepare for the upcoming WNBA season. With a domestic league like AU, she doesn’t have to go overseas and risk coming back out of sync.

“It was exciting,” Harris said. “It’s a league here in the United States where I don’t have to go overseas or like what happened to me where I came home early and still wanna be in shape for the season, and that’s the biggest thing honestly.

“Last season I stayed home the entire time and I was just working out and then once the season started and training camp, I still kinda had to get back used to playing 5-on-5 basketball because workouts and stuff are good but nothing compares to that actual game. So, that’s one of the things that I really wanted to try before the W season starts to see how different the beginning would be for me. Just playing in it from the scrimmages to the first week and now the second week, it’s been amazing.”

Harris had an impressive start to Week Two, contributing 13 points, six rebounds, and four assists in her team’s 87-81 win over Team Bradford. She continued to climb the leaderboard and currently sits in the No. 2 spot overall. As captain, Harris is seizing the chance to show she can be more than just a quiet leader.

“It kind of forces me to be the vocal leader that everybody has challenged me to be,” she said. “I feel like I’m already a leader. I’m just more of a silent assassin leader, where I get you behind the scenes, but now that I’m a captain I gotta make up the whole practice schedule. I gotta do the warm-ups and I mean I’m being the GM. I gotta do everything that the coaches usually do, so it’s kind of a new look and I’m learning a lot ... It’s challenging me and it’s only helping me further my game.”

Known for her fearless play and clutch performances, Harris has earned a reputation for being deadly from behind the arc at crucial moments. As a member of the Connecticut Sun in 2024, she showcased that ability in their run to the WNBA semifinals. Though often labeled a “pass-first” guard, Harris clarifies that her approach is more about making the best choice for her team, ensuring they have the confidence to play freely before taking her own shot.

“I don’t think I’m just a pass-first player,” Harris explained. “I feel like a lot of people portrayed me as the pass-first point guard where I’m quiet and just passing it, but I don’t think that’s the case. Yes, I pass, but it’s also just because of who I am. I’m a true point guard where I want to get my teammates involved. I want to instill confidence in them, where they are playing at their best. I’m just a very picky scorer.

“I don’t wanna say pass-first like a person who’s scared to score or shoot the ball, I’m just a person who wants to pick and choose when I want to start myself and I think that’s helped my team this early season so far.”

In 2024, Harris significantly improved her game, from increased minutes to higher field goal percentages, assists, and points per game. She started 38 games and posted the best numbers of her young WNBA career. In January, she was traded from the Connecticut Sun to the Dallas Wings, where her professional journey began as the No. 7 overall pick in the 2020 WNBA draft. Though the trade was unexpected, Harris sees it as a sign that teams recognize her value.

“I was surprised, especially since I didn’t expect to be traded from Connecticut, but I understand how trades work,” she says. “It’s clear I’m valuable when teams are interested in me. I’m excited to return to Dallas. It’s where my dreams began, and it feels great to come back, show my growth, and reconnect with the fans and staff who were always there for me.”

With two games remaining in Week Two of AU Pro Basketball, Harris is eager to continue proving herself and lead her team with the same drive and leadership that have defined her career.

COME WHAT MAY, EVINA WESTBROOK IS EMBRACING HER UNIQUE BASKETBALL JOURNEY

By Siera Jones
February 18, 2025

Evina Westbrook is making another push to keep her dream alive.

After stints with five different WNBA teams in her first two years in the league, she knows better than most how volatile a professional basketball career can be. Still, it's her foundation – built on loyalty, toughness, and consistency – that drives her to rebound from the ACL tear that brought her momentum to a grinding halt.

Westbrook had been primed to exceed expectations in her second Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball season in February 2024. She certainly made a splash in her AU debut in 2023, and this time, she'd set the bar even higher for herself. But one fateful moment in a preseason scrimmage eliminated any chance to prove herself worthy of another WNBA opportunity.

With a steep road to recovery ahead, the injured guard went to her fellow AU Pro Basketball athletes for advice and resolved to go back to where her passion for the game first took flight. She leaned back on her community in Salem, Oregon, where she spent her formidable years competing as the only girl on an all-boys AAU basketball team.

From grades 4 through 8, the squad from "The Hoop" stuck together, traveling up and down the West Coast, and developing a bond that remains intact to this day. During those years, Westbrook earned the loyalty of her teammates and demanded respect from her opponents.

Encouraging conversations with those childhood teammates strengthened her resolve.

As Westbrook, motivated by an invitation to the 2025 AU Pro Basketball season, worked through her rehabilitation process in 2024, she rekindled her youthful love of the game by stepping in as a coach for her father's AAU Program, Run & Shoot. She calls that one of the best decisions she made during her break from the action.

"Just being with them twice a week for practice, and then on the weekends too ... I remember literally being that little and what my coach was telling me, so it brought a lot of that memory back," Westbrook said. "I was able to give that back to them, so that was probably one of the best things that I did all offseason."

Rejuvenated by those Salem reconnections and experiences, the 26-year-old completed her recovery and has returned to the court for AU Pro Basketball Season 4, resuming her WNBA pursuit.

She knows what it will take to recapture her place in the highly competitive league. It's a stage she spent her entire collegiate career preparing for.

Westbrook first committed to the University of Tennessee, where she made an immediate impact – starting in 64 matchups and averaging 11.5 points per game in her first two seasons – but in 2019 she was once again faced with a tough decision. In the wake of a coaching change for the Volunteers, Westbrook transferred to the University of Connecticut.

"I always pictured myself being at a school for four years, you know, being loyal and just staying with that group," Westbrook said. "Everything happens for a reason, and I made the decision to leave, which actually ended up being one of the best decisions that I made."

Following an initial redshirt year at UConn, Westbrook played in all 66 games for the Huskies over her redshirt junior and senior campaigns and helped lead her team to an NCAA finals appearance in 2022.

After her collegiate career, the opportunities got bigger, but one of the few decisions she still had the power to make was to simply show up and make the most of every opportunity.

In the Spring of 2022, Westbrook was drafted 21st overall by the Seattle Storm but was waived following the team's training camp. Thus began the rocky journey through the pro basketball space.

Westbrook's first two years in the WNBA included stops with the Minnesota Lynx, Washington Mystics, Phoenix Mercury, and Los Angeles Sparks.

The UConn grad experienced her fair share of growing pains as she adjusted to a new level of play, as well as the unpredictable nature of the industry.

"If I could have stayed with my first team that I got drafted to, and if I got to choose that, I would, you know?" Westbrook said. "But you go through the business side of things, of how stuff really works, and you just have to get on the right team at the right time. It doesn't mean you're not good enough."

Despite the setbacks that marked her first two years as a pro, Westbrook's determination never wavered, and it was the experiences she shared with fellow AU Pro Basketball athletes that supplied further encouragement to embrace her unique journey.

That journey began for Westbrook – the fierce competitor on an all-boys team – even before she could have envisioned its final destination; while she first developed the grit that has served her so well on and off the hardwood.

"I always had to play with a chip on my shoulder going to AAU tournaments and being the only girl," she said. "So I think that's definitely where it comes from, and I've always just tried to carry that with me."

The months spent getting back to her roots in Salem proved successful in putting her back in position, both mentally and physically, to return for the 2025 AU Pro Basketball season in Nashville, Tennessee, where she showcased her leadership skills as a Week One captain. Her return to the community environment she shares with her AU teammates is just as significant as her return to the court.

"One through 40 is top-tier talent," Westbrook said of the pool of players in Nashville. "...But everyone goes through similar things. So when you come to a place like this, and you're talking to older [players], younger, it's like, damn, we've had the same experiences ... So it's super cool to talk to people like that. You don't feel alone at all."

After two weeks of play, there is a growing list of AU Pro Basketball athletes who have secured WNBA contracts and training camp opportunities. Westbrook hopes to join that list, but regardless, is ready to embrace whatever comes next on the winding path her pro career has taken her down thus far.

If anything, overcoming each obstacle has only deepened her love for the game.

"Since I started playing with the boys in fourth grade, I haven't stopped loving basketball," she said. "There have been days where I didn't like it, you know, but I don't think I've ever stopped loving the game ... If you really love to do something, then you do it to your best ability."

Many athletes might have succumbed to frustration and discouragement, rather than continue a pursuit like Westbrook's. But she remains unshaken.

"There's now 13 [WNBA] teams, and it's definitely growing, but to keep your mentality in the same spot is probably the biggest thing because it's going to happen," she said. "I know it's going to happen for me, just at the right time, in the right place, because everyone's journey is different. I just always keep that in the back of my mind."

LIVING THE DREAM WITHOUT COMPROMISE: SIMS &amp; TAYLOR AMONG MOTHERS SHINING IN SEASON FOUR

By Siera Jones
February 21, 2025

A 10-year professional career is a good ride. It's a solid accomplishment; a good tradeoff for the experience of motherhood.

Right?

Such was the initial thought process of Asia Taylor as she prepared to welcome her first child.

Although overjoyed by the prospect of this new chapter – and even with five seasons in the WNBA and overseas campaigns in eight different countries under her belt – Taylor still wasn't really ready to step away from the game she loved. But compromise is something that often comes with the territory for female athletes.

"I always wanted to be a mother, but as an athlete, we know that when you have a kid, it's basically like your career is over," Taylor says, reflectively. "You feel like you have to be done, or there's not going to be options, or people aren't going to want you."

Even with the weight of those preconceived notions, Taylor hadn't quite closed the door on her basketball career. The Louisville grad had found her niche in overseas leagues and had helped Explosivos de Moca capture a league championship in Puerto Rico in 2022. The team asked her to return for the 2024 season. The invitation was just the push Taylor needed.

"A lot of people say when they retire, 'I want to walk away from the game. I don't want the game to tell me when I'm done,'" Taylor said. "I wanted to be able to make that decision, and not have pregnancy make it for me. ... I took that three months off like the doctor told me. ... And I said, 'If my body will allow me to do this, I'm gonna start back up my team in Puerto Rico.'"

She attacked her training regimen with her new gym partner, 3-month-old Amaya, in tow, and surprised herself with her comeback season showing. The 6-foot-1 forward finished in the top four scorers in the league with 20.4 points per game and led the league in rebounding with 11.9 per game.

That was three months ago. Now, she is still finding new career opportunities. This month, she made her Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball debut in Nashville, Tennessee. Along with Bria Hartley, Jude Schimmel, and Odyssey Sims, Taylor is one of four mothers competing this season.

Sims, who now sits second on the leaderboard in her fourth AU Pro hoops season, is mother to 4-year-old Jaiden.

Like Taylor, Sims is a seasoned player with 11 years of experience in the WNBA and an 11.2 career points per game average in 292 regular-season appearances.

Four years ago, she stared down year seven in the league while preparing to welcome her first child. It would make for a short turnaround from her son's April birth to the start of the 2020 season, but Sims had no doubt of her return to play. She knew she still had unfinished business.

A cesarean delivery created an even tighter timeline. A doctor-ordered eight-week recovery period left Sims with less than seven weeks to physically prepare before the July 26 season opener.

"I just grinded," Sims said. "All of July, I just stayed literally in the gym. ... You lose muscle, your body is still trying to figure out how to put itself back together, and I had a C-section too."

By mid-August, Sims returned to the court – just four months after the birth of her son. She averaged 9.4 points in that "bubble" season while she worked to adjust to the changes that motherhood brought.

"Being a woman, it's so many different changes that your body is trying to do, and then having a kid, like a whole human, makes it harder for it to kind of catch up back to normal, and it takes some time," Sims said. "I'd say that's one of the toughest challenges."

After spending the next two WNBA seasons with the Minnesota Lynx and Atlanta Dream, Sims signed on for the inaugural AU Pro Basketball season in 2022.

Sims has participated in every AU season since, earning sixth-, third-, and second-place finishes with her son Jaiden by her side. Meanwhile, Taylor is experiencing the unique league for the first time and takes pride in being among the mothers on the floor in Nashville.

"You can find strength in saying 'she did it,'" Taylor said. "That's really all you need sometimes, is just to see it. ... We are the examples. When somebody's saying 'you can't,' they'll say, 'Well, she did it, and she did it, and she did it, and they're successful.' And I feel like I wear that with pride because I have a village that allows me to do that, and I don't have to compromise."

Part of Taylor's village includes her mother and partner, who both have supported her in Nashville.

"I think it really starts with your circle, because who you're around influences what you feel like you can achieve," Taylor said. "I didn't want to feel like I had to choose between being a good mother and being a basketball player. And so I feel like with my circle, with my village, I don't have to choose. I'm still present, I'm still active, [Amaya's] courtside every game, her dad is here, we love each other, it's a healthy family, and I just feel like I get the best of both worlds."

Adding to each mother's support system is a primary goal of AU. The league offers a pregnancy and parental leave policy for its athletes and provides accommodations to players who are pregnant or breastfeeding.

"Everything they offered when it came to just being a mother... like, knowing that if he comes to practice, it's not a problem," Sims said of the support she receives during the season. "Everybody loves my child," she added, "and somebody always makes sure, like, 'Oh, he can come with me,' always just looking out, and I think that's a big thing because there aren't that many moms in this league, but it's still good to know that AU is parent first."

For both Sims and Taylor, every moment of their careers that they can share with their children is invaluable. These years on the court also carry an added sense of responsibility, as the two veterans strive to set an example of what can be achieved through commitment and effort.

They also value the chance to create a positive emotional impact by making memories that young Jaiden and Amaya may be too young to consciously recollect.

"This is going to be priceless time that we reflect on," Taylor said. "Maybe she's playing basketball one day, and she could say, 'Man, I was courtside watching my mother continue her dreams after she had me.' And I think that testimony itself is just going to make her a better person, a better player, more relentless. Seeing her mother do it, me being the example of not giving up, beating the odds, not listening to the negatives, and just persevering, and also having her be a part of it, like, that's such a blessing."

Sims, and her son Jaiden have quite the collection of treasured memories already.

"He's been in the gym with me everywhere, just about, throughout my career these last four years," Sims said. "We've just got so many memories, I got stuff to put in the photo album so when he gets older, he can see, we were here."

'I'M HAVING THE TIME OF MY LIFE': VETERAN KIA NURSE IS REDEFINING HER GAME AT AU

By W.G. Ramirez
February 21, 2025

There's no two ways around it, Kia Nurse has become a household name in women's basketball.

Franchise player? No. But she's the type of veteran who will quickly remind an opponent just how dangerous a team can be when she's on it.

She's also a breath of fresh air for any arena she's playing in, bringing a level of competition that reeks of her championship pedigree from UConn — she's a two-time national champion — but also an intoxicating smile that will remind a basketball player why they started playing the sport in the first place.

Nurse has earned her stripes, and get this, she's just getting started.

"I'm not an OG, but I'm still a vet," Nurse said during a Zoom session on an off-day from Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball.

Three years removed from missing the 2022 WNBA season, and coming off stints in Seattle and Los Angeles, Nurse believes her peak time is in sight during the perfect era, with all eyes on women's basketball.

"When I look at it and I think back about who I was pre-ACL (injury), who I am now, I feel the best that I've felt," Nurse said. "And I'm not necessarily chasing who I was prior. I'm now kind of redefining who I am and what I have in my toolbox, how my body feels, how I am mentally. It's all different as you continue to grow in this league. And so I feel like I'm in a really good place. I know I have a ton of really good basketball left in me, which is exciting.

"Being here at AU has been like one of those big kind of reminders for me of that and just kind of building that confidence back in everything that I've had to deal with over those two years, and the different moves and different roles that I've played."

TIME OF HER LIFE

Coerced to join Athletes Unlimited by Players Executive Committee chairperson Lexie Brown during the WNBA season when the two were teammates in Los Angeles, Nurse couldn't be happier.

She's playing 26.0 minutes, averaging 16.0 points, and snatching 5.4 rebounds per game as Week Three has gotten underway.

"I'm loving it; like, I'm having the time of my life right now," said Nurse, who is currently eighth on the overall leaderboard with 2,906 points. "It's been really fun for me. It's been awesome to get to know and play with a bunch of people that I've not known before (or) played against for a long time. And kind of the social aspect of it, because the teams change so much. You get to know all these different people, and that's been a real fun part of it."

She's even tried to pass along some of her hockey passion to her newfound AU family in Nashville, attending a Predators game before the NHL took a two-week hiatus for the 4 Nations Face-Off.

"I did not put the jersey on because I felt like it was not loyal to my brother," said Nurse, whose brother Darnell plays for the Edmonton Oilers. "But it was fun. It's always fun when you're around basketball players and we go to hockey games, they'll be like, 'Oh, what's happening?' I'm like, 'How in-depth do you want me to go?'"

There's no doubt the Hamilton, Ontario native passed along her joy after Team Canada defeated Team USA 3-2 in overtime Thursday night in the 4 Nations Championship.

It's that image of camaraderie and having fun she always projects, knowing there are not just fans in attendance but also young hoopsters across North America looking up to her. Like her players on Kia Nurse Elite, an AAU organization based in Hamilton.

It's the only women's AAU team out of Canada to play in Nike's EYBL.

"We take pretty much all the best Canadian kids from the entire country and put them on one team," Nurse said.

Nurse's on-court activity at Athletes Unlimited has also been a fantastic gauge of the off-season work she's put in, seeing it play out in a five-on-five setting against WNBA-caliber competition. Nurse has stayed in contact with her trainer, relaying messages and videos while checking off the to-do list of everything they've worked on.

Just a few weeks in, she's noticed that her on-court habits have become instinctual, and she's begun feeling like herself with training camp 2 1/2 months away. Even when she hits the court, literally, falling to the hardwood after physical interaction, she's ecstatic she's been able to take a charge or hard screen, bounce back, and drain a mid-range jumper or 3-point shot moments later.

"I'm not thinking too much during the game," Nurse said. "I'm just out there and I'm hooping and I'm smiling a lot. I think a lot of people that I've spoken to in the autograph lines and stuff are like, 'You're just out there having fun, huh?'"

"I'm like, 'I am,' and I play my best basketball when I'm having fun."

NO WEIGHT

The news broke the day players were allowed to sign, Feb. 1, that Nurse was headed to play for her fifth team.

On Feb. 4 it became official. Nurse, an All-Star in 2019 while with the New York Liberty, rid herself of any weight on her shoulders when she signed with the Chicago Sky.

"Anytime you can get your free agency stuff done, it's calming," Nurse said. "Being able to actually make the decision and kind of come down to it, I'm a person that does everything they can to rid as much uncertainty as possible. So I'm glad that I know what's going to happen now. I know where I'm going. I know what dates I gotta be there, and all that kind of fun stuff."

First-year coach Tyler Marsh couldn't have been happier, knowing not only the player he was bringing in but also the person he got to know during their initial conversation.

"When it came time to her signing with us ... it was more so about how I saw her fitting in with the group that we currently have," Marsh said during a phone interview. "But also with the vision moving forward, and why I found her so valuable from a basketball standpoint and a locker room standpoint. Just wanted to get a feel and a vibe for what she was looking for, what was valuable to her and at her point in her career, what she felt like the best situation possible for her was, and how we felt like we could provide that in Chicago."

"I think we're getting a completely healthy and confident Kia, and one that's already shown that she can be very valuable and impactful in this league. I think that we're looking for the best version of her, and hopefully, we can help bring that out, and I think she'll be able to help bring that out of us."

For Nurse, it's about looking forward to another new beginning with an organization that has a mix of youth and experience, and a new coach with a championship pedigree after assisting with one of the most talented rosters in Las Vegas.

Adapting to new faces and blending in with new personalities is certainly nothing new for Nurse, who has had the opportunity to play with four organizations during her career. From stacked rosters to rebuilds, there have been a lot of different situations Nurse has learned from along the way.

"Some were at the very beginning of the rebuild, some were in that two- to three-year rebuild," Nurse said. "And so looking at Chicago, and when I had my conversation with Ty and Jeff (Pagliocca) the GM, just being able to kind of see where they were in terms of some of the changes that they made, but also knowing and playing against some of the young core that they already had, it gave me a really good vibe and a very good experience and opportunity to come in there and use my basketball IQ to be kind of be that extension of the coach on the floor, but still give me an opportunity to remind people that I can still ball."

Oh, she can, as a household name she is.

ELIZABETH WILLIAMS RETURNS TO THE COURT EYEING A 2025 COMEBACK

By Terrika Foster-Brasby

February 24, 2025

After a long road to recovery, Elizabeth Williams is back on the court.

The Chicago Sky center tore her meniscus in June 2024, which sidelined her for the remainder of the WNBA season. Now, she's returning to competitive five-on-five action for the first time since the injury in the fourth season of AU Pro Basketball in Nashville.

Unlike what many might expect from an athlete after an injury, Williams maintained a positive perspective with the support of her family and friends.

"When I got hurt, I called my mom and she was like, 'Why are you sad? This is just a blip in the radar; it's just one thing.' She really helped put it in perspective," Williams said. "I've been very fortunate to be healthy for the majority of my career."

Williams added, "I've spent a lot of time playing either in the W or in the Euroleague for the past 10 years, so I think for me, it was kind of nice to get a reset, even retraining my body... Knowing what I need, how much rest I need, and then gaining some strength back too – adjusting to different deficits that I might've had before and really couldn't take care of – so I think overall, my recovery process was good."

Though she's still playing on minute restrictions, Williams has already made a strong impact in AU Pro Basketball, ranking fifth on the overall leaderboard through three weeks of play. She's been one of the top draft picks each week and is appreciative of the trust her fellow teammates have placed in her.

"Sometimes you need those reminders of what you're capable of, especially when you don't know how you're going to feel physically," the veteran stated. "But it feels great to know you can bring value to whatever team you're playing on. That's pretty cool."

With a decade of professional basketball experience, this stint at AU Pro Basketball provides her a rare opportunity to continue developing her game while staying stateside. Playing overseas often demands full participation, making this season in Nashville the ideal environment for her to ease back into competitive play at a controlled pace.

"I had opportunities to play overseas, but realistically, I've done overseas for a long time and you can tell them that you're on a restriction, but it doesn't fly," Williams shared.

Many players have chosen to play in AU because of the opportunity to stay in the U.S. instead of dealing with the intense travel demands of playing abroad. For Williams, this was just as important.

"Having done all my rehab here [in D.C.] and having people that I can reach out to whenever I need to was a big part," she explained. "One part [of choosing AU] was being stateside, another part of it was just playing competitive five-on-five basketball."

"And I know that a lot of AU is just giving players whatever they need, so I think that the staff and everyone here has done a good job of making sure that we have what we need."

Off the court, Williams has enjoyed her time in Nashville, where the fans have fully embraced women's basketball. The city's enthusiasm for the sport has only fueled her excitement for the future.

"I think the fans really appreciate having basketball here," the 6'3 center said. "We sign autographs after every game and almost everyone we talk to is like, 'Man, it's so nice to have basketball here and we hope we can get a W team here.' I love that we're in a place that really embraces the women's game."

Looking ahead, Williams is focused on her return to the Chicago Sky for the 2025 season, where she'll play under new head coach Tyler Marsh. With her recovery progressing and her confidence growing, she's eager to bring her leadership and experience back to the WNBA.

"I'm really excited about Tyler," Williams said. "I've had a couple of conversations with him and done some workouts with him when I went to Chicago a couple of weeks back; he's great."

"I think sometimes when people talk about developing players, they are thinking about young players, but I always think there's still an opportunity for vets to continue to get better and I think he's communicated that."

As Williams continues her journey up the leaderboard in AU Pro Basketball, her resilience and determination are evident, paving the way for a strong return to the WNBA.

AU ATHLETES CONNECT WITH NASHVILLE YOUTH FOR COMMUNITY DAY OF GIVING

By Siera Jones

February 25, 2025

The 40 athletes competing in Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball Season 4 may be displaying top-tier athleticism night after night at the Nashville Municipal Auditorium, but their time in Music City hasn't been solely centered around competition.

This month, the athletes came together for AU's Community Day of Giving. To expand on the league's existing volunteer initiatives, the players split into groups and visited five locations across Nashville, where they connected with the youth in the community.

One site for the volunteer initiative was Purpose Prep Academy, a student-centered and project-based elementary school based in Nashville. The AU athletes met with over 20 young members of the school's basketball team, as well as the program's coaching staff.

"I think it's really important to give back," said Brianna Hartley of her experience at Purpose Prep. "A lot of us come from the same communities that some of these girls are in now. So it's really cool to have the opportunity to see people kind of living out their dream, and representation matters. So I think it's just really cool that we're able to come here, be an example for these girls, and just answer any questions that they may have."

Another group of AU athletes made its way to Mount Juliet Academy for Girls to join in the organization's mission – helping girls in the state juvenile detention system surpass trauma and abuse, build confidence, and develop the skills needed for a successful future.

The athletes met with girls ages 12-17 at the residential treatment center, lent a listening ear, and inspired the girls by sharing their life stories.

Meanwhile, one volunteer crew greeted a special visitor at the Nashville Municipal Auditorium. The athletes met with a patient from St. Jude Children's Research Hospital at the competition site of AU Pro Basketball Season 4.

After learning about the work of St. Jude, athletes teamed up with the patient on an art project. Each artist incorporated a phrase into their artwork that they turn to during difficult times. The resulting paintings will be featured in a continuing art installation at the St. Jude campus in Memphis, Tenn.

"I'm grateful to be a part of something positive that is bigger than myself and bigger than basketball," said first-year AU participant, Jude Schimmel of the day's interactions.

One team of athletes was right at home on the hardwood during the day's events, joining in on YMCA Community Action Programs, and engaging in activities – including basketball – with the middle school-aged participants in the afterschool program.

The squad of volunteers worked to make each young athlete feel seen throughout their visit.

I liked how involved everyone was when it came to asking and answering questions," said guard Kenisha Bell. "Everyone picked a task to do and worked together as a team to keep smiles on their faces."

Sydney Colson, Theresa Plaisance, Evina Westbrook, and Maddy Siegrist were among the athletes who went on the air at Seacrest Studios and reached out to pediatric patients over the airwaves.

Seacrest Studios is a closed-circuit radio and television system at Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt that broadcasts therapeutic and entertaining programs directly to its patients' rooms. Its programming includes live music performances, game shows, story times, craft shows, celebrity appearances, and other special events.

Athletes answered questions, greeted patients who made their way to the studio in person and provided gifts for patients who were watching and listening from their beds.

"We just wanted to get out in the community and show that we want to give back as much as we can," Colson said. "It was just as rewarding for us, I think, as it was for them, so hopefully they'll invite us back again."

Designed to inspire creativity and joy, Seacrest Studios provides students with an escape from their treatment-filled schedules at Monroe Carell. The AU athletes joined in that mission.

"We're extremely grateful to be playing AU, but also giving back to the community," Siegrist said. "Being here in Nashville has been great for basketball, and now to get to get to know the community a little bit more has been really impactful."

HOW WOMEN'S BASKETBALL PLAYERS ARE REDEFINING FASHION

By Alexis Davis
March 6, 2025

When planning outfits for trips or a night out, Pinterest, Instagram, and TikTok are the old faithful for many. Now, women's basketball is the new mood board.

But as the Athletes Unlimited Pro Basketball Player Executive Committee tells it, the outfits have existed for a while; the rest of the world is just now catching up.

Comfort truly reigns supreme when preparing for a tunnel walk at the WNBA Finals like Sydney Colson, Lexie Brown, and Theresa Plaisance.

"Being comfortable is everything," Brown said. "Every trend is not for you. Everybody's body is different and beautiful."

Once comfortability is checked off, Colson joins forces with her girlfriend and celebrity stylist, Amadi Brooks. Brooks, who was recently featured in a True Religion campaign, works with top talent to bring out their inner style and personality. The wardrobe consultant takes the stress out of having the perfect outfit for Colson and Plaisance.

"I put together what maybe wouldn't match traditionally and don't care about not wearing white after Labor Day," Colson said. "If I'm prepared, I really look forward to getting dressed."

As they found themselves through trial and error with fashion, they were experimenting in front of the world, unlike others who get to build their closet and personal style behind closed doors.

Just as they built their fashion identities, the PEC works actively to build the identity of AU Pro Basketball. They work on all aspects of the league alongside AU staff, from identifying players to add to the roster to establishing the rules and scoring system.

When Colson looks back on her hundreds of outfits over the years, she does not regret any of them. As long as she liked it when she put it on, that was all that mattered to her. Plaisance echoed the same.

"If I feel confident walking out the door and it's the ugliest thing to other people but I feel great in what I have on, at the end of the day, I was feeling hella fly walking out the door," Plaisance said.

Wear what makes you feel confident and beautiful. If you put it on and you feel great, then who cares.

A part of being comfortable comes from the inside out, but sometimes, society may be late to the party. Colson believes as the queer community became more accepted in the modern world, it allowed women's basketball players to show up as their true selves.

"Once I got comfortable with dressing masculine, I was okay with experimenting more," Colson said. "I'll wear whatever now. I think queerness is more accepted now, more than even when I was in college. When I was at the draft, it was business casual. We would travel in business casual to our commercial flights. When society is more accepting of something, then people are too. People have an understanding that there are more lesbian and queer players in college and in the W and so, you let people be themselves so that they can show up authentically and not feel suffocated by societal norms and attire."

Over the last year, Plaisance's favorite outfit came during a trip to the Big Apple. Colson and Plaisance were booked to go on the Tamron Hall Show in November. During a time when it can be hard to balance style and warmth, Plaisance did not have to choose between the two.

Plaisance's best New York City fashion moment came from wearing her entire suitcase at once and mixing prints, including camouflage and florals. Her outfit came together and even garnered a compliment from Brooks.

"I was more than Cloud 9," Plaisance said. "It was better than normal, I was on Cloud 10."

For Plaisance and Colson, Brooks motivates them to push the envelope. At the beginning of the WNBA season, Brooks sourced an outfit from designer Sheila Rashid for Colson that featured an ode to Black hair salons and magazine culture from the 1990s and 2000s.

"Sometimes, I like to dress more feminine because people are used to seeing me in a tomboy outfit," Colson said. "I tell Amadi I'm in this mood and I already know they're going to eat this up. I am a woman at the end of the day."

Hair also inspires Brown when she is getting dressed. She always likes to coordinate her hairstyles with her outfits and will preserve an outfit until she has the perfect hairstyle to match. While playing for the Connecticut Sun from 2018 to 2019, it was difficult for Brown to find a hairstylist who catered to Black hair.

Brown takes pride in always keeping her hair done. During her time in Connecticut, she planned her hairstyles around the team's away game schedule and used stylist and city hashtags to locate skilled professionals around the country on social media.

While playing for the Minnesota Lynx from 2019 to 2020, the team was required to wear team gear when traveling. Brown traveled with a tripod to home and away games to take pictures and document her outfits before photographers flooded the pre-game tunnels. For Brown, high achievements on and off the court have been the motivation behind purchasing the items she wants and deserves.

"Growing up in my house, everything was based around school," Brown said. "If I got good grades, then I got to go shopping. If you got an A on your test, then you could also go buy things. I've always associated shopping with achievement. Every time I do something well, I like to treat myself."

As Brown was coming of age, her favorite store was Limited Too, now known as Justice. She also went through a preppy stage, favoring Abercrombie & Fitch, Hollister, Bermuda shorts, and collared shirts.

Brown has molded her style over the last few years, drawing inspiration from Europe while playing overseas.

"Europeans dress nice but simple while still being elegant with elevated styles," Brown said. "It's not normal to see someone wearing sweats and leggings, especially in Hungary and France. I liked to people watch in Budapest and the H&M and Zara overseas are elite."

While Brown's inspiration has come from all over the world, Isabelle Harrison only had to look one bedroom over from her for fashion inspiration while growing up with six sisters. Harrison is one of 12 and grew up mostly getting hand-me-downs from her sisters' closets. It was hard for the 6-foot-3 forward to find clothing with long enough sleeves and pants.

"I mostly wanted to wear shorts, skirts, and dresses so that I didn't have to worry about different things being long enough," Harrison said. "I was always the tallest girl in class and sometimes even the tallest person, but I learned to love my height and length."

Harrison held on to her two favorite pairs of jeans that fit just right until she could not wear them anymore. When she entered the University of Tennessee, she began to find websites with clothing sections catered to taller women.

During the 2024 WNBA season, Harrison began integrating her stylist, Golden, into her game day.

"So, I've learned my lesson," Harrison said. "I was doing my game day outfits on the same day. I know how to dress myself, but I like how stylists help you plan in advance. She's really elevated my style and made it more fun, flirty, and girly. I believe I can pull off any look. I love the way clothes can make you feel amazing."

When offering advice for women looking to identify their style, the PEC sings a similar song.

"Wear what makes you feel confident and beautiful," Harrison said. "If you put it on and you feel great, then who cares."
